NUMBER ONE.

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 20th.--I have written so frequently during the past few months on a special feature of the McKinley tariff bill, and a recent communication from my pen to the Baltimore Sun having been wired to the New York journals by the Associated Press and reproduced in several Southern papers, and the further fact that Senator Vance's name was appended to relevant portions of the same, and came to be printed in the Congressional Record, a letter to him, in which I had stated the specific clause of the bill to which I had addressed my communications, and asked investigations, and a reasonably pertinent question the ability of the paper to yield entirely fresh material for its paper, the preparation of a special survey at the request of the Baltimore Sun.

I have frequently heard Mr. Vance on the hustings in North Carolina, but, until the recent tariff debates in the Senate, I had found no opportunity to estimate his abilities when surrounded by more than eighty of his Senatorial peers; nor to judge of what to my mind was a revelation, that he was possibly the foremost man in America in what is known as "running debate," also in discussion, which I grieve from exact portraiture left those Senators with only special preparation for the regular order of the hour helpless in a tourney with Republican Senators from constituencies engaged in the industrial arts.

During the recent debate and while Senator Sherman was occupying the floor, I introduced Senator Vance in the lobby of the Senate to one of the largest metal goods manufacturers in this country--one whose business and working people were in great peril because of the design of Congress to tax the raw material necessary for its existence and their employment beyond reason and to the degree of exorbitancy. When Mr. Vance had withdrawn to his duties in the chamber the manufacturer remarked with surprise at the Senator's familiarity with not only the scope but the minutiae of the industries of this country and also his exact information regarding the mechanical arts of Europe. The fact is, that in the course of his life he has been engaged in the manufacture of tin plate, and that he has been substantially congratulated by the North Carolina press in sending to the Senate man who was more than a match for the Senators from the BUNN AND McIVER.

The Discussion at the University Between The Congressional Candidates. (Special Cor. STATE CHRONICLE.)

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Oct. 20, 1890.--On Saturday, the candidates of Fourth district, for a seat in the 52d Congress met here. The county candidates, being present, were permitted to announce themselves before the discussion began. It was nearly three before they were done, and the crowd were anxiously waiting "to hear Bunn and McIver."

It was Captain Bunn's time to open the discussion. His voice was not in good trim, as he was very hoarse. He began by stating that nothing but stern duty could induce him to speak. That duty was twofold: To render an account of his stewardship, and to tell the people why they should maintain the Democratic party. His opponent had charged him "with having done nothing." How could he do anything? How could the Representatives of the Democratic party do anything in the last session of Congress? Every right due them as Representatives of the American people had been abused. Deliberation rest being allowed by the Speaker, they could only serve their constituents by breaking a quorum. This they did, and for six days prevented the passage of the Conger bill. Had it been in his power, in the same way, would he have prevented the passage of the McKinley bill, and to-day "you farmers would be paying forty cents more for cotton ties than you did a month ago." Of course he did everything in his power to prevent the passage of the Force bill, but the Dictator and his party willed it to become a law, and it was passed by the House of Representatives.

The party that favored these measures had delegated Prof. McIver to represent it before the people of the Fourth district. He had not, however, confined himself to that party. He was pretending to represent the Alliance! When or where did the Alliance give him his credentials? Was it done in Raleigh, when a negro nominated him, and another seconded that nomination? Did those negroes and revenue officers represent the Alliance? Did you, members of the Alliance, send them?

Prof. McIver had been asked if Mr. Strowd, his county-man, (and brother in the Alliance,) should be nominated by the Durham convention, and Dr. Grissom by the Republicans, who would he support. His reply was: "Oh, I'd have to stick to my party." Yet he asks them to support him regardless of party. Capt. Bunn denied that Prof. McIver, or any other Republican could represent the Alliance, for one is wedded to protection, the other is demanding tariff reform. The Democratic is the reform party, and to it the Alliance must look for aid and relief.

Capt. Bunn spoke an hour, and was followed by Prof. McIver.

He came as the representative of the Republican party, and the Alliance or "farmers' movement." This movement was really a revolution, and like all other revolutions, had a deep seated cause. That cause was the corrupt legislation which had been favored by men in both parties. The Alliance was after them. (Here he produced a copy of last week's Progressive Farmer and showed the cartoon on the first page.)

