ROLLINS AND DUNCAN'S VISIT

Republican Pie Dispensers at the National Capital

AFTER MORTON'S SCALP

Also See About Some Other Jobs For the Faithful--Rollins Exploits His Newspaper to Secretary Cortelyou. President Will Not Leave Car at Charlotte--His Raleigh Speech.

By THOMAS J. PENCE

Washington, Oct. 14.--Special.--At the White House today Republican States Chairman Rollins and National Committee Chairman Duncan were informed that the president would be unable to leave his train during the fifteen minutes stay at Charlotte and that the program for a speech in the public park will have to be abandoned.

The president will make a short speech in Charlotte, but it will be delivered from the rear of his private car, where the ceremonies incident to the reception of the chief executive in Charlotte will take place.

At the president's Charlotte visit occurred in the day-time, most likely a visit to the city would be made, but night receptions, which require Mr. Roosevelt to leave his train, are discouraged.

Mr. Rollins and Mr. Duncan were at the White House less than five minutes. They called to pay their respects and incidentally to assure the president that he is going to be splendidly received by the entire people of the state next week. Mr. Roosevelt expressed his thanks and promised his visitors that he was deeply looking forward to his trip to North Carolina and the south.

The conversation did not reach the usual stage and after exchanging a few pleasantries the visitors retired. They repaired to the postoffice department where they took up with Secretary Cortelyou the Morehead City office contest. Just what resulted from this conference is not known, but it was learned afterwards that the appointment of Mr. Morton, the incumbent, is still held up.

Chairman Rollins' only comment was that the matter was still pending, though he would not go into particulars. It is known, however, that Mr. Rollins and Mr. Duncan have not received in their support of Mr. Mills, the organization candidate, though they did not refer to the case at the White House.

New Newspaper Shown to Cortelyou

Mr. Rollins exhibited a copy of the Industrial News to Mr. Cortelyou, who he wanted the postmaster general to examine in his capacity as national chairman. Mr. Cortelyou took occasion to say that a Republican party in the south was something out of the ordinary--if not a curiosity, and he complimented the appearance of the publication.

The national committee man and state chairman came here primarily to take up the Morehead City postoffice, but he considered several other official subjects as well.

Among other things, Mr. Rollins recommended Charles D. Cobb for appointment as postmaster at McLeansville, Guilford county. He gave his own name, Dr. Albert R. Wilson of Greensboro, for appointment as a member of the United States pensioning board at Greensboro.

He was also occupied at the offices of the Southern Railway where he had some matters pending. Mr. Duncan called the department of internal revenue where he saw Commissioner Wilson, but there was no significance to this visit.

Tenth Dist. Congressman

Representative Gudgeon of the tenth district, who is here, has been inspecting quarters for the winter. He has decided to locate at the Ebbitt House. It is no secret that Mr. Gudgeon is going to have opposition for a re-nomination next year, though his friends say that he will win out over the opposition. Ex-Congressman Crawford of Haywood is already in the field and Col. Gallert of Rutherford is said to be an aspirant. It had been expected that Lock Craig would become a candidate, but word received here is to the effect that he has decided not to contest for the nomination. Mr. Gudgeon left tonight for Polk county.

Raleigh Speech Completed

be one of the few in the south that rolled up a Democratic local majority last fall, but gave Mr. Roosevelt a greater vote than Judge Parker. It is not to be inferred that this unique record was brought to Mr. Roosevelt's attention in order to get him to stop at Lexington.

News Wants Schedule Changed

Chairman Rollins saw officials of the Southern Railway today with the object of having the early morning train that leaves Greensboro at 1:15 a. m., leave at 2 a. m. This change in schedule would favor the distribution of the first edition of the morning paper at Greensboro. It is claimed, however, that a change would interfere with Goldsboro connection.

Fourth-class postmasters were appointed today as follows: Merret E. Trantham at Hurricane, Haywood county. Loughlin Morris at Vestal, Montgomery county.

Postmaster J. M. Meekins of Elizabeth City spent the day here. Other arrivals include George H. Smathers of Wayneville, Ralph Dillard of Edenton, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Mallard of Wilmington and Mrs. J. A. Meadows of New Bern.

The New York Life in Texas

Austin, Tex., Oct. 14.--State Commissioner of Insurance W. J. Clay addressed a long communication to Governor Lanham today, in which he recommends that the Texas authorities take no action looking to the debarment of the New York Life and other insurance companies from the state until the executive investigation now in progress in New York is finished.

