THE MIDWAY AT THE FAIR.

The term "The Midway at the Fair" has come to be a general term and in no sense restricted to its identity as an institution of the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago. The Midway attractions at the State Fair during this week no doubt proved more seductive a. attracted more interest than any thing else in the grounds.

In view of some of the attractions of the Midway at our fair we are not at all surprised that the protests of propriety have been raised as they were in Chicago against the Cairo street dances, when Mrs. Paimer and other lady members of the Board had to acknowledge that they had "all been there." These same dances have been outlawed in New York, and, if we are not mistaken, elsewhere, but the visitors to the State Fair this week seemed to stand them pretty well.

The entire camp of fakes and fakeries which we have had with us the past week spent last week at the Hagerstown, Md., fair, and the Washington, D. C. Times in descanting upon the subject in hand 8ays:

"Reports from rural fairs in every part of the country indicate that the example set by the great Chicago Exposition in its feature of the Midway Plaisance has taken deep root in the souls of the managers of all the diminutive imitations of the World's Fair. From the imposing and pervasive International and Cotton States Exposition, down to the fascinating little county fair which nes tles upon a few umbrageous acres, the Midway Plaisance is a blg and seductive card. They make a bee line for the Plaisance and stay there, wrapt in dreamy delight at the sound of simbals and mandolins, and sway ing insersibly in sympathy with the voluptuous dances of the Orient They are blissfully ignorant that the dancers are American Mury Janes and Sally Anna and Bridgets instead of the Myhrras and Zuleikas and Zuleimas of the playbill, and that their lovely tawny complexions are produced with a simple twist of the wrist and flutter of a powder puff, which gentle trickery is imported from variety show dressing-rooms. These strange diversions have so transformed the country fair that the managing elders are taking the matter in hand and demanding a restoration of the various status quo ante Plaisance. In many cases vigorous assaults have been made upon the innovation. Only yesterday the National Implement Manufacturers' Association, in convention at Chicago, declared war upon the Oriental imporation, and especially the Kuta Kuta dances. Picturesque as it is, there is little doubt that the sound morals of patrons of the American rural fair will speedily abolish the insidious and tenacious fragment of the World's Fair, which may have been well enough at the incomparable congress of instruction and dissi pation, but which is entirely alien to the spirit and reason of the Occi-

It is a pretty well established fact that everything went at Chicago, notwithstanding the fact that right eous and vigorous assaults were made against this same weird dancing importation of the Orient. A powerful crusade was made sgainet it and it was backed by the strongest papers of Chicago. It was asserted that the dance was the final depraved and vicious vestage of the ality and licentic seople who had been demonstrate per and deeper into the depths of cash.

oral turpitude since the time of on. The Chicago Berald de lared that it was the outcome of that moral depravity of the Orient which measured the ambition of the nen and the bondage and slavery of

It caused a shock at Chicago, but the performance at the State Fair was in no manner short of the performance at Chicago.

These innovations, we take it, ob tain because there is a fancy for them. There seems to be no lack of the people who spend their dimes to go into the side shows to see them. If they be demoralizing the familiar query arises, "What are you going to do about it?" Has the public taste become vitiated, and does it need toning, or has it been outraged by having spectacles thrust upon it which are a menace to the sense of decency and propriety of this age.
