THE NATIONAL CONGRESS.

THE SILVER BILL IS THE BIG BONE OF CONTENTION.

Both Houses are struggling with it—And it seems to be a sort of an elephant with both bodies.

(By United Press.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 6.—(Senate) The silver bill was taken up and Mr. Plumb addressed the Senate. He thought the chance for the passage of the bill at the present session had not improved by the performance of the last two weeks.

He asserted that the circulation to-day was $240,000,000 less than the framers of the federal legislation of 1875 anticipated, although the commercial business of the country had doubled in that time. The people demanded that a very considerable increase in the value of currency was necessary.

Mr. Plumb spoke on the silver bill in connection with the question of protection. The Senate had been appealed to yesterday by the Senator from New York (Mr. Hancock) against the bill in the sacred name of protection. He would not call it a fetish, although he did not know what he would call it before he got through. Silver was an American production, a much larger production than many others which were to be protected by duties of 200 to 300 per cent. under the coming tariff bill. The bill was laid over, and the Senate took up and passed several bills of minor importance, and, at 3 o'clock, adjourned.

House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 6.—The House met at eleven o'clock this morning and debate began at once on the silver bill.

Mr. Lend, of Minn., said the increase of circulation advanced prices, the shrinkage of circulation diminished them. The great mass of the people demanded that silver should be restored to its former position. The people understood the question and could think and reason as well as members of Congress.

Mr. Flower, of New York, spoke entirely in behalf of a constitutional amendment for the election by the people of officials who are now appointed.

Mr. Walker, of Massachusetts, denied that there was business depression because of low prices. There was not a solitary fact that justified the statements made in favor of free coinage. There was never a day since the sun shone on earth when a farmer could pay his debts with as few days work as he could to day. Prices had been going down for one hundred years. It was an absolute disgrace to the House to hear the rot that was talked here. He asserted that there was not another business in the country that could have had as much over-production as the farming industry, and get anything for its goods. He would vote for the bill because he knew that the members of the House, for the past twenty years, for the purpose of re-election, had urged and encouraged the people in their folly, until they had come to such a state of mind that something must be done or they would break members up. Any man or party that put the country on a silver basis would be sunk in eternal infamy.

Mr. Blount, of Georgia, contended that the demonetization of silver had cast a blighting curse upon everybody but the capitalist.

Mr. Bland, of Missouri, protested against the denial of the right of the minority to offer amendments.

Mr. Kerr, of Iowa, advocated the bill as a long step in the right direction.

Mr. Siskier, of North Carolina, denounced as a crime the demonetization of silver in 1873, but said that it would not compare with the enormous sin which this Congress would be guilty of if it deprived silver of its money functions.

Mr. McKee, of Arkansas, referring to the attitude of President Cleveland on the silver question, said that Mr. Cleveland was not in accord with the sentiment of a large majority of his party.

At the conclusion of Mr. McKee's remarks the House, at 3 o'clock, took a recess until 5 o'clock, the evening session to be for general debate on the silver bill.

FINE FISHING.

BEAUFORT, N. C., June 6.—Near Cape Lookout to-day, over 5,000 large blue flab were caught, weighing, some 10 to 12 pounds each. Never before were such fish caught here.

A Village Swept by a Cyclone.

NORTH CAROLINA AND VIRGINIA HISTORICAL.

(Richmond Dispatch.)

The address of Mr. W. H. S. BURGWIN at the commencement exercises of the North Carolina University at Chapel Hill, on Wednesday, was a production of far more than ordinary importance, as it was delivered of an able man, and the aim was to impress upon the people the necessity of preserving the memorials of the past and transmitting to posterity a just and impartial history of the State. He pleaded for the establishment of a separate chair of history at the University, and from some researches made by him was able to show that North Carolina has by no means received the credit to which she is entitled for the part she took in the Revolution.

It was stated by him as a somewhat remarkable fact that upon the adoption of the Federal Constitution, one of the amendments requested by North Carolina, but which failed of adoption, was to prohibit Congress from "interfering in the times, places, and manner of holding elections for Senators or Representatives, or either of them."

It was with proper deliberation that North Carolina seceded; but Mr. BURGWIN presents figures to show that she went into the war with great heartiness, and out of a voting population of 115,000 in 1861 she equipped and sent to the field 125,000 fighting men. He claims for her that she sent more soldiers to the field in proportion to her male population than any Southern State, and lost more in killed and wounded than any.

The address concluded with an appeal to the alumni to aid in the establishment of a chair of history, where the memorials of the glories of the State should be gathered, and with an invocation to those graduating not to leave North Carolina, but to remain at home and help to make the State prosperous and great.

All the arguments—and they are many and weighty—that Mr. BURGWIN advances in favor of giving prominence to this important branch of learning applies with equal force to Virginia. We should, however, prefer to see as the initial step in a new beginning to rescue from oblivion or unfriendly or unappreciative hands a history of the United States fitted for common schools; a book written and revised by persons in full sympathy with our traditions, achievements, and aspirations. If there is such an one in existence and worthy of general adoption it should be put into every school house in Virginia.