Liquor in Goldsboro

Election to Restore Saloons Next Month in Doubt

Some Wayne County Freaks at the State Fair--Interested Property Owners Working Against Plan to Build New Union Depot.

Goldsboro, N. C., Oct. 14.--Special. As the days drag wearily along interest in the election on open saloons, which has been called for the 14th of November, increases. As the town is now dry, and has been for the last two years, it would indicate that the prohibition forces have the situation well under control.

The bar-rooms were swept from the community by an overwhelming vote two years ago. The majority at that time was larger than the vote cast against prohibition. The petition filed with the board of aldermen for an election shows that there has been considerable change of sentiment on the liquor question since prohibition went into effect. There were three hundred and twelve names on the petition.

There are only about seven hundred and sixty-four voters. The people who favor bar-rooms calculate that not only all of those who signed the petition will vote for saloons, but that a number who were deterred from signing the paper by a threat that the list would be published in a local paper will also vote the same way.

The list has not been published and very probably will not be. Sentiment on the question is more evenly divided than it was when the election was held before, and the leaders on both sides are marshaling their forces for the conflict with consummate skill and interest in the outcome is being increased as the time for the election approaches.

Some of the monstrosities of Wayne county will be on exhibition at the state fair during the ensuing week. Mr. John R. Smith of Mt. Olive will be there with a bobby-horse arrangement and will have on exhibition some of the curiosities he has gathered from various parts of the county. He has some very peculiar freaks of nature among his calves. One that he picked up has two heads and another has five legs. He has also in his collection of curiosities a hen which has three well-developed legs, and some guinea that have web feet like a duck. His unusual collection will no doubt attract attention and afford right much amusement to visitors to the fair.

If the few people who own the property around where the trains stop now, and who own the property which is being rented to the railroads for the inconvenient waiting rooms and ticket offices that the railroads now occupy, can prevent it, Goldsboro will not get a union passenger station that has been the ideal dream of the bulk of our citizenship for years. A petition has been circulated this week among some of the business men asking that the railroads let the present ill-arranged accommodation for the traveling public remain as it is. The promoters of the scheme have met with very poor success in obtaining names for their paper. Resolutions from the board of aldermen addressed to the corporation commission asking that they use their influence and good offices to secure a union passenger station for Goldsboro commensurate with its importance as a railroad center shows how public sentiment on the question stands. It is understood from reliable sources that the corporation commission will not

THE NATIONALS ARE CHAMPIONS

Defeated Americans by the Score of 2 to 0

MATTHEWSON IN THE BOX

Quakers Played an Errorless Game and Their Pitcher, Bender, Allowed the New Yorkers Only Five Hits. New Yorkers Captured Four of the Five Games Played.

New York, Oct. 14.--The New Yorks gained the world's championship on the Polo grounds today, winning their fourth victory of the series with the Philadelphia, champions of the American League. The baseball that the New Yorks furnished today was, as it was in four games out of five played, the best their rivals knew. The score today--2 to 0. Nature was lavish in her favors for the final game, and baseball of midsummer speed was played. The fielding was faster than in any of the preceding games. The batting was not hard, but it was nearly equal and a good many hard driven balls were handled by the fielders.

Today's game was another pitcher's battle. It was fought hard, but there was other things besides pitching that counted today, as in the other games. The whole New York team was resolute, fast and versatile--three qualities in which they exceeded their opponents, and which helped them to come out victorious. From the time when Mathewson, with ball in hands poised over head, made ready to pitch the first ball until Bresnahan kicked his heels in the air after the last put out, the three virtues mentioned were noticeable in New York's victory. In three consecutive games which Mathewson pitched the Athletics did not cross the plate. Not a run by the other side in twenty-seven innings is proof more convincing than words can convey of how well Mathewson pitched. In the first part of today's game the Athletics displayed signs that they were finally getting the hang of his pitching, making three hits in the first two innings. But they could not score, for Mathewson is a pitcher of resource, and situations that make him work hard make him work all the better. Between him and his fielders he kept the Athletics well away from the plate. In the fifth and sixth innings, the Athletics made two more hits, two of the six being scratches. The Athletics did not get a man to third base.

Bender pitched a strong game, but was not so much of a puzzle to the New Yorks as he was last Tuesday, and the New Yorks made greater strides in getting the hand of his delivery than did the Athletics in solving Mathewson. One less hit was made off Bender than off Mathewson, but the latter excelled the Indian when men were on bases and was steadiness itself, while Bender gave three bases on balls. The free passes issued by the Indian proved his team's downfall, each of New York's runs having its inception in a base on balls. Without these gratis strolls the New Yorks would not have scored as the game was played. However Bender was still a mighty hard proposition to hit and the way he fielded his position was a thing of delight. The game was brimful of sharp work, quickly played and with plays treading so rapidly on the heels of one another that action was continuous. It was a short, sharp decisive struggle, won and lost on its merits.

