Last evening a large party of young ladies from St. Mary's attended the performance of "An American Citizen." That each of them wore bewitching bonnets goes withont saying. These young ladies removed their bats when the curtain went up and thereby rendered a special service to every one behind them. It is commendable in the young ladies of St. Marvs to set the pace in Raleigh In this respect and it is to be boned that Raleigh's charming theatre patrons will do likewise.

apr. 1 M Torner to be Returned as Train muster.

The Portsmouth Star of yesterday says: "A change will take place on Saturday next in the transportation department of the Seaboard Air-Line which will result in the removal of the trainmaster's office from this city. The first and second divisions of the road will be consolidated under the charge of one trainmaster, who will have an office in Raleigh. J M Turner, formerly with the Seaboard Air-Line, but of late general manager of the New Orleans and Western railway, has been appointed to the position of trainmaster of the consolidated

Capt L W Renn, trainmaster for the first division, has tendered his resignation totake effect next Saturday. Capt Renu has made an efficientand trust worthy officer, against whom there have never been any charges made. He will resume his former vocation, that of passenger conductor on the line.

The clerical force of the office will not be diminished.

Building and Lean Associations.

The Alabama legislature has just assed a new code of laws for building and loan associations. Some very great beardships were sought to be inflicted on these associations by some of the bills introduced, but the measure adopted, while it imposes many new regulations on the associations, was accepted by the building and lean men as a fall compromise. It, requires all companies to make an annual statement to the auditor, and to keep this state-The Raleigh Euchre Club will to ment and its advertisements free of night be the guests of Miss Lizzle umbiguity, and that no association Ashe at the residence of Capt S.