The Hon. JEFFERSON DAVIS said some months before he died that a great many so-called histories had been submitted to him for his inspection, but that when ever (and it was nearly always the case) he looked into the volume and found that the battle of Lexington was magnified into a grand engagement and the battle of the Cowpens belittled into a trifling skirmish, he immediately cast aside the work as unworthy of serious consideration.

In like manner the landing of the Pilgrims upon Plymouth Rock often has been made the pivotal point in our country's history, whereas the settlement of Jamestown, which occurred thirteen years before and was of superior moment, is counted of no great consequence.

When it comes to the war of 1861-65 it is possible for few, if any, Northern men to present our side of the case with exactness. We believe that in some of the Northern histories now in vogue, the authors have honestly endeavored to do us justice, and they have failed only because the head could not supply the lack of HEART. The man who writes our history exceptably must have his heart in it. Now, far be it from our purpose wholly to condemn all existing school histories; but we submit that we are justified in saying that better books are to be hoped for and doubtless will be produced, and the earlier Southern youth are taught the distinction between "treason" and "secession" the better it will be.

We are not doing all that we can and should do in this respect. If any one doubts this statement let him catechize the average school-boy or girl upon some of the simplest subjects connected with the late war and ascertain—as he will—how little has been taught concerning the men and measures of our great struggle.

THE U. S. CIRCUIT COURT.

Investigating Election Frauds—True Bills Not Found in Some Cases—A True Bill in Others—Some Very Interesting Notes.

The United States Circuit Court has been in session here some days, Judge A. S. Seymour presiding.

Most of the time so far has been consumed in dealing with various petty illicit distilling cases, and there has been nothing of special interest till the last day or two, when some investigations were begun into certain charges of election frauds. These are beginning to create something of a stir.

The charges so far have been presented by District Attorney C. A. Cook, and are against election officers in the counties of Warren and Northampton.

In the Warren cases Mr. Cook was summoned before the grand jury as a witness, and this circumstance disqualified him for prosecuting the cases. The government then began to cast about for another prosecuting officer.

It is authoritatively said that good fees were offered Col. Thos. C. Fuller to prosecute the charges, but he promptly declined the offer. Then an effort was made to get Mr. F. H. Busbee to do the prosecuting work, and he declined also.

The government then arranged with Judge D. L. Russell, of Wilmington, to come up here to do this business, and he arrived here soon after the court opened. He was sworn in as assistant to the district attorney for the prosecution of charges of fraud in election cases.

The work began. One of the charges brought by District Attorney Cook before the grand jury was against the following citizens of Warren: J. T. Northcutt, J. H. Bullock, W. P. Massenburg, M. T. Duke, P. G. Alston and J. P. Leach. They were charged with failing to perform duty and making false election returns. The grand jury, after investigating the matter, failed to find a true bill, and this charge was dropped. There was another charge against thirteen poll holders of Northampton county, and the grand jury failed to find a true bill in this case also.

But there was another charge presented. This was against the following citizens of Northampton: R. S. Baham, J. H. Wood, J. Grant, Alex. Boone and Henry Jackson.

They were also charged with making false election returns, and in this case the grand jury found a true bill.

The investigation of these charges has created considerable talk and comment. It has been alleged that it is a scheme of the republican party to catch up a number of leading citizens and make an effort to prevent their working in the coming election. But this kind of talk found a check in the fact that both the above counties elected republicans last year, and it was a little difficult to see why the republicans should prosecute the poll holders of counties in which they were successful. Then it was alleged that it was only Democratic poll holders who were being charged with fraud; but this charge is rather too weak to stand. It is said that the district attorney assumes that the parties against whom the charges are brought are of both parties, and that he is prosecuting regardless of party affiliation. He is reported to have said that he does not know the politics of the parties charged with fraud.

There may or may not be a "scheme" in these proceedings; but there is, it has not shown up very plainly yet.

DR. SPARROW.

His Method of Reviving a hen Sparrow That had Fainted.

The English sparrow has long since become numerous, and it now appears that the bird is attaining a high degree of civilization. This appears from the following facts:

One hanged himself in Raleigh not long since—the proceeding being witnessed by several people.

One is authentically reported to have gotten drunk in Salisbury some time ago from drinking some brandy that had been spilled on the street.

In a northern town a sparrow is reported to have gone to the happy home of two other sparrows, attacked the head of the family, pecked out his eye and driven him off altogether, and then gone back and alienated the affections of the lady of the nest.

These are common occurrences among people said to be civilized, and the sparrow is therefore taking on civilization.

