The Ohio Republican Convention. By Southern Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, June 8.—A few minutes after ten o'clock Gen. Grosvenor called the Republican convention to order and Rev. Dr. N. H. Holmes introduced as permanent chairman, made a three-minute speech.

The following incumbents were re-nominated by acclamation: Lieut. Gov. A. L. Harris; Treasurer, W. T. Cope; Attorney General, John K. Richards; Judge Supreme Court, Joseph P. Bradbury; Member Board Public Works, Frank J. McCulloch.

An eagle was adopted as the party emblem, and at 12:30 the Convention adjourned sine die.

PHILADELPHIA, June 7.—Ceremonies preliminary to the casting of the new Liberty Bell were held in Independence Hall today.

GERMS IN THE MAILS. By Southern Associated Press. WASHINGTON, June 8.—The first action of the office Department to prevent the spread of cholera by transmission of the germs through the mails was taken today.

My attention has been recently called to an article published in one of the medical journals of this country, in which the author, an eminent physician, offers to make analytical examinations of persons supposed to be affected with cholera, and suggests that if these specimens be bottled and tightly sealed they may be sent to him by mail.

As this article has probably obtained a wide publicity, and may therefore induce many physicians to attempt compliance with the writer's suggestion, I think it proper to announce that disease germs, discharges of any kind from diseased persons, or other things of like character, no matter how securely put up, are of the nature of poison, and extremely dangerous to health, and that they are therefore absolutely unmailable.

Postmasters should see that no such things are allowed entry into the mails.

Surrender of a Murderer. NORFOLK, Va., June 7.—Special—Eddie Anderson, nineteen years old, surrendered himself to the Norfolk police today. He claims he committed murder in self-defense in Saratoga, N. C., last December.

A reward of $300 was offered for his capture by the North Carolina State authorities. He had been roaming about Virginia since the crime.

FINANCIAL QUESTIONS.

CONGRESSMEN INTERVIEWED ON IMPORTANT SUBJECTS.

The Repeal of the Sherman Silver Law—The Income Tax—Repeal of the State Bank Tax.

By Southern Associated Press.

New York, June 8.—The World interviewed nearly all the members of Congress by telegraph on the following questions:

- 1. Do you, with the present information, favor the repeal of the Sherman Silver Law?
2. Do you favor the income tax?
3. Do you favor the repeal of the State bank tax?

The World in reporting their answers says:

Many of the answers deviate so far from plain "yes" and "no" and involve so many qualifications that no tabular statement would fairly represent the opinions they express. The important facts shown are that to the first question: Do you, with your present information favor the repeal of the Sherman silver law? There are eighty-six representatives who say practically "yes," while only eighteen say "no."

The World had already polled the Senate on the silver bill, and March 6, last printed a table showing that the body stood for repeal thirty-nine, against repeal twenty-eight, noncommittal sixteen. It will be noticed that several who were non-committal then are now in favor of the repeal. There seems to be no doubt that nearly two-thirds of the Senate will vote that way.

United States vs. L. L. Hines, Johnston county; indictment, illicit distilling; case given to jury, and when our report closed no verdict had been returned.

United States vs. E. F. Moore, Cumberland county; indictment, President National Bank, embezzling funds. Motion to quash bill of indictment denied; jury empaneled.

Pending verdict in the Hines case, and the examination of witnesses in the Moore case (Fayetteville Bank case) court adjourned until this morning at 9:30 o'clock.

Little Margaret Smedes. The annual concert at St. Mary's was a great success as usual. The most remarkable feature of the program, however, in the judgment of the writer, was the performance of the "Venetian Boat Song" of Liszt, by little Margaret Smedes only twelve years of age.

Some Attractions to Be at Chicago.

Mr. H. R. Jacobs probably controls and manages more theatres than any other man on the globe. Therefore the title given him by the press, "The Amusement King," and his theatres as the "Imperial Circuit," are synonymous with his high managerial ability.

