SCHOOL
the corner of Person streets, where Miss Eliza no has charge of this school conduct you through the differrooms. After this round, if time permits, secure a conveyance and ride out to the

WATER WORKS, where you will be much interested in viewing the massive machinery at work that supplies our city with water for all purposes. Leaving here the horses are turned in westward course and soon you enter the grounds of the

INSANE ASYLUM, where you will find Dr. Wood, the kind, courteous head of this institution, who takes great pleasure in showing visitors through the building provided by the State for the care of this unfortunate class of our citizens.
You will greatly enjoy this visit, finding everything neat and clean, and leaving you will wonder how it is possible to keep everything in such good order with so many afflicted people to look after. The next place of interest you reach is

PULLEN PARK
After riding through this once bar-ren field, you are surprised how soon such a place can be transformed into such a beautiful place, and what one sees now is nothing to what it will be soon under the master-hand of Mr. Pullen, who so generously donated the site to the city. Entering the park on the east, after driving through the well-laid out drives, you stop in front of the

AGRICULTURAL AND MECHANICAL COLLEGE, where you place yourself under the charge of President Holladay, who will conduct you through the Horticultural, Agricultural and Mechnical departments, where the boys of our State are fitted to become useful men when they arrive to manhood, capable of filling every position in life. Continuing your ride northward, you reach in a few minutes the extensive

DAIRY FARM
of Dr. Lewis, where you will find one of the best-kept dairies in the country, and not excelled by any in New York State, and his herd of fine cows are certainly beauties, as they are seen nipping the grass and clover which abound on the farm. After witnessing these things, you resume your journey and soon reach the

STOCK FARM of Capt. B. P. Williamson. This is yet in its infancy, but Capt. Williamson spares neither trouble or expense, and he is amply rewarded in knowing that no stock farm of Kentucky surpasses his. The fine stock which Capt. W. will exhibit at our next State Fair will be the envy of every one. Already several fine colts are in the hands of that master trainer, Mr. J. F. Scott, and as they step around the track you can see that he is no novice, but a master-hand holds the ribbons. After looking into the stables, feed-rooms and the different runs for colts, horses, etc., you resume your seat, and soon reach the Capitol Square, where you dismiss your driver; placing yourself in the hands of Capt. Roberts, you soon enter the halls of the Senate and House of Representatives, where you

STATE MUSEUM
ided over by Mr T C Harris, re the minerals of all kinds which ound in our State can be found.
Woods and timbers of every species used in the manufacture of houses, vehicles, furniture, etc, will be seen; specimens of gold, copper, tin and precious stones comprising one of the finest collections to be found in any State; fish of every variety are seen, fowls, preserved fruits, and the last but not least is the skeleton of one of the largest whales ever caught in the Atlantic Ocean, measuring about 170 feet. After going through the Museum and Experiment Station, (corner of Edenton and Halifax streets) you might visit the

STATE LIBRARY.
on the corner of Edenton and Sal's bury streets, where Mr J C Birdsong will be found, who takes great pleasure in having visitors call in the Library, and show them through the rooms, where the thousands of books ranging in value from 50c to $1,000 per volume can be found, also portraits, old manuscripts, map of the Gettysburg battle, showing the position of troops on each day, newspapers from every section of the State, magazines, etc, and should you have time for reading, histories, travels, biographies, theology, science, and fiction are at your disposal that will enable the visitor to pass away the time. By the way the number of visitors to this institution has increased a hundred fold in the last few years, and the Librarian has time for little else than serve those who come to read and see the rooms. Leaving the Library you go northwest two squares and you arrive at the entrance of the

INSTITUTION FOR THE DEAF, DUMB AND THE BLIND.
on the corner of McDowell and Jones streets, where you will find the obliging Superintendent, W J Young, ready to receive, show the visitor through the building, and should you get there during recitation hours, you will find it entertaining and instructive in witnessing the mode of instruction provided by our State for those unfortunate girls and boys, and how eagerly they seek and how rapidly they learn the sign language. Then as you go east you will reach the

COTTON PLATFORM, where you will find the Compress at work, and the large bale of cotton is taken and compressed into one third its original size, and so proficient are the employees that every minute a bale goes through the press and ready for shipment. Continuing your walk you soon arrive at the

CONFEDERATE CEMETERY, where sleep the remains of the gallant Confederate Soldiers of North Carolina, who laid down their lives
