RAINFALL BENEFICIAL.

General Except in Central North Portion of the State

The crop report issuel today says: The week ending Monday, August 23rd, was cloudy and comparatively cool. Drought continued to prevail over some sections, especially the central north portion of the State, but elsewhere favorable showers occurred, and the rainfall on the 21st was general and very beneficial. Cotton has continued to shed in the dry sections, but elsewhere is very fine. Picking cotton has commenced. Fodder pulling has become general. Breakingland for wheat is progressing and some winter oats have been sown.

Cantral District .- The crop con ditions are quite diversified in this district. Drought continued to prevail this week in many counties, as Montgomery, Durham, Chatham, Person, Anson, parts of Stokes, Richmond, Johnston and Wake; in most other counties favorable conditions prevailed, with plenty of rain. The week was genaged crops in Stokes county on 17th. The rainfall on Saturday, 21st, was general over the district and very beneficial. Cotton is shedding badly in the counties where drought is reported, but elsewhere is very fine; full of fruitage from top to bottom; it is opening generally, and picking has commenced in the South, with first new bale sold in Richmond county. Late upland corn is suffering for rain: lowland cropfine. Fodder being saved rapidly; some caught by Saturday's rain and spoiled. Tobacco being cut; leaves broad and of good quality. Very
