

THE ENTRIES FOR THE RACES

The List Is the Best One for Years

GOOD RACING ENSURED

All the Classes Filled Except the 2:18 Trot—Rules Require at Least Five Entries for Each Race—Some Very Speedy Horses Among Them May Del

The entries for the North Carolina state fair races have been prepared for publication by the clerk of the course, Mr. C. G. Fox, of Philadelphia, and will be found below. The list is an excellent one and ensures good racing next week. All the classes have filled except the 2:18 trot. It is the best list of entries for years.

According to the published conditions there must be five horses entered for each race, with at least three horses to start. In the 2:18 trot referred to, there are four entries, and the horses will be allowed to race by the payment of an additional entrance fee, so as to comply with the conditions. An entry or two may possibly have miscarried, and if mailed prior to 11 o'clock last Tuesday night they will be eligible, even though they may not come to light until the end of this week.

To show, for instance, the uncertainty of race entries, a letter was received by Secretary Pogue which had been mailed at Greensboro last Tuesday, and contained only a lead-pencil scrawl in the following words: "I will also enter 'Bettie Jones' in same classes. I want three starts for the two horses." This is supposed to have been written by a horseman who filled out an entry blank and neglected to enclose it in the letter. As it is, Clerk Fox has been unable to put the horse "Bettie Jones" in the list, as there is nothing to go by as to the classes for which the entries are intended—whether for three trotting or three pacing classes. The sender of the letter will probably turn up next week, when he will be given the chance of correcting his error. This may give two additional entries for each of the three trotting classes, and thus fill the 2:18 trot, which, as heretofore stated, lacks one entry of the requisite number.

There are six horses named for the 2:22 trot, as the entry list now stands: six for the 2:17 pace; ten for the 2:35 trot; seven for the 2:21 pace; four for the 2:18 trot; seven for the 2:13 pace; six for the 2:27 trot, and five for the 2:27 pace. There are also five, four and six entries respectively for each of the running races.

In the list will be found some very speedy horses, such as "Mary Del," the chestnut mare that established the record of the Raleigh track (2:16) one year ago. Other good ones are Minnie Thompson (2:17 1/2) and Sadie Temple (2:18 1/2), the Roanoke (Va.) horses that are great rivals. These horses have had sharp tilts this year at Roanoke, Lynchburg and other places, and are expected to race here for blood. Either one is capable of breaking the track record.

Another Roanoke horse is "Fleety J.," a green one, four years old, that has already obtained a mark of 2:21 1/2 and is said to be able to go considerably below her mark if hard pressed.

The Virginia city of Roanoke, since the construction there in 1903 of the present excellent track and training quarters, has become a great rendezvous for horsemen. It is gratifying to know that the best horses which have been trained on that track will be seen here next week. In addition to the running horses owned by the Jamisons of Roanoke—father and two sons—the same horsemen will bring a number of runners (colts of thoroughbred Kentucky stock), which, if arrangements can be made, will be entered for special races of five-eighths of a mile dashes, which will prove to be some of the greatest drawing cards of the fair.

[Open to those horses that have started, and have not won either first or second money.]

Some of the above horses have peculiar names, but none more so than the stallion "Tearoleon," owned by Messrs. Rhodes & Bannister of Roanoke, Va. This is not a "case of mis-spell," as some might suspect. The Tyrolean Alps at the entrance to "The Pike" at last year's St. Louis exposition, had reference to the valley of the Tyrol in Switzerland and Austria; but Tearoleon is a word coined from the animal's pedigree, the sire having been "Red Leo," and the dam "Tea Rose." The horse "Butcher Boy" was formerly driven in a butcher wagon in a Pennsylvania village until he developed speed. "Billy Gormly" is named after his owner. "Conductor Corbitt" was named after a well known conductor of West Virginia, running on the Norfolk and Western Railroad. "Quick" is a very good name for a horse, but "Clam" is slow. The latter refers to a production of the coast, and to offset it there should be a horse named "Tar," another North Carolina production.

