BIG SCHEME TO DEVELOP TRADE ABROAD.

The field of Chinese trade is to be entered by American talent and money on a large scale in the near future. Nearly $1,000,000 capital has already been subscribed, and plans are now being matured for the formation in Chicago within two weeks of a gigantic commercial company which is intended to be the rival of the American Trading Company, and eventually to gain control of American trade in China.

Greater than the plans for the trading company, however, is a scheme for developing many miles of steam and street railways in China, lighting its chief cities with electricity, dredging its harbors and engaging in public improvements that will mean profits to the syndicate of millions of dollars. Two Englishmen are directing the formation of the syndicate from opposite sides of the globe. One of them is now in Chicago concluding the deal, and the other is in China, where a personal acquaintance with Li Hung Chang and the members of the Tsung Li Yamen will be the basis. It is expected, of the power of the corporation. The latter is Louis Sritzel, who, since the World's Fair, has resided in Shanghai. He is the head of the firm of Louis Spitzel & Co., which prints on its letterhead that it is capitalized for $100,000,000, and has headquarters in London and Shanghai.

The man who is attending to the formation of the company in Chicago is John P. Grant, a brother of Sir George MacPherson-Grant, of Ballinacree County Elgin, Scotland, and a son of the late Sir John MacPherson. He is a railroad promoter and a man of considerable commercial interests in his own country. It is claimed that through his influence and that of his brother, the British Government will act as a powerful ally to the new trading company, although most of the capital put in it will be American.

The new company is to go far outside of the regular lines of trade with China. Its province will be to supply the Chinese with everything needed in the way of manufactures, from locomotives to cheesecloth, as fast as the market develops.

The object for which the English American-Chinese Railway Construction Company was formed is one of the most stupendous railway projects ever entertained by the country. Its completion will mean 2,300 miles of railway in operation in the Flowery Kingdom, equipped with the most improved appliances and rolling stock, with most of the equipment furnished by American manufacturers.

Headquarters are to be established by the corporation in Chicago, London and Shanghai. A party of those most interested in the company will sail from San Francisco on the 20th. Passage already has been engaged and final arrangements will be concluded on the voyage. Arrangements are also being completed between the principal railways have their termini at Norfolk, Charleston, Savannah and Brunswick, and William Johnson & Co., Limited, of Liverpool, owners of the well-known Johnson line of cargo steamers, under which regular lines of steamers will be run from these south Atlantic ports to chief European ports. The negotiations for this important move for the development of southern commerce and direct southern export traffic are the result of the recent visit of Mr. Samuel Spencer, president of the Southern Railway Company, to England during the last summer. The object is not only to strengthen the export trade from the south by regular and reliable ocean service, but to prevent in future the irregularities in ocean rates heretofore existing from these ports, which have been so expensive to the railway lines of the south.
