Leonard R. Burt died at the residence of his mother, in Halifax county, N. C., on Saturday 23d May, 1857, aged 26 years. The writer was called to visit him the day before his death, and upon conversing with him, learned the following facts relative to his religious experience. When quite a lad he had professed conversion, and for a considerable length of time went on his way rejoicing in like, alas! too many young men, he was allured by evil company, and left the service a cold sweat on her brow, the writer of his Savior for the bondage of Satan-lost the sense of forgiveness, and was again en- 'When I can read my title clear, &c.,' by the tangled by the beggarly elements of the world.