No finer temple of amusement exists anywhere than the Alhambra, situated on State street and Archer avenue. The cost of this building was over $1,000,000, and for its purpose is complete.

The well-known theatre, H. R. Jacobs' Academy, Halstead and Madison streets, will be occupied by the famous Hanlon Brothers' spectacular "Fantasma," and the most gorgeous electric spectacular production of this comedy pantomime will be given, while at the popular family house H. R. Jacobs' Clark Street Theatre (North Side, only one block from the bridge) Tony Pastor and his world-famous New York Company, augmented by the choicest European celebrities and novelty special features money can secure will be the permanent attraction.

TRINITY COLLEGE.

THE COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES IN PROGRESS.

Col. Waddell's Admirable Address—The Baccalaureate Sermon—The Alumni Address.

DURHAM, June 7.

At 11 o'clock today, before the graduating class, students and friends of Trinity College, and a good audience of the people of Durham, Rev. R. N. Sledd, D. D., of Richmond, Va., preached the Baccalaureate Sermon. His text was taken from Chronicles, Book I, ch. 28, and 10th verse: "Take heed now, for the Lord hath chosen thee to build an house for the sanctuary: be strong, and do it."

He spoke for an hour very eloquently and forcibly upon this subject applied to man's character. He said that before the death of David his son Solomon was made king to rule together with David; that when David was on his death bed he gave utterance to these words to Solomon: that Solomon was to carry out these as a command of God. Then he made the points: that God has a work for every individual, and every individual is duty-bound to do that work; that there is nothing, however insignificant, but that has a design and value; that no creature can do the work of any other creature; that men differ in talents, acquirements and in positions in life, but that they agree "every man is a builder"; that intellect, sensibilities and will are the great forces in shaping human character; that these three make up the moral tone of man; that appearances will not test. He made a magnificent comparison between the temple of Christ and the temple of man's character. He said that the one is perfect with a variety of perfections and grand in every respect, but that the other is covered with four ruins and that underneath it is a destroying element. His contrast of these two, as well as that of the soul and body, showed him to be a master of description as well as a close discernor into the truths of life.

Then he addressed the graduating class. He told them to be bold and enduring, for they must certainly meet opposition; that they were going out from Trinity College, but not out of school, for they were entering God's school. He asked them to remember that God is with them in all things, and that he would protect and guide them.

Hon. A. M. Waddell, of Wilmington, N. C., addressed the Literary Societies at 4 p. m. His subject was "Socialism in America." He said that the foreign element in the United States is powerful; that if properly guided the social element will be of great value, but if not, it will bring tremendous force for bad; that throughout our country there is a great element of dissatisfaction; that the Southern States have not as yet been most affected by Socialism; that we are now being strongly moved by economic and social theories and questions; that the time will not be so long when we shall be greatly influenced by this element; that the increase of property in the South in the last ten years has been much larger in proportion to that of the North and West; that the South has been most prosperous in cotton raising and manufacturing; that soon on account of this rapid growth we must contend with the socialistic influence; that its territory heretofore has been west of the Mississippi; that socialism had its origin in the war, the centralization at Washington—in short in "paternalism" in the United States; that its origin is not old; that everything since the war has looked to the general government; that the United States government has helped in almost every way, and thereby the people look to the government and do not look to themselves at all; that social legislation is being made all over the country; that the Supreme Court of the United States—the greatest gift of our constitution, has, it seems, been yielding to its influence; that the agricultural classes are always the last to be rocked by socialism; that socialism is the most remarkable power in the country; that it needs the effort of every American citizen to guard our constitution and government against socialism. Associated capital is as powerful as associated labor, that the millennium is not near yet. Socialism in our country is against good government and destructive to religion; that it may be combated by making individuals more strong—"Individualism"; that office holders seem to act as if they had all the power and knowledge.

His address was live and of interest to every one. He spoke very eloquently and forcibly on his subject. Trinity College students will long be influenced by his prophetic words.