He read some extracts from it. Among others the greetings of South Carolina, (the "hot-bed" of secession,) to bleeding Kansas, asking peace, and promising the destruction of sectional prejudices. He was anxious for this, and had joined the Republicans after the war in hope it might be accomplished. Capt. Bunn had arraigned the Republican Senate for failing to pass the Blair bill. That bill had not been passed because the Southern Democratic Senators by their votes had said the South did not want it.

Prof. McIver did not consume all his time, for everybody, except some of the students, four white citizens, and twelve or fifteen negroes had left the ground. I do not think any of the Alliancemen were formerly supporters of Capt. Bunn will support Prof. McIver. If they intend to do so, they did not show it yesterday by their action.

Some of the white Republicans here will support Bunn, but the negro vote will be almost a unit for McIver. After listening attentively to the two speeches yesterday, I am not surprised at this.

I can see no reason why any Republican should support him. In his speech, there was not one word in favor of that party. He attempted no defense of any measure adopted or enacted by it. I was more than anxious to give this old gentleman credit for honesty, but with out any prejudice, I cannot do it. He is on the Republican ticket, and it is his duty to sustain their principles. He does not even attempt it. He announces himself as the Republican candidate, then in the next sentence advocates the principles of the Alliance which are distinctly Democratic. If his principles are what he says they are, he should be in the Democratic ranks supporting the regular nominee.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL.

We hear that Mrs. Chas. Price has been chosen as lady manager from Western North Carolina for the World's Fair at Chicago. A better selection could not have been made. Mrs. Price is a woman of rare gifts, cultured, refined, and with good executive ability.--Salisbury Herald.

Your correspondent hears a great many compliments paid Mr. Eugene C. Beddingfield's work in the campaign. His speech at Raleigh during the convention of the Young Men's Democratic club put him on a high plane, and his subsequent work has only added to the impression as regards his ability. He is one of the "coming men."

WINSTON-SALEM NEWS.

The Brower Campaign--Vance--Rev. Dr. Henderson--a Negro Row. (Special Cor. of State Chronicle.)

WINSTON, N. C. Oct. 20.--Saturday night John Brower's colored Lieutenant, R. H. W. Leak, editor of the Royal Knight, spoke here to a large audience of colored voters in the court house. This speech was calculated to counteract the ones made by Moore and Granderson here sometime ago, a full report of which was sent to the CHRONICLE, but you may bet your proof roller that he by no means set everything straight for his boss. When he began speaking the same hissing was heard that Moore received, showing the fact clearly that the audience was a divided one. Leak's speech was no such one as Granderson made, though some better than Moore's, judging by the wind that was wasted.

He started out by an appeal to their better natures and the same old songs of how the colored man was treated by the white man in slavery times was repeated. Then he branched off into every direction mostly in abuse of Moore, the colored man's candidate. Moore's whole effort was in exposing Brower's trickery, his bad treatment of his colored constituency, but Leak evaded that subject and hardly touched upon Brower at all to uphold him. Moore did not abuse another republican save Brower, and instead of Leak's trying to uphold him and his deeds in Congress, he kept whipping the devil around the stump by enlarging all the dead republicans and what they did. His speech was no reply to Moore and Granderson's and no one would have ever imagined that it was unless it had been told him.

Of course the Brower negroes cheered him, but still after the great effort of this lying preacher (for he told some whoppers) the colored voters went away yelling a they did before, some for Brower and some for Moore.

Our people are very much put out about not getting a speech from Vance this year. He is sent all around us, but we are not favored by the committee. It seems that they should know by this time that Forsyth is the most doubtful county in the State, and that the records show that every campaign that Senator Vance has spoken here, the Democrats won the majority of county officers. He would receive one grand ovation--such as Winston certainly can give, and I write this at the instigation of several good Democrats, who see the situation.

