GENERAL INTELLIGENCE.

Congressional.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—In the House, a motion was made and adopted, that after three ballots the plurality rule should take effect.

Mr. Walker moved to rescind the plurality rule. The motion was rejected by 45 majority. A motion to adjourn was then taken and resulted as follows: Banks 102, Aiken 93, Fuller 14, Wells 2, Campbell 3; necessary to a choice, 108.

Two other ballots were taken, with similar results. The plurality rule next came in order. It was adopted by a majority of nine. Mr. Orr withdrew his name as the Democratic nominee.

The ballot, under the plurality rule, was taken, and resulted as follows: Banks 103, Aiken 100, Fuller 6, Campbell 4, Wells 1. The Clerk of the House declared Mr. Banks elected.

On motion of Mr. Clingman, a resolution was adopted, declaring Mr. Banks elected as Speaker of the House. Mr. Banks was thereupon conducted to the Chair by Messrs. Aiken and Fuller.

Mr. Campbell then made a speech, and the House adjourned.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—A resolution declaring Gen. Wm. Cullum of Tenn. Clerk of the House, was adopted by a vote of 126 to 87.

The Speaker announced to Gen. Cullum his election, and administered the customary oath.

The seats of members were then drawn for and located.

A resolution declaring Mr. Grossberger Sergeant at Arms was introduced, pending which the House adjourned.

Mr. Grossberger has since been elected.

HALIFAX, Jan. 31. The Cunard steamship Arcton, arrived here this evening, with Liverpool dated to Saturday the 19th instant, being a week later.

The news by this arrival is of great importance.

The London Times Vienna correspondent telegraphs, under date of Wednesday, the 16th inst., 10 A. M., that Russia has unconditionally accepted the propositions of the allied powers. This was reported to be authentic and caused immense excitement throughout England. The dispatch was published the next day but a different face upon the affair—being in effect that Russia had only accepted the allied proposals as a basis of negotiation. This slight relaxation of public confidence and less sanguine hopes were now entertained.

Doubts were expressed that Russia had merely accepted the proposals to prolong the negotiations and gain time.

The above is about the sum of all the news. The prospect of a speedy return of peace swallows up all else.

LYNN MARKETS.—Messrs. Brown, Shipley & Co. report an advance in cotton of 3 and 1/2 per cent. The sales of the week were 58,000 bales, of which 5,000 were on speculation and 9,000 for export. The market closed with an active demand on Friday at 44 1/2 for Orleans 64; Middling Orleans 44 1/2; fair Orleans 44; this slightly uplands 44 1/2. The stock in port was 378,000 bales.

Messrs. Richardson, Spence & Co., quote breadstuffs considerably lower. The flour market was unsettled and correct quotations could not be given. Western Corn was nominally 40s, and Ohio 42s, per barrel. Wheat also had declined. Corn was lower and closed dull, with a downward tendency; mixed 40s, per quarter.

EXECUTION OF A SON FOR THE MURDER OF HIS FATHER.—We have already briefly mentioned that Jos. T. Williams was executed at Roxboro', N. C., on Friday of last week, for the murder of his father, a wealthy gentleman formerly of Pittsylvania county, Va. The Milton (N. C.) Chronicle has the following notice of the execution:

On the day of his execution he called a friend or two, in jail, and besought them to join him in a prayer until the last moment of his earthly existence; he sent out a supplication for the prayers of the vast multitude then and there assembled. The hour arriving for his execution, the sheriff, with a bleeding heart and tear-moistened eye, called for him.

Taking Mr. Wm. Lyon (his father's friend and neighbor) by the hand and begging him to go with him and pray for him, he proceeded to the gallows, praying all the way until he arrived in sight of the gallows, when, trembling like a leaf, he gave vent to an expression of feeling that no pen can describe, and which touched the most callous heart. Arriving at the gallows he sued for the last moment and begged every Christian on the ground to pray for him.

It was here that the sheriff read him a brief note, reminding him of future rewards and punishments—of the awfulness of dying with a lie on his lips, and invoked him to say, while he looked eternity in the face, whether he was guilty or innocent of the murder. He replied that he had "said all that he had to say about it—he was not guilty." So the prisoner protested his innocence to the last moment. Mounting the scaffold and "forgiving every body," at 15 minutes past 12 o'clock Williams' soul was launched into eternity.

Dr. Marshall Hall, an eminent English physician, says:

"If I were seriously ill of consumption, I would live out of doors day and night, except in rainy weather or midwinter, then I would sleep in an unplastered log house." He says that consumptives want air, not physic—pure air, not medicated air—plenty of meat and bread. "Physic has no nutriment, gasping for air cannot cure you; monkey capers in a gymnasium cannot cure you, and stimulants cannot cure you."

