

A Child's Laugh.

BY SWINBURNE.]

All the bells of Heaven may ring,
All the birds of Heaven may sing,
All the wells on earth may spring,
All the wind on earth may bring
All sweet sounds together;
Sweeter far than all things heard,
Hand of harper, tone of bird,
Sound of woods at sundown stirred,
Welling waters, winsome word,
Wind in warm, wan weather.

One thing yet there is, that none
Hearing ere its chime be done,
Knows not well the sweetest one
Heard of man beneath the sun,
Hoped in Heaven hereafter;
Soft and strong and loud and light,
Very sound of very light.
Heard from morning's rosiest height,
When the soul of all delight
Fills a child's clear laughter.

Cotton Stalk Bagging.

AUGUSTA, April 21.—Wm E Jackson, a well known lawyer of this city, has solved the bagging problem that has agitated cotton circles for so long. Mr Jackson has perfected mechanical appliances for making bagging from cotton stalks. He is just from New York with a roll of the bagging. Expert cotton men say that it is in every respect equal to cotton bagging. He will utilize bare stalks from the fields and can afford to pay about two dollars a ton, laid down. An annual stalk field will bale a three years' cotton crop. The machinery comprises heavily weighed corrugated rollers, with valves for running water, carding machines and bagging looms.

It is estimated that in making bagging from cotton stalks $2,000,000 annually will go into the pockets of farmers for what is now cleared from the fields at an expense. Augusta will be headquarters for the company's mill and offices, which will extend from Virginia to Texas. Mr Jackson had a roll of bagging, which is exhibited woven by the jute bagging looms of J C Todd, at Paterson, N J, and that experts here pronounce equal to its jute rival. The cotton stalk bagging is less inflammable and is only a shade darker than jute. Cotton circles here are jubilant.

THE NEWS.

On account of a short crop the price of champhor is 62 1/2 cents per pound, whereas last year it was only 38 cents. Druggists say it will go still higher.

A bridge across Eagle creek, Ore, was finished recently by Baker county tax payers, who paid $2,600 for it. Before it was a week old a drove of cattle was driven upon it, when the whole structure collapsed and fifty of the animals were drowned.

The ex-queen of Naples has stables in the Camps Elysees and at Chantilly, and runs horses under an assumed name. The king, her spouse, is of a gentle disposition, and goes in for "dolce far niente."

An Italian correspondent writes that the largest tree in the world stands at the foot of Mt Etna, and has a circumference of 212 feet. The tree is a chestnut, and so is the story. The fact is that the tree referred to was destroyed a number of years ago. —Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

The gripe in Europe has been succeeded by a strange ailment that seems to be assuming epidemic proportions in Hesse Cassel. It is a disease in which people sleep themselves to death. It would not be strange if, after a century of "husling" such as has been going on in England and America, the opposite state would supervene for awhile, and there would come an epidemic of drowsiness in which the victims would desire only to doze off and "do nothing forever and ever."

A Chinaman concluded the other day that he would take a stroll across the Niagara bridge and see how he liked Canada. On the other end he was confronted by a customs office, who demanded the fifty dollars head tax imposed on Chinamen by the Canadian government. He had only ten and was ordered back. He toddled back to the American side, where he was confronted by an officer who drew on him the anti-immigration act, and in spite of his eloquent entreaties in pigeon English back he had to go. The last seen of him he was midway on that bridge was going to get off without jumping into the turbulent torrent below.

WHAT A BOY DOES.

The Writer Remembered How it Used to Be.

He comes out at the front door, bright faced and happy. He comes out for no particular reason, says the Washington Capital, save that he wants to be moving about. He is full of physical action, and he must get some of it out of him before bed time or he he won't be fit to sleep. He doesn't know this with his head, but his body knows it; for, after all, the body does a good deal of its own thinking, independently of what we call consciousness. He stands on the step and looks up and down the street. He doesn't know what he is looking for. Indeed he is not looking for anything. He just looks with a sort of undefined hope that he will see something suggestive to him of what to do. He jumps down the steps and goes to the gate, hangs on it a moment, makes a few sounds with his voice such as nobody but a boy can make, and nobody else would make if he could. They don't mean anything. He makes them because—well, because he is a boy. As if he had suddenly thought of something to do, he bangs the gate open and rushes down the middle of the street, yelling like a young Indian. But he has not suddenly thought of something to do. He has simply done that because he couldn't think of anything to do, and must do something. Then he picks up a stone and fires it at a dog, and cringes and feels sorry if it hits the mark. He doesn't want to hurt the dog. He throws the stone because he and the dog and the stone are there, and it is handy to do so. For a few seconds he stands and looks up into a tree at—nothing. Then he breaks into a run again and suddenly sits down on the curbstone as if he had accomplished something and was content.