Mary Del, the mare that made the present track record, will again appear upon the track. Her name is a compound of Maryland and Delaware. Mr. C. G. Fox, the clerk of the course, is here to remain until the races are over. He is getting out the most attractive program and official score card ever seen at a southern race track. It will be issued every day as a Roosevelt souvenir of the great North Carolina state fair of 1905. Colonel Robert Hough of Baltimore, who will be the starting judge next week, will not arrive in Raleigh until next Tuesday morning. He is a veteran of the turf.

A SYRIAN ASSAULTED

Magistrate Only Exacted Payment of Costs

Henry Olive Cursed and Thrashed H. Diamond on Wilmington Street then Paid Squire Reid $3.80. Olive's Side of the Affair

Henry Olive, ex-policeman and driver of one of the city fire wagons, yesterday thrashed a Syrian, H. Diamond, knocking him down on the sidewalk and beating him, and was let off by Magistrate R. G. Reid upon the payment of costs.

Olive claims that the man owed him money and when he accosted him and cursed him, the Syrian made a motion as if to draw a pistol. Only one witness out of five saw any movement of this kind and the unarmed Syrian vows that he did not even know his assailant by sight.

The affair occurred near Norris' store, corner of Wilmington and Martin streets. Olive approached the Syrian, said something to him, a few words passed, the foreigner was knocked flat and when he arose he started off jabbering something, whereupon Olive again ran up and struck him several times.

The Syrian set out immediately to find a policeman when an officer met him and took him before Magistrate Reid on the charge of engaging in an affray. Diamond says that the magistrate advised him to submit, but the foreigner protested that he had done nothing and vowed that he would spend the last penny he had before he would pay one cent. He did not even know the name of the man who beat him, so he said. Diamond asked for time to get a lawyer. Magistrate Reid told him that he would have to put up a $50 bond then. The Syrian pulled the money out of his pocket and deposited it with the magistrate. The trial was set for yesterday afternoon. Diamond employed Messrs. Argo & Shaffer to defend him. He still protested that he did not know who had struck him.

When the matter came to trial Diamond's lawyers moved his case from Squire Reid and it was sent to Capt. D. G. Conn and set for 10:30 this morning. The trial of Olive then proceeded. Olive swore that Diamond owed him some money; the witness did not say what the debt amounted to or what it was for. He met the Syrian yesterday and demanded payment. Diamond talked back at him in a way he did not like, so Olive applied a superlatively vile oath to him. The Syrian jumped back and reached behind him as if for a gun, so Olive knocked him down. When the Syrian got up he said: "I am going to make you pay for this," whereupon Olive replied: "If I have got to pay for it I might as well give you a good one," and he proceeded to chastise the man.

Duncan Mangum corroborated Olive in the assertion that the Syrian reached behind him when he was cursed. However, Edwin McKee, J. I. Johnson, Jr., and two other witnesses who saw the affair, swore that they did not see the Syrian make any move towards his pocket or offer any resistance. Olive is a powerful man, weighing two hundred pounds, while the Syrian is much smaller. The Syrian did not go on the witness stand.

Magistrate Reid said that he would let Olive off upon the payment of costs, which amounted to $3.80. The case against the Syrian will be developed at today's trial.

In Memoriam, Mary V. McLean

Entered into rest, on Tuesday, October 10th, at Maxton, North Carolina, Mary Virginia, wife of John Allen McLean, in the forty-eighth year of her age. At twilight, "when fast falls the eventide," surrounded by her loved ones, the tears of heaven mingling with theirs, she fell asleep like "one who wraps his mantle around him and lies down to pleasant dreaming," and her triumphant spirit went into the darkness, with lamp trimmed and burning, to meet her Lord. She passed away in the noontide of life, but so full and complete it was that it seemed as she had lived the allotted time of man. The keynote of her life had been love for her Maker, and her guiding star, duty. She came here a young bride, only nineteen years of age, and for twenty-nine years has lived among us. None knew her but to love her, and the whole community feels deeply this great loss. Her hand has ever been ready to give help, and her heart sympathy.

Mrs. McLean was the daughter of Mr. Sylvester Brown and Elizabeth Brown. She was born in Washington, North Carolina. She leaves a devoted husband and seven children, four sons and three daughters, to mourn her loss. She has three sisters, Mrs. ex-Chief Justice Shepherd, Mrs. G. A. Sparrow and Mrs. George Crabtree, and one brother, Judge Brown.