Barring a fumble by Mathewson, the New Yorks fielded without a quiver. The fielding of the Athletics was every bit as good and a trifle more vivid. Hartzel and Lord did gallant work in their respective positions. Bresnahan, who outdid himself throughout the week, kept up his work.

Today's attendance was big but not the biggest of the week. It totaled 26,000.

Pennsylvania scored one touchdown in the first half and two touchdowns in the second. Try for goal resulted successfully twice, making a total of 17 points for the northern collegians.

How High Point Will Greet the President

Factory Whistles That Will Make Enough Discordant Noise to Cause Mr. Roosevelt a Bad Minute or Two--Car Load of Horses Killed.

High Point, N. C., Oct. 14.--Special. From all indications the citizens of High Point, irrespective of party affiliations, are going to do their level best to make a decided impression upon President Roosevelt when he stops here on the afternoon of October 19th on his southern tour.

The board of aldermen met in special session Thursday night to start in motion plans for the reception of the president. Committees were appointed to look into the board last night to perfect plans.

At the meeting last night the following committees were appointed: Executive, decorative, military, police, signal, firemen, musician, school. Those appointed on the several committees will get to work at once so that everything will be in readiness the 19th.

Just as the train bearing the president comes into the city the whistles of all the factories in town will sound a mighty welcome. No one who has heard the nearly hundred whistles here break loose at one time can doubt any idea of the noise they make.

About all the whistles are pitched in a different key and the "blending" together of the same is something fierce. The steamboat, steam calliope, locomotive and various other tunes are imitated to perfection.

The last time these whistles sounded all for any length of time, the Liberty Bell train stopped in High Point. For five minutes the whistles shrieked and people in the surrounding country thought the High Point was burning down, or that some other awful calamity had befallen the place. The noise made one feel queer and many unsuspecting people living in the woods thought that the judgment day was at hand.

The city will be profusely decorated for the occasion. A large banner will be hung across the main railroad crossing and plenty of flags will be displayed there. The band will be stationed on a rostrum and the military and fire companies will be on hand.

Mr. Fred N. Tate has been chosen chief marshal and he will in turn name his assistants.

Fifteen thousand people are expected here that afternoon and a large number of extra officers will be sworn in for the occasion.

Mr. R. R. Ross of Asheboro, dealer in horses and mules, has received word that a car of horses en route to him were killed outright in a railroad wreck beyond the Mississippi river. The horses were purchased by Mr. Ross in Fort Scott, Texas. Kilgo of Durham will arrive here this afternoon and will be the guests of Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Bradshaw.

Dr. Kilgo will preach at Washington Street M. E. church Sunday morning and night.

Final arrangements have been made for commencing work on the addition to the silk mill. Mr. Barlow of New York, who has been here a day or so, completed the arrangements today. Mr. H. Baker will superintend the work.

Dr. G. T. Imbler and Miss Fannie Proctor were united in marriage Thursday evening at the residence of Mr. T. H. Thomas. Rev. J. M. Hilliard of Greene Street Baptist church officiated.

Georgetown Outplayed

Washington, Oct. 14.--Villa Nova outplayed Georgetown at football today 6 to 0 in two twenty-minute halves. The visitors' rushing tactics enabled them to score a touchdown early in the opening half, while Georgetown's nearest chance to scoring in this half was to reach the twenty-yard line. The ball was kept in Villa Nova's territory nearly all of the second half and three times Georgetown had it within less than 15 yards of the goal, but advance past the five-yard line, being held on downs each time Villa Nova's goal was endangered.

At West Point: West Point 6, Virginia Tech 16. At Princeton: Princeton 48, Bucknell 0.

At Providence: Brown 24, Matne 0. At Richmond: Indiana 12, Virginia 0. At Easton: Lafayette 48, Jefferson Medical College 0.

At Washington: Villa Nova 6, Georgetown 0. At Philadelphia: Pennsylvania 17, University of North Carolina 0. At New York: Columbia 11, Williams 5.

At New Haven: Yale 30, Holy Cross 0. At Cambridge: Harvard 12, Springfield Training School 0.

