A FUSILLADE AT A FUNERAL

The Deceased Had Never Been Under Water and a Discussion of the Probable Destination of His Soul Resulted in a Lively Shooting Scrap.

From the Gastonia Gazette. The case of the State against Miles Washington and Frank Cathey at Dallas court this week looked simple enough on the docet, but there : more things often in a court case than the docket ever dreams of-until they are brought out. The case above mentioned resulted from an affray and shooting scrap at a colored church near Belmont not long ago.

A colored brother, who was a Methodist, died and was buried. A large con course of friends and relatives from far near attended the obsequies to pay their last tribute of respect to the dead. The teams and wagons were on hand as at the regular church services. The office borne by a Baptist neighbor. Miles Washington.

By way of consolation to the bereaved family Washington gave it as his deliberate satisfactory opinion that the soul of the deceased had "shore gone to heben," And here the trouble began, Frank fated battle-chip, tonly the stars and Cathey, a deacon in Washington's stripes will be carried. church, in whose wool the dye was a little more firmly set than it was in the orator's openly remonstrated against such rank heresy. Says he, "Hol' on Brer Washington; you're sayin' too much; dat man was never put under de water." It required but a few more words to array the friends of the deceased Methodist brother and the partisans of the Baptist orator on one side and the followers of Catey and defenders of the faith upon the other. They soon mixed up and pistols and rocks were brought quickly into requisition. In the fusiliade the orator was, of course, disposed to make peace if pessible, for it was no proper occasion for a deadly conflict. But Washington may Meanwheile the fusilinde kept vigorously on. As bullets and other missiles went flying hither and thither, the spectators and combatants did likewise. Some dodged behind trees, or teams, or wagons, and others found shelter behind tombstones; while no denial has yet come to hand that some of the dusky warriors buy behind the more recently made grave mound and, thus protected, delivered battle to their opponents across these strange breast-

Washington and Cathey have been hauled into court and have received their respective senences; but where the soul of the deceased is-that is still a disputed point.

WOMAN BURGLAR.

She Enters a Dwelling and Carries Away a Trunk.

An usual burglary has just occurred in this county, says the Goldsboro Argus. One Rachel Smith, a colored woman of this city, was for a time employed at the above institution, during which time she made the acquaintance of the family of James McIver, an in dustrious old colored man of the neigh borhood. Rachel made occasional visits to McIver's family since she left the asylum's employ, one of these visits being made last Friday. Friday night some one entered McIver's home, while he and family were asleep, and stole therefrom his trunk, containing $126, and a new axe. In the field near by the trunk was found next morning smashed and the money gone. This morning at the home of Rachel Smith in this city, the missing age was found and $65 dollars in money, which answers in denominations to that lost by McIver. Rachel Smith had a hearing before Justice Hugh Humphrey and is now in jail to await a hearing at 10 o'clock tomorrow on the double charge of burglary and larceny, the former being a capital offense.

WOMAN ORATOR.

Follows Demosthenes' Example but Used Pins Instead of Pebbles.

"I am very much troubled," said John S. Wise, of Virginia, to a Washington Post reporter, as he walked across the rotunda of the capitol yesterday after-

"I attended a session of the Daugh-Wise, "and only one of the ladies who made an address had the several sheets which contained her remarks carefully and put the pin her mouth. Then she she continued talking all the time. I and eight hours can be spent at Matanwant to know what became of those zas. pins. She certainly did not swallow them, and she did not remove them tery to me at the time, and it is a mystery yet."

MAN AND BOY FOUND DEAD.

A Strange Pair Hanged in Their Cabin Near Table Rock, Burke County-Murder or Suicide?

A special to the Charlote Observer from Morganton says: Considerable excitement was caused here today by a report that an old man and a boy were found hanged in a cave in the miles west of here. About three weeks ago an old man and a small boy moved into the settlement near Table Rock, and occupied a small cabin at the foot of the mountain. On being questioned by some of the mountain people the ald man said that he had married an Indian squaw in the western part of the State, and that the boy with him was the product of that union. He had some trouble with the Indians, and was driven out of the Indian nation, and bringing the boy with him, settled here in Burke. This is practically all that is known of them. Yesterday morning a mountaineer named Franch found the bodies of the old man and the child in a cave near their cabin, dead, with ropes about their necks, evidently having died from the effects of strangulation. Whether at is munder or suicide is not known.
