TROOPS At Celebration of Mecklenburg Inde pendence

Maj. E. M. Hayes, of the United States Cavalry, has been honored with an invitation, which he has accepted. to command all the troops on the oc easien of the 123rd anniversary and celebration of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence, at Charlotte May 18th, 19th and 20th.

Maj. Hayes yesterday received the letter of invitation from Col. A. L. Smith, chairman of the military committee, in which kind reference was made to Maj. Hayes personally.

We give herewith Col. Smith's letter in addition to one sent by Maj. Hayes accepting the honor: MECKLENBURG DECLARATION OF

Charlotte, N. C., March 16, 1898 E. M. Hayes, U. S. A., Raleigh,

My Dear Sir—The Military Commit-tee, through me, as chairman, desire to extend to you the honor of command-ing all the troops during the 20th of May celebration. This decision on our part meets with the hearty approval of the colonels of the State Guard, and part meets with the hearty approval of the colonels of the State Guard, and the entire Monumental Committee. Charlotte feels that she has a just claim on you, and the boys will be proud to march with you as their tion and your devotion to the State troops, we have no better means of showing our appreciation than by asking you to take the command.

It is the Intention of the committee, passed at a meeting yesterday, to have a three days' celebration. The first day, May 18th, a freman's contest; May 19th, a trades' display, bleycle racing, etc.; May 20th, unveiling, preceded by a parade of the armed troops, Continental Guards and Confederate Veterans. It is also their desire, if they can possibly get them, to have a three days' encampment of the troops—18th, 19th and 20th. We have a splendid location for that. During these days, can have some military evolutions, with a parade in the afternoon, and a sham battle afternoon of 20th. We will pitch camp, arrange everything free, for the men, except transportation.

Very truly,

A. L. SMITH,

Chairman M. C.

Dear Sir—I have this day received your letter of the 16th inst., extending your letter of the 16th inst., extending me an invitation to take command of all the troops on the occasion of the 123rd celebration of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence, at Charlotte, May 20, 1888. Please accept my thanks for the honor conferred upon me by you and your committe in this invitation, an honor which I appreciate next to that of commanding a brigade of North Carolina troops in the field in the event of war. I am also grateful for the complimentary expressions in which the invitation is couched. I recall with pleasure other military occasions in the past in which I have participated with the good people of Charlotte, and I accept the invitation to command the troops on the approaching occasion, and will do my best to make the military feature of the celebration a success.

Regulations Concerning the President's Authority to Employ State Troops. A Washington dispatch says: Three uestions pertaining to the calling out of the militia have been a sorce of controversy for some time and are of special importance in the preparation: which are being made for possible war These have been answered by Lieut. Col. George B. Davis, Deputy Judge Advocate-General of the army, under authority of the Adjutant-General's office. The questions are: 1. If the President of the United States should call out the militin of one State for duty in another State would it be mustered into the general service by be mustered into the general service by any oath other than that administered to the men as militiamen in their own State.

2. Does the call of the President necessarily have to be through the Governor of the State?

3. In calling out the militia would it be within the reverse of the President.

be within the powers of the President to designate certain organizations, or would be have to limit himself merely would he have to limit himself merely to making a requisition for a certain number of men? Col. Davis says, in answer to the first questinon, that under the practice es-tablished by the War Department—a practice, however, neither required nor expressly sanctioned by law—an oath of allogiance is essential to the muster in llegiance is essential to the muster in of militia troops, under the act of July 17, 1862.

"Being a condition imposed by order or regulation merely," he says, "and not a statutory requirement, it is subject to change, or modification, by the same authority. It is proper to observe, however, that one of the chief reasons for the imposition of the oath of allegiance to test the loyalty of the indigiance to test the loyalty of the indi-vidual members of the militia, upon their being mustered into the service of the United States still exists and would serve the same useful purpose in the future that it has served in the

Answering the second question, Col. Davis says. The only statutory restriction upon the authority of the President, in respect to the calling forth of the militia, is that contained in the act of July 17, 1882, which requires that when the militia of more than one State is called into the actual service of the United States by the President, he shall apportion them among such States according to representative population.
On the other hand the act of February 28, 1795, conferred authority upon the President 'to call forth such number of the militia of the State or States most convenient to the place of danger or scene of action as he may deem necessary to repel such invasion, and to issue his orders for that purpose to such officer of the militia as he may think proper. The call would ordinarily be addressed to the Governor, who, in most striction upon the authority of the Presof the States, is made the Commander-in-Chief of the active militia of the State. Such, indeed, has been the prac-tice of the Executive since the forma-tion of the Government under the Con-

In regard to the third proposition this xplanation is given: "Under the au-hority conferred by the act of Feb. 28 795. It would be entirely within the dis retion of the President to designate retion of the President to designate ertain organizations for service under the call. If there be no organized militin in the State pointed out by the act of July 17, 1862, as the one from which the militia should be drawn, the power to designate becomes impossible of execution, and the call must in consequence be adversed to the Governor of the State and the call must in consequence be ad-lressed to the Governor of the State. It is proper to say that the latter courses the one properly to be pursued under ordinary circumstances. It is only when an emergency of time exists, or the loyalty of the militin of a particular locality is doubted, or where there is reason to believe that the Executive will not honor the President's request, that the call should be addressed di-rectly to the commanders of the militin organizations whose services are be-lieved by him to be necessary to meet the existing emergency."

Without Being Conscripted, Too.

In alluding to the reply of Governor Russell to enquiries from the War De Russell to enquiries from the War Department as to the number of troops the State of North Carolina "could" furnish in the event of war, which reply gave 245,000 as the number, the Washington Post observes that "the Governor must have used the census returns" in framing his reply. As some 340,000 voters were polled at the last election in this State, it does not appear unreasonable to say that the State "could" furnish 245,000 men ablebodied enough to shoulder a musket—or a rifle. And not many of them would have to be "conscripted," either, if our cause were a righteous one and their services were actually required to sustain the honor and dignity of "old glory."

Yesterday the Italian Ambassador sounded the views of Great Britain in an interview with the Secretary of the English Foreign Office. It is believed here that the British official did not fall in with the proposition, and gave the Italian Ambassador no encouragement to think that such an idea could be carried out successfully.