At 8 o'clock the alumni address was delivered by W. P. Andrews, Esq., of Atlanta, Ga. His subject was "The Returns of Capital Invested in Education." He thinks that money spent in this way brings great and lasting returns, that it brings returns in bringing up society and business to a higher standard point, that it is the best possible investment. He spoke very forcibly of the success of the administration of Dr. Crowell and with great admiration and gratitude of Messrs. W. Duke and Julian S. Carr. He thinks that Foot Ball has done much in building up Trinity College. He is a firm believer in college athletics, and says that it does not damage the moral, religious or intellectual progress. His speech was most excellent.

The Buildings at the World's Fair.

H. A. London in Chatham Record.

The great buildings at the World's Fair are thirteen in number, and will strike every visitor with wonder and admiration at their immense size and architectural beauty. The name of each building indicates the purpose for which it is used. For instance, the Agricultural building contains all the agricultural exhibits, such as corn, wheat, oats, fruits, vegetables, &c., while the mining building contains mineral ores, precious stones, &c., and the art building contains pictures, statuary, &c. The largest building is called the Manufactures and Liberal Arts building, and contains a more miscellaneous exhibit than any other building, consisting of man's skillful handiwork in every conceivable form and design. If there was no other building, except this, and no other exhibits but those contained in it, the visitor could there see enough to repay him for his trip to the World's Fair. In it are the varied exhibits of every clime and country in the civilized world, and its immensity can be appreciated only by seeing it in person. In the first place this building is the largest that has ever before been constructed, the ground floor covering an area of thirty acres. Its dimensions are 1,687 feet in length and 787 feet in width, while the height, clear from the floor, is 203 feet. It is said that 1,000 dwellings, each 25 by 50 feet in size, can be placed within its walls. The floor alone consumed over three million feet of lumber and five car loads of nails. There were forty-one car loads of glass, enough to cover eleven acres, used in this vast building. If any person should undertake to walk through all the aisles of this building he would have several days of steady tramping and become footsore and weary.

Another Duel Fought.

COLUMBIA, S. C., June 7.—A special from Spartanburg says: W. A. Lawrence and Mr. Oderheimer, had a difficulty, in which the law was passed, and it was decided to settle the matter on the field of honor.

Pistols, cartridges, and cartridges were secured and the party repaired to the field for that purpose. Lawrence was shot in the right leg, and the wound is considered serious. Full particulars cannot be obtained as all parties are trying to keep the affair secret.

Half of Fargo Wiped Out.

By Southern Associated Press.

FARGO, N. D., June 7.—During a heavy wind fire broke out here at 2 p. m., and the whole city is threatened. Aid was asked for from Grand Forks and was promptly despatched on a special train at 4:40 p. m. The burned district comprises the business portion of town, and is bounded by the Western Union Telegraph office, the Headquarters Hotel and the North Pacific depot, thence to the Great Northern depot and along the line of the Great Northern Railway to Red River; 225 business houses and residences; 22 hundred people will be made homeless. The fire is not yet under control.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 8.—One half of Fargo, N. D., has been wiped out, only one half of the business houses being left. At 10 o'clock last night the fire was still burning fiercely in a dozen places. The wind had changed to the North and was driving the flames back on the burned district. The block in the middle of the city from Robert St. and front street South, four blocks wide and ten blocks long is a blackened plain of ashes with not a dozen buildings left standing. The fierce south wind drove the flames like a prairie fire. Brick buildings seemed to melt away into heaps of crumbling sand, and it was impossible to force enough water through the main to fight the fire. A conservative estimate of the loss is $3,000,000, with not to exceed one quarter insurance. Over three thousand people are homeless, and it is almost impossible to verify the reports of accidents. James Flynn, eight years old, was reported burned, also three other children. Photographer Gilbert and an unknown man is reported dead. Practically only one hotel is left, the Headquarters. The fire burned all around it but so far it has been saved. Only one restaurant is left in town.
