THURSDAY May 20
Next Saturday a pleasant and instructive excursion will be made from Washington city, under the auspices of the National Geographic Society, to Manassas Gap, (Linton Station) Va., on the Blue Ridge. The excursionists will go over the Southern railway, reaching Linton at 11:30. After luncheon Major Jed Hotchkiss will discourse upon the war history of the region and Mr. M. R. Campbell will speak on its physical geography. Mt. Monterey, 1,800 feet above the sea, will be climbed by some, while High Knob, 2,400 feet above sea level, will attract others. The country traversed includes the scene of the first battle of Bull Run, whence the federals made such good time to Washington and the second battle of Bull Run, or Manassas, where General Pope was disastrously beaten a year later. The geology of the country to be visited is most interesting and well worth a day's study in this fine May weather.

Recent experiments with the X ray, probably by persons who are not as competent as they should have been, have resulted in injury to the subjects. Dr. William J. Morton, of New York, who has been active in applying the Roentgen ray to surgery, says people should be warned against the ignorant use of this agent, and he adds that "all this great cry against the danger of the X rays on account of the burns caused by them is due to their employment in unskilled hands." Most of the injuries which follow the use of the X ray, Dr. Morton declares, are caused by placing the tube too near the flesh and making the exposure too long. The Doctor says he has seen terrible burns caused by this careless use of the X rays, and it is his opinion that an exposure should never be made with the tube less than eighteen inches from the subject. The X ray, according to the best theories, "is light in the violet region spectrum." Dr. Morton does not agree with the contention that particles are actually given off, but holds that the light is radiant energy, which, of course, injures tissue like the radiant energy from the sun. This energy causes greater destruction of tissue when improperly handled than heat, because it penetrates the flesh and destroys the protoplasm, resulting in the death of the part. The Doctor says he has made photographs of the brain, showing its convolutions and fissures.

The Macon Telegraph makes editorial reference to a letter from Mrs. Robert Emory Park, of that city, regent for Georgia of the Confederate Memorial Museum, about the location of the battle abbey at Richmond, and adds: "The argument by Mrs. Park in favor of Richmond is so convincing that it is unnecessary for us to go over the same ground or attempt to furnish additional reasons. It is enough for us to say that we cordially endorse the position taken by the state regent and feel that there is no probability of any other city being selected. We think it would be a good idea for the Confederate Survivors' Association, wherever they are organized, to vote on this question and let the result of their action be known. It is eminently fitting that a memorial building of this kind, dedicated to the preservation of Confederate memorials and Confederate history, should be in the capital of the Confederacy. The claims of Richmond are pre eminent and unanswered.
