Ex-Postmaster General Tyner finds great pleasure in his home in the mountains of Western North Carolina, at Tryon, Polk county. He says there are thousands of families in the Northwest who will find it to their comfort and advantage to spend a few months every winter, if not all the time, in the South.

By the dissolution of "the Patriarchs" New York society will lose a rather notable feature. The reason for the disbanding is really a tribute, unintentional but none the less genuine, to the late Mr. Ward McAllister, who in his capacity of dictator of social functions was virtually the organizer and manager of their balls. Thus far his mantle has fallen on no one's shoulders, and the Patriarchs' ball ceases because there is no one man who can devote himself to making them a success.

Nashville is now just where Atlanta was in the summer of two years ago, says the Atlanta Journal. They are about to open their exposition, and everybody is looking through rose-colored spectacles. The Tennessee centennial has all the colors of the rainbow. It is a great show from all accounts, and the people of Atlanta sincerely wish it all possible success, but we can't help feeling sympathy for the Nashville people in the disappointment and difficulties which they are bound to encounter. It will take two months to get the show moving well, and sleepless nights before the critical period is passed. Fortunately for them, they have given themselves six months in which to pay for their show. The only serious mistake Atlanta made was in limiting her exposition to three months. It took six weeks to get started, and there were only eight weeks left. On this account the Nashville exposition ought to pay out easily.

By Governor Black's neglect to sign the bill proposed by the comptroller to increase the tax on estates devised or bequeathed by millionaires, the taxpayers of the state of New York have lost almost $1,500,000. The heirs of the late Theodore Havemeyer have gained $1,500,000 by that same neglect of the governor. The amount of the estate left Havemeyer is quite accurately estimated to be $14,000,000. A computation was made, and the result was that if the governor had acted promptly on the comptroller's bill the tax that would have been placed on the estate would have amounted to $1,400,000. The amount will be far less under the present law, which will apply to this estate.

What the next international exposition in Paris, in which all fifty-four nations of the earth will participate, will achieve as an educator nobody can even imagine at this time. But one thing is settled: Owing to its admirable arrangement it will be more comprehensive, and, therefore, more instructive, than all prior world's fairs. The Paris system, as is known, arranges for groups and not states in the exhibits.

The whole field of work of mankind, so far as it can physically be brought to expression, is divided into eighteen groups; each one of these groups will have a building by itself, and in this building all nations exhibit the work of that particular group, so that in reality there will be eighteen international expositions. A very welcome innovation to Paris exhibitors will be that they not only will not have to pay any space rent, but they will also be furnished motive power free of charge. The French are able to do this, for they are not only rich, but also very wise.
