As it behooves the flowers are the show. Banked around the walls and on the tables, and in the windows they are shown or bunched lavishly...

But the women are there, as they should be among flowers; and they hurry around and wait on you with dainty lunch daintily served.

You can get "most any old thing" to eat and you'd better go. Look at a simple luncheon: Barbeque, chicken salad, fresh Columbia River salmon, oysters—stewed and fried, turkey. These are the meats and with them you get real coffee, strong and clearly black; and with the coffee, whipped cream.

Then you get lots of all sorts of stillish and waxy and fruited and candy. And you walk away and smoke your pipe in peace.

OFFICER SALES' ADVENTURE.

Doing His Duty, He Gets a Hot and Very Dirty Reception.

When Health Officer T. P. Sale reported at his desk in the Mayor's office this morning, he found there a complaint from a Mrs. White, who runs Benson's Fayetteville street boarding house; she charged that Messrs. Hicks and Rogers, the druggists immediately under her feet, were violating both the maxims of common sense and the law by throwing refuse water, etc., in the gutter.

So Officer Sale threw his new overcoat loosely over his shoulders and in the glory of a bright, fresh uniform and glittering brass buttons walked slowly up the street to the habitation of the offending druggists.

Briefly he explained his business; with long face he told of the complaint; emphatically he demanded that the cause should be done away with.

Mr. Hicks was all smiles, all politeness: "Just walk out in the yard and examine things for yourself," he said; "I'm a law-abiding man and will do whatever is right."

As Mr. Sale stood thus meditating dire thoughts in his mind, a red-cheeked Irish maid was bustling around in the kitchen, just over his head. And little she knew that the health officer stood below muttering maledictions at the evidences of her refuse water, etc., in the gutter.

There was the sound of falling food, and the drug store people trembled at the sound. And then in came Officer Sale, and his hat and coat were dripping, and water trickled off his nose and infinitesimal portions of the hotel guests' breakfast loomed up laughingly, sticking fly-like to his coat.

Mr. Hicks was afraid to laugh, for there was murder in his eye that blinked with the water: "This matter must be investigated; other parties than you are to blame, Mr. Hicks." He walked away to his bath.

Matrimonial Business Profitable.

Register Rogers says the marriage license business isumping itself just now.

The law directs that the Register of Deeds shall turn over to the sheriff during the first two weeks of November all funds received from the issuance of marriage licenses.

Mr. Rogers was on hand promptly the first day with $778, the State and county's share of the funds derived from the matrimonial business, between December 6th, 1894, and November 1st, 1895.

The sum total amounts to $1,168, but Mr. Rogers is entitled to one-third of this amount.

THE SLANDER CASE.

F. M. Eddings Sent on to Court for Slandering His Brother's Wife.

Justice Roberts sat in the Mayor's chair. Col. Argo, Loge Harris and Wm. Snow represented P. M. Eddings, the defendant, who is charged with slandering the character of Mrs. Atlas Eddings.

The prosecution brought out their line of argument during the cross-examination. They said that the conspiracy was formed by the defendants to keep young Eddings and his wife out of certain property, belonging to the father of the Eddings boys, and that slander was resorted to.

Some twenty or twenty-five witnesses were examined. The testimony is unfit for publication. The prosecution brought out their line of argument during the cross-examination.

The testimony of the prosecution was to the effect that Mrs. Eddings was a woman of high character.

F. M. Eddings was bound over to court in the sum of $250.

THE "KIDS" MAY GAMBLE.

Ruling of the Supreme Court in Regard to the Shooting of Craps.

A recent ruling of the Supreme Court is of special interest in that it declares virtually that boys under fourteen years of age may gamble to their hearts content.

Boys of that tender age rarely have enough to lose to make any serious impression on pater's pocketbook, but you may smoke it in your pipe that a boy shooter of craps will be a man player of poker.

The Supreme Court says "let the boys gamble."

A lawyer, in talking of this matter this morning, said that at first blush the ruling would appear ridiculous, but that it was based on principles of the soundest common sense.

"The law supposes," he said, "that up to the age of fourteen years the parent has the entire right to manage the child, without the interference of law. Suppose, for instance, every school boy who got into a fight was arrested, what a nursery of criminals the Mayor's court would be!"

But when this notice circulates around, the dear public had better be prepared for the inspiring sight of two black-faced, ivory-toothed pick-ninnies, two cents before them, sitting on the court house steps and shooting craps to beat the band.

From the market house out, under the very nose of the police, you may be prepared to hear the inspiring shout of the enthusiastic crapsist: "Come seben! Come leben!" "Big Dick from Boston!" "Little Joe," etc., etc.
