lowing account of an exciting episode which recently occurred in the old Shatter neighborhood, near Cokesbury church, says the Henderson Gold Leaf.

A most amusing and exciting incldent occurred near old Shatter a few days ago. The report was circulated the neighborhood that there was a dangerously victous animal of some sort at large and that it was perilous for women or children to go from home alone.

A colored man's premises had been invaded by the beast and four stout cur puples were killed and eaten. The monster had been seen at night time on several occasions on the premises of one of the neighbors.

So the men for several miles around with dogs, guns and a full supply of ammunition met at the house said to be most frequently visited by the dreaded animal.

After maturing their plans and each man making a solemn vow to stand firm in case of a desperate conflict with the much dreaded monster, a young land trusty man was stationed as sentinel to give the alarm if the animal Boykin for defendant. should come. Then they retired into the house with dogs and guns to await developments and keep warm, as the Whitaker for plaintiff; Shepherd & night was perhaps one of the coldest of Busbee for defendant. season.

In the meantime there were other persons who were at work and planning for much fun. They procured a guano bag and formulated the shape of animal about the size of an ordinary dog, and to carry out their plans took It to a body of woods about half a mile away, climbed a large tree and fastened the fictitious monster on the top of a large limb high up. They then took a rag saturated with spirits of turpentine, and rubbed the body of the tree with it, and by means of a string attached they proceeded to take it through the woods in various directions finally coming up near the house where the men were walting in excited anticipation.

The young man placed on guard was fully in the secret. He gave the alarm by firing his gun and yelling at a furious rate, calling lustily for the braves in the house to come out and give pursuit. The dogs were soon in full cry on the track made by the turpentine rag.

The small army of men were quickiy on the scene ready to do and to die if necessary for the protection of the women and children of the neighborhood tonight be granted members of the directly or indirectly, for the explosions from this audacious animal. They proceeded with caution before