Another Account

Philadelphia, Oct. 14.--Pennsylvania defeated North Carolina on Franklin football field today by the score of 17 to 0. It was the first time the North Carolina boys have played here, and considering it was their second game of this year, they put up a plucky battle.

They were not at all dangerous at any stage, and only secured two touchdowns during the game. The punting (Continued on Page Two.)

ASHEVILLE SENSATION

Barkeeper Assaults Salvation Army Woman

She Went Into the Saloon of One Featherstone to Solicit Funds From Customers Whereupon She Was Forcibly Ejected--Trial Tomorrow

Asheville, N. C., Oct. 14.--Special. A. A. Featherstone, a saloon keeper of this city, was arrested this afternoon, charged with an assault on Mrs. Kate Wiggins, a member of the Salvation Army, now carrying on work in Asheville.

It is said that Mrs. Wiggins went into the saloon to take up a collection to aid in the work, when she was forcibly ejected by the proprietor of the saloon.

The trial is set for Monday, and the Salvation Army people have employed Frank Carter, a prominent attorney of Asheville, to prosecute the saloon keeper.

The affair is being freely talked about tonight, and the trial will probably be largely attended and of a sensational nature.

Mrs. Wiggins claims the saloon keeper kicked her. Adjutant Wiggins, her husband, declared tonight that he intended to push the prosecution to its limit.

GIGANTIC WAVE SWEEP STEAMER

Five Lives Lost in the Campania Disaster

MANY BADLY INJURED

One Young Woman Had Both Legs Broken at the Thighs--Scores With Broken Ribs and Arms' Graphic Description of the Mid Ocean Accident by a Passenger.

New York, Oct. 14.--Five lives are known to have been lost and more than thirty persons injured, and one of them fatally, on the Cunard Line steamer Campania last Wednesday, when a gigantic wave rolled the steamer, and swept across one of her decks thick with steerage passengers.

John Graham of Milwaukee was one of the passengers washed overboard and lost. He was traveling in the steerage. The others who are known to have lost their lives were two Irish girls and two other women whose nationality has not yet been ascertained.

When the Campania reached quarantine today ten of the injured passengers were still in the ship's hospital, some of them seriously hurt and a score of others were nursing minor injuries.

The Campania was going under full headway Wednesday afternoon. A heavy squall was running, but the weather conditions were far from unpleasant and the big boat's decks were crowded with passengers.

The steerage deck was covered with merry-makers and there was nothing to indicate the approaching disaster when suddenly the big steamer lurched to port and scooped up an enormous sea.

The wave boarded the steamer about midship on the port side and swept clear across the steerage deck, completely filling the space between the deck and the deck above and carrying everything with it.

The steamer's side was buried so deep that the passengers on the deck above the steerage were submerged to their waists as the immense volume of water rolled aft and then surged forward. The cabin passengers on the upper deck succeeded in clinging to supports while the others were swept around them and were saved, but the unfortunates on the steerage deck found themselves utterly helpless.

One young woman had both legs broken at the thigh and several persons suffered broken arms and ribs, while scores were bruised and battered.

When the wave cleared the vessel the forward part of the deck was strewn with injured and for hours Dr. Verden, the ship's surgeon, aided by a number of physicians among the cabin passengers, was busy in attending to their hurts.

Wednesday's disaster marks the first time in the Cunard Line's history of more than sixty years that a passenger has been lost from one of its steamers by accident.

A description of the accident and the subsequent scenes on board the ship was given by Michael D. O'Connor, a first cabin passenger, when the steamer arrived at her dock.

He said: "After breakfast Wednesday morning when I was sitting in the cabin there was a sudden lurch to port. I looked out of a window and saw the steerage promenade deck completely buried under the sea. A dark object swept by me and out through the gates like a chip in a large water main. A man at my side jumped up and cried 'man overboard. I saw men, women and children of the steerage hurled about like so many bits of paper in a hurricane, and stewards rushed fore and aft on the deck above the steerage trying to calm the now thoroughly panicky steerage passengers.'

Although some of the passengers thought that the Campania should have been stopped in an attempt to save those who were washed overboard, the officers say that this was practically an impossibility. Both passengers and officers say that the waves in Wednesday afternoon's gale were the highest they have ever seen.

TEN MEN DROWNED

By Sinking of a Mississippi River Boat Near Vicksburg

Natchez, Miss., Oct. 14.--Many lives are reported to have been lost in the sinking of a Mississippi boat below Vicksburg today. Details have not been received in full, but from reports that have come by telephone and telegraph it is believed that from five to ten men were drowned.

It is said that ten men are known to have been aboard the boat when it met disaster.
