Good Taste Required.

Says the Dry Goods Chronicle of May 15th: "With the advent of the shirt waist season every merchant is undoubtedly interested in procuring wash fabrics that are at once sightly and fashionable. We are led to this conclusion as a result of our visit during the week to the departments in the big stores where shirt waists are sold. Such a heterogeneous collection of ugly patterns and unattractive colorings we never saw massed in a pile as they were in the retail stores of Greater New York. The purchasers of these must have got hold of the tail-ends of last year's drives in wash goods. No person of good taste would ever be guilty of drawing his sense of the beautiful by buying such stuff. Hence we conclude that to make many profitable sales a wash goods stock must comprise the most beautiful styles and patterns."

We have won golden opinions for our choice in this direction. No such beauties and values anywhere as we are showing in