Sunday at the Centenary Methodist Church P. S. Norman called for all those who desired to join to come forward and take the vows of the church. Mr. L. L. Hendren came forward and was received. Mr. Hendren will be remembered by the thousand of ministers in North Carolina as having been once an able presiding elder in the conference, but who was accused of violating a commandment and was expelled therefrom. He has been leading an upright life ever since and has been genuinely converted. It will be a source of rejoicing to many throughout the State to know the fact of his return to God.

Saturday afternoon at a bar room on the edge of town, a row was caused between blacks and whites who were present. Several were slashed up terribly, and Silas Riggs, a white man, was cut all to pieces by a negro named Scales, and is now dying. Great indignation is felt and a posse, I learn, is pursuing Scales, who has fled.

IN THE SECOND.

Mr. J. M. Mewborne Announces Himself as a Democratic Candidate for Congress. (Special to STATE CHRONICLE.)

KINSTON, N. C., Oct. 20.--Mr. J. M. Mewborne, of Lenoir county has announced himself as a regular Democratic candidate for Congress in the Second District. He requests all Democratic papers to publish the same and appeals to the voters of the Second District to rally to his support.

J. W. GRAINGER.

Crime of a Jealous and Disreputable Woman.

(By United Press.)

RANSOM, Mich., Oct. 20.--Mrs. John Barber, who came here to prevail on her husband to return to his home, was stabbed to the heart by "Big Sadie," the woman with whom he was living. The Barbers lived at Lima, O. and a few days ago Barber deserted his wife and 6 children and came to this place with "Big Sadie," a disreputable woman of Lima. He was followed by his wife, who reached here yesterday. She went to the house where her husband and the woman were staying and besought him to return with her to their home. He seemed willing to do so, when the woman interfered, and in a fit of jealousy plunged a knife into Mrs. Barber's breast.

A Double Tragedy.

(By United Press.)

DANSVILLE, Ind., Oct. 20.--Near Blairsville Co., some 13 miles from this city, Henry Kron and his wife quarrelled. The husband took a double barrelled shot gun and shot his wife in the presence of their three children, who were powerless to interfere. Kron passed into the next room and with the remaining load shot the top of his own head off. Kron was a well to do farmer.

A Disaster at Sea.

(By United Press.)

PORT HURON, Mich., Oct. 20.--The steam barge Annie Young, caught fire at Lexington in Lake Huron at 9:45 this morning, and nine members of the crew who tried to escape in a small boat, were drowned. Thirteen others in a small boat were picked up and saved.

ASHEVILLE NEWS.

An Increase of 460 Per Cent. in Population--Politics in the West. (Special Cor. of STATE CHRONICLE.)

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Oct. 19, 1890.--I noticed in your letter from Winston-Salem a few days since, a statement to the effect that the population of Winston-Salem had increased more than that of any town in the State. Asheville is ever ready to give Winston-Salem credit for her push and energy, but your correspondent errs in such a statement. Asheville justly claims the greatest increase, and the statistics of the two towns will show it. In 1880 the population of Asheville was 2,560. From the census just taken by the city authorities, the population is eleven thousand nine hundred and twenty-five (11,925), giving an increase of 460 per cent. Asheville also has two suburbs--West Asheville and Victoria--if these were included the population would run up to 13,000. From these facts it is easily seen that Asheville's increase is the greater.

If the people of the State would work as hard as the Democrats of Buncombe and the remainder of the Ninth District, there would be no doubt about white supremacy and the abolition of Radicalism. The oldest men here say they have never seen such interest, and if "Teumseh" Crawford is not elected there will be a great surprise. Crawford is a second Zeb Vance on the stump. He has made Ewart so ashamed that he has tried in various ways to leave the canvass. They are out west now. In Swain county a few days ago they addressed the Indians. Chief Smith and almost all his tribe will vote the Democratic ticket. The entire Indian population of Swain voted for Ewart in 1888, but they are dissatisfied with the Republican administration of affairs at the reservation and will support Crawford.

The Republicans in Mitchell county are becoming desperate. They can't arouse enthusiasm, so they issued a circular announcing that Richmond Pearson would speak a number of times next week. Mr. Pearson denies the statement and says he will not fill the appointments; his position, as stated a few weeks ago is one of absolute political independence.