But a Raleigh sparrow is taking on the features of Raleigh civilization in a philanthropic or sympathetic way. Yesterday a female sparrow while struggling to lift a piece of paper from the street and fly away with it, fainted dead away on the pavement—presumably from heat or exhaustion. This was near a little indentation in the street where some water had collected. A male sparrow was on the spot in a moment and successfully performed the revivification act. He seemed to take in the situation at a glance. He pushed the sick little bird into the water and splashed it with its wings until it fully revived. The sun was hot enough to dry the plumage of both birds very quickly, and then both flew away apparently happy and healthy.

THE SILVER QUESTION.

THE NATIONAL SILVER CONVENTION WATCHING CONGRESS.

They are keeping an eye on Gold Monometallism and Threaten to Make Silver a Campaign Issue.

(By United Press.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 6.—The executive committee of the St. Louis National Silver convention is now in session in Washington, watching the progress of the silver legislation.

Apprehensive that a satisfactory measure may be defeated by combinations of gold mono-metalists, it has been determined in that event, to call another national silver convention, in which the Farmers' Alliance and all other industrial organizations will be invited to join with bi-metalists everywhere, with a view to sinking politics and making the silver question the controlling issue in future campaigns, and advising that nobody be supported for Congress or the Presidency who is not in favor of the full restoration of silver to its place as a money metal as it was before the act of 1873.

The committee regard any measure providing for bullion redemption as worse than no legislation at all.

We think the ten acres required will be donated to the company if they will locate the shops here. The Pearson Land Sale.

For property which a month or two ago Mr. Pearson paid $30,000 he has realized between $80,000 and $90,000, and the promise is that a portion of the city which seemed to be going without improvement of any sort will become the field for future extension of business. Mr. Pearson has already made extensive improvements in opening and grading streets and he will also build several handsome houses on lots which he has retained. The diversity of interest secured by the sale of lots to various parties will further assure improvements. Among the purchasers are some of our most enterprising business men.

COMPLIMENTARY BANQUET.

A Splendid Affair at the Hygeia Hotel in Honor of Warren G. Elliott, Esq.

(Norfolk Landmark.)

The lovely banquet room of the Hygeia Hotel was the scene last Saturday evening of a brilliant and most fitting entertainment, the occasion being a complimentary dinner tendered Warren G. Elliott, Esq., by a number of his fellow members of the Norfolk Bar.

Mr. Elliott, with his family, will, in a short while leave our midst to take up their permanent residence in Wilmington, N. C., where the duties of his prominent and responsible position as President of the Wilmington & Weldon Railroad require his almost constant presence, and his friends in the profession were unwilling to allow him to go without offering to him some expression of the esteem in which they held him for his splendid ability as a lawyer and man of affairs, for his loyalty as a friend and for his many and attractive social qualities.

The method adopted for this expression was a most fortunate selection; for in no other way could the feelings of his friends be so forcibly impressed upon him, in no other way could they so fully enjoy honoring him, as when gathered face to face around the festive board with him as the distinguished guest of the occasion.

When the cloth had been removed, Charles Sharp, Esq., who presided as toast-master, in opening the toast-list, spoke in a most feeling and graceful manner to "The Ocean."

The next toast was to "Our Guest—he takes to his new field of labor the esteem of his brethren of the bar, and their confident prediction of additional success." Mr. Elliott made a handsome response to this, his speech being a happy admixture of pathos and humor.

The only other toasts were to "The Bench," responded to by Judge Robert W. Hughes; to "The Bar," responded to by Judge T. S. Garnett; and to "Our Clients," responded to by Judge D. Tucker Brooke. They all came well up to the mark as post-prandial speakers, their speeches being well considered and well timed.

When the regular toasts had been completed, a number of impromptu sentiments were offered, meeting with ready responses. There was a universal expression of regret at the departure of Mr. Elliott, while the railroad company was cordially congratulated upon acquiring his services.

(Asheville Citizen, June 5th.)

Miss May Etta Troy, of this city, daughter of ex-State Senator W. C. Troy, and Mr. H. A. Wyche, station agent at Waynesville, were married at the Central Methodist church at 11 o'clock this morning. The church was handsomely decorated with wild flowers and evergreens. Mr. W. A. Winburn acted as best man, and Miss Ella Troy, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The bride was attired in a grey striped cashmere traveling dress, trimmed with plush, and silver buttons. She carried a bouquet of heliotrope, pond lilies and white roses. The maid of honor wore a heliotrope colored dress trimmed with white satin, and carried a bouquet of heliotrope, lilies and colored roses.

The bride entered the church with her father and walked up the left aisle to the pulpit, where she was joined by the groom and best man, who entered from the right aisle. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. F. Tillet, of Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn. Messrs. F. A. Sondley, H. M. Roberts, W. H. Hardin and E. P. Foster acted as ushers.

After the ceremony, which was witnessed by a large number of friends of the couple, the party partook of a luncheon at the house of the bride's father, and left on the 2:07 train for Raleigh and Fayetteville to visit friends. They will be absent two weeks, and will return to Waynesville to live.