AN INFALLIBLE REMEDY TO CURE THE ANGER OF A BISHOP.—A certain curate who had lived in a village of Tuscany, was so fond of his dog, that when he died he buried him in the churchyard.

The Bishop was determined to prosecute him for the profanation of holy ground. The curate, who knew the avaricious character of the prelate, said to him, "If your lordship did but know the cause of the little animal, I am sure you would think him a rational creature. Would you believe it, my lord, he made a will, just before he died, and left your lordship a purse full of gold, and here they are." The Bishop smiled at the curate's ingenuity, took the money, and forgave the curate.

EPISCOPAL RECORD.—The Bishop of the Episcopal Church in Maine states that between the General Convention of 1847 and that of 1858, 156 names disappeared from the Episcopal clergy in the United States. Of these 83 died, and 18 others also probably deceased.

BISHOP HAMLIN.—The Christian

Witness of Pittsburgh says:

"A Cincinnati paper made the statement two weeks since, that charges of seduction against Bishop Hamlin had been in process of investigation, &c. No charges have been preferred against Bishop Hamlin for seduction. I. D. Harlan, a member of the Cincinnati Conference, for making statements in regard to the Bishop's character, was brought before his conference, his statement proved false, and he himself expelled from the Methodist Episcopal Church and ministry by the large and intelligent Cincinnati Conference after a trial of three days; only two members of the Conference, out of nearly two hundred, voted in the negative, because they thought the punishment too severe for the falsehood proved against Mr. Harlan. We cannot withhold our surprise that a statement so utterly false should have been manufactured out of the facts in the case."

An Old Smoker. I shall take him for my text. This is rather an ugly customer, but it is worth the while to see if anything can be made of him. I judge he has been beclouding himself, and all others in dangerous proximity, in tobacco smoke an half century or so. Hence

1. His perseverance is a lesson. He went into this thing when he was a boy. And, boy and man, he has driven the business with inflexible tenacity of purpose. He has performed every day of the year, almost every hour of the day; to say nothing of a frequent evening smoke; and now and then a midnight smoke; beside an extra smoke for all special occasions. Now, if a man will kindle a fire under his nose with such invincible perseverance, and renew it with such steadiness of purpose, why cannot I, in nobler and better employments, learn the blessed art of holding on and holding out. If he sticks to puffing so tenaciously, cannot I stick to real and important duties with at least a similar fidelity?

2. A lesson of punctuality and exactness can be learned from the old smoker.

He must smoke at regular intervals. The cry for the indulgence rises loud and earnest. And he must meet it. At just such an hour, and just such a moment, the operation must be gone into. He must not be jostled out of this thing. Exact and punctual; never man more so. Most smokers are patens in this matter, old ones especially.

Here is a lesson for me. Shall smoking command such clock-work regularity and exactness, and shall not the genius, and especially the great Christian duties of life, command at least an equal punctuality? Old smoker! Shall I not be your rival? You, at the pipe, and I in the path of duty?

3. Moral courage, too, I can see labelled on that column of smoke. Evidently to begin his smoking required serious self-denial. His own physical nature resisted, at first, the outrage of the poisonous weed, and a battle had to be fought before nature would yield to the invader. His purse, too, had sent forth many a sigh of sorrow. And his sense of what is becoming in a gentleman had been overborne. The female inmates of his home have already stood across his path. And reason and conscience have each of them often given him a piece of their mind. But over all these hostile waves has the ship swept on, appetite filling all her sails, and rendering all obstacles and resistance unavailing.

And what obstacles may I not overcome in pursuing the path of duty? If appetite can carry all before it, after this fashion, cannot religious principle move steadily on, and bear down all the opposition of a wicked world?

Now, old smoker, you may puff away, or do anything else you like. I don't go on a reaping on such a field often; but I trust it is not quite in vain that I have tried to make something out of you. Your perseverance, and punctuality, and moral courage, suggest that I should carry the same qualities into those quiet duties of life which lie before me, as a traveller towards eternal scenes. Ill not break your pipe nor smash your tobacco-box. But I will do myself the kindness of turning you to some practical account, as I have before stated.—N. Y. Obs.

DEATH OF AN Aged Slave.—James Punch, in his one hundred and eighth year, expired in this city on Friday, the 25th inst. Punch was the slave of Colonel Warren Washington, of Virginia, nephew of George Washington. He came to this city about 25 years ago after having been set free, in company with J. H. Platt. During our struggle in the revolutionary war, Punch acted as servant to officers in several of the most important engagements, and often returned to the sights he had seen and in part of which he was. He died in poverty, and was permitted to be buried at the expense of the county.—Cin. Eng.