The speech of Hon. R. B. Glenn, of Winston, to the Democrats of Asheville last week was one of the finest delivered in this part of the State during the campaign. Mr. Glenn made numerous friends here. Every one was pleased.

Hon. H. A. Gudger is home again after canvassing eastern Carolina. He reports good news and is much encouraged.

The departure of Rev. G. C. Rankin, who has been pastor of the Central Methodist church here for the past three years was keenly felt by the entire city of Asheville. Dr. Rankin goes to Kansas City, Mo. He is an able, Christian man. The good he did here can never be told. He was loved by all. Too much can not be said in praise of the good he accomplished among the poorer classes.

MRS. GOULD ACQUITTED AT MURPHY.

(Special to Asheville Citizen.)

MURPHY, N. C., Oct. 18.--Mrs. Lillian M. Gould, on trial here, charged with the murder of her husband, has been acquitted. She will now go on the stage. Gould was an Englishman of good family, who married beneath his station, and neglected his wife. For six years Gould had been in England, while his wife, who was an English girl, a beggarly allowance, was in ignorance of his whereabouts. She was permitted to come to him in Georgia last March, when the couple went to Murphy, N. C., where they lived in a house in an isolated spot. On the 7th of July the couple were drunk, and the wife in a drunken frenzy, stabbed her husband with a toy dagger, inflicting the fatal wound from which he died that night.

Gov. Hill, of New York, Going West.

(By United Press.)

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 20.--Gov. Hill accompanied by Assistant Adjutant General McEwen left on the 1:15 train this afternoon for the west. Before going he said to a United Press reporter: "I am going into Congressman McKinley's district in Ohio to tell the enthusiastic people over there what we in the east know to be the effect of the new tariff law, and what we know will be the effect in the west. I go at the request of the managers of the Democratic State campaign there, and I shall make at least two speeches, probably more."

Tariff Reciprocity.

(By United Press.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 20.--An address and resolutions passed by the Havana chamber of commerce favoring reciprocity, with the United States has been received at the state department. It is addressed to the minister of the colonies and treats of the reform of the Spanish tariff laws. The financial condition of Cuba is referred to as one which far from being prosperous and which may become even worse than it now is if the changes made in our tariffs are not such as to correspond with that reform.

Suicide in Washington.

(By United Press.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 20.--A. B. Mullet was supervising architect of the Treasury from 1862, until 1873, committed suicide at his home here about six o'clock this evening by blowing his brains out with a pistol. Melancholia with suicidal intent, the result of business reverses, undoubtedly led to the rash and fatal act.

GOING HOME TO VOTE.

A Great Exodus of Clerks From The Various Departments to the Polls. (By United Press.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 20.--There has been great political activity among the department clerks here for the past twelve months, and the probability is that four or five thousand of them will go home to vote at the coming November elections. A score or more Republican State Associations have been organized and their members will probably go home en masse to vote. Never was greater activity and energy put forth in getting every qualified Republican voter home for November elections, and the exodus promises to be something unusual. Thousands of votes will be polled in distant States that have not been cast before in years. So great does this exodus promise to be, that the railroads have reduced the rates for one round trip to a half-fare rate to all points east of New York and west of Chicago, these rates being allowed only to voters holding certificates of membership in some State association. Maryland being close to the national capital, will probably attract the greatest number of visitors of her native sons and voters on election day. Five hundred members of the Maryland State Association promise to go home and vote, and probably as many more Maryland Republicans, not members, will also go home. The New York State Association promises to send 600, Pennsylvania 500, Ohio 300 Virginia 500 and other States proportionately as many.

On Wednesday, Oct. 15th, 1890, at the residence of the bride's parents, by Rev. J. W. Carter, D. D., Mr. Chas. H. Kayler to Miss Elizabeth H. Christophers, the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Christophers of this city.

The CHRONICLE extends its congratulations to Thos. E. Gilman, Esq., of Jacksonville, Onslow county, who was happily married to Miss Lena E. Montford, daughter of Dr. J. W. Montford. The ceremony took place in the Missionary Baptist church at Ward's Mill Sunday afternoon, Oct. 19th, at one o'clock.
