SATURDAY March 13

It is reported that a syndicate has been formed in Denver in the interest of a most novel enterprise connected with cycling. The plan is to build a 1000-mile bicycle tourist circuit in the mountains, starting from Denver and extending to Estes park, seventy-five miles distant, said to be one of the prettiest natural parks in the world. From there it is proposed to circle west and south to Manitou, via Ute Pass, and returning to Denver by way of Manitou Park and South Platte. The plan includes the building of cabins about twenty miles apart, and hotels about seventy-five miles apart, one of which is to be a sanitarium.

The new Oceanic, the giant steamship lately announced by the White Star Line is to be "of the Majestic type, slightly improved and larger." The Majestic is the slimmest of the big ships now in use, having a beam of 57 feet 8 inches to a length of 582 feet. That makes her length to her breadth a little more than 10 to 1. The Oceanic will be 122 feet longer than the Lucania, and 25 feet longer than the Great Eastern, the ship which for more than a quarter of a century has seemed unapproachable, a freak, built on a scale so extravagant that her like would never be attempted again. The Oceanic's beam is expected to be about 65 feet, making her proportions similar to the Majestic's, and her tonnage will be over 17,000 tons. She will be able to steam around the globe without coaling at a speed of 12 knots. The Oceanic's prospective owners announce that "due attention will be given to the matter of speed, but extreme speed will be subordinate to the comfort and convenience of passengers." Experts "can calculate her speed on the strength of the statement that she is to have three screws, each with about 15,000 horse-power; 45,000 horse-power in all.

Just at a time when photographers had almost abandoned hope of ever discovering a really practical process of color photography, report comes to the State Department from United States Consul-General Mason of Frankfurt giving a description (as far as the process may be divulged) of a means of doing this in a manner so simple and inexpensive as to be available to every photographer, thus opening a new era in reproductive art. The process is the discovery of Chassagne, a Parisian savant, and is purely chemical. Any ordinary negative before exposure is dipped in a secret colorless bath. The usual negative results and from this the usual positive is made on paper, glass or other medium. This positive being also dipped in the colorless liquid acquires a wonderful power of selecting colors. Dipped successively in monochromatic baths of blue, red and green the positive picks out from each the exact proportion of color necessary to reproduce the tints of the original. The result is a portrait absolutely life-like in form and color and landscapes that will stand the test of strong magnifying glasses. To dispose of any chance of fraud in this discovery leading English scientists were permitted to make the colored pictures with their own apparatus in London, being supplied by the inventor only with the necessary chemical baths. Already a great syndicate has purchased the patent rights for all countries and is preparing to establish branch houses in each country for the treatment of plates. The composition of the color-sensitizing solution is still a secret.
