I think not of tomorrow, Its trial or its task, But still, with childlike spirit. For present mercies ask. With each returning morning, I cast old things away; Life's journey is before me-My prayer is for today.

TWO COPPER CENTS.

How They Found Each Other and Served in a Queer Capacity After Many Years.

From Chatter.

We were minted the same day, in 1835. One of us bought a paper almost as soon as we left the mint. The other went into a rich young fellow's pocket, "for luck," he said. The young fellow was on his way to Europe. The cent that bought the paper bought a cent's worth of milk for the the newsboy's mother. Then the grocer paid it out to an expressman, with some silver. It got in with its betters and was uncomfortable until it got into a barroom "till." After that it led a lowly life. For years the owner of the barroom kept it on the table when he played cards with his customers. He said it was his "lucky penny."

One night, late, a middle aged man came in begging. Without thinking its owner for fifteen years tossed it to the beggar with an oath. That was all he got there. The cent went into his pocket. He was poor. From that time he began to grow rich. The cent got credit for his good luck. Though uniortunate itself, it had always brought luck to others. It never left its last owner. It saw him grow from a poor to a rich man and from a middle aged to an old miser. The more he got the more he wanted There was nothing short of murder der would not do for money. He robbed his best friends and they never knew it. He passed for a good man. He was the greatest, the most magnificent hypocrite that lived. This is what he used to whisper to his smooth, shining and lucky penny.

Well, the other penny stuck to the young fellow on his way through Europe. When he came back, after happy years of wandering, he had a velvet case made for the lucky cent. The first day it left his pocket for the case he was killed in a runaway His things went to this one and that, and the cent was shot at in a shooting gallery for a number of years. No bullet ever struck it. Everybody knew that, and everybody wanted it. So it was finally sold for $2, and lost by the gambler who bought it, and found by the miser, and it went into the latter's pocket and found its twin after fifty five years. Two nights ago the miser choked to death on a piece of hard bread. They came and placed him in a coffin. They could not close his horrible eyes until they thought of two copper cents.

So, here we are, in our coffin, di vided by a nose, holding down the lids of a dead man's eyes.

All Trusts Must Go.

Oxford Day.

The bill of indictment brought in by the grand jury yesterday was against Mr J M Currin directly, charging him with being agent of a trust composed of W Duke, Sons & Co, Allen & Ginter and W S Kimball & Co, to lower the price of a certain trade of raw tobacco known as cut-

The engagement is announced of Miss Preston, daughter of the late Gen Wm Preston, of Lexington, Ky, and Minister to Spain under Buchanan, to Gen Wm F Draper. The marriage will take place on May 22. ODD NAMES.

The Strange Appellations Given Some Children.

New York Tribune.

"What name "do you give this child?" said a Western preacher to a couple who had brought their baby some distance to be baptized.

"Luthy, thir," lisped the bashful mother, and the pastor, who was a little deaf, exclaimed in horror.

"Lucifer! Nonsense, woman!" and dipping his hand in the font, he continued, with virtuous unction: "John Wesley, I baptize thee-'And whether she would or no, the poor little girl received the name of that great preacher.

A young couple, who appeared one Sunday at the altar to baptize their first child, were the victims of an amusing, though less serious blunder, but the young husband seemed painfully abashed.

"Name the child," said the clergyman, and the poor young man looked about in hopeless embarrassment as if in search of the forgotten words. At this critical moment his wife nuded nim: then he awoke to the requirements of the occassion and said. in a loud clear voice: "I will."

The ceremony of his last visit to the altar was evidently so fresh in his mind as to have quite overshadowed the significance of the present occa-

Cleveland Cannot Come.

Hon Grover Cleveland cannot attend the 20th of May celebration in Charlotte, as his business engagements are too pressing. He wrote to that effect to Senator Vance, through whom the invitation was extended by the committee. In informing the committee of this reply, Senator Vance says: "I am trying to get some one to go down and deliver the oration for you, (I have talked with several Senators) and hope to have one of them accept in a day or so." Senator Vance will be here and he will bring a party of distinguished men with him.-Charlotte News.
