Drake's Magazine for May opens with a breezy frontispiece. Janey B Hope Marr describes "The Birthday of Joss," as it is celebrated at Marysville, California. The article is illustrated in good style. The poetry of this number is noticeably good. Ione L Jones' "Spring" is amusing. J C Watkins' "A Reverie" shows fine feeling, as does W H Carruth's "Life." "Hodge" is a study of the modern English peasant from an American standpoint by George P Hasbrouck. Graham Claytor has a clever story in "Romance of a Letter of the Olden Time," illustrated. The third of Mrs Holloway's series of articles on home decoration treats of "Nurseries and Bedrooms," and is plentifully illustrated. Tom P Morgan's "Swearing Machine" is a humorous Chinese fantasy. "During Three Years," by Medora Clark is a pretty little sketch from life. David A Curtis contributes an exciting little story describing "A Ride with Gabriel."

Drake's famous "Quacks" are as usual up to the mark, pictures and all. This little magazine sells for 10c. Drake's Publishing Co, No 11 Frankfort street, New York.

A Pleasant Excursion.

The excursion to the Hammocks, which was tendered to the grand lodge of Odd Fellows on May 14th, was a most enjoyable affair. A most delightful evening was spent and all seemed to enjoy themselves. The delegation from Raleigh speak in the highest terms of their reception.

Mr Scarborough was called the second, Mr R N Andrews addressed the school in words of comfort. He was formerly a member of this school. The New Musical Club.

In the VISITOR of Monday last, we briefly alluded to a new musical club that had been recently organized here by some of the young gentlemen employed at the Raleigh & Gaston R R Shops. This is a step in the right direction, for although Raleigh has one first class musical organization here now in the J E F Club there is plenty of room for another, and the new DAVIS CLUB will strengthen our city as a musical centre.

The writer has a personal acquaintance with each member of both clubs and knows them to be gentlemen in every sense of the word, and all of them are thoroughly up in all that pertains to vocal music, but we wish especially to mention Mr Ernest Martin, whose clear sweet-ter voice has so often delighted his friends, and with a little cultivation he would be the companion of the South. Also Mr David Mebane, who has a baritone voice of unusual strength and sweetness, and at his home in Graham, his reputation is established as the singer of the district. Both of these young men as are Messrs Stone, Ennis and Matthews, of the Davis Club are machinest at the R & G R R Shops, and consequently their time are not their own, but we think they can and will do what we now propose to them. That is, let the J E F Club and the DAVIS CLUB at some day in the early future, give a concert for some worthy charity, and we think we could guarantee the Clubs a full house, and the object for which they sang a full purse. What say you, young gentlemen? We believe the whole city would attend, for we think with Shakespeare that—

"The man that hath no music in his soul,
Nor is not moved with concourse of sweet sounds
Is fit for treason, stratagems and spoils;
The motion of his spirit is dull as nights,
And his affections dark as Erebus,
Let not such man be trusted.
