

Trusting.

THOMAS J. MACMURRAY.

Let my way be bright or gloomy
As I journey here,
I can always feel contented
With my Saviour near.

He has promised He will guide me
All along life's way;
He will show me love and pity
When I faint or stray.

In the bygone years I've tested
His unbounded love;
Nor do I now fear to trust Him
As I onward move.

Shall I doubt him, then, when sorrow
Comes into my heart?
Dare I say he does not love me,
When the tear drops start?

O, no other loves so fondly!
He is my best friend;
From the first He loved me, and will
Love me to the end.

Then I'll go into the future
With a courage strong;
Though the road be rough and thorny
It will not be long.

Soon the glad, refulgent morning
Shall bring in the day,
And the undertone of sadness
Soon shall die away.

Then a song shall burst in gladness
On my listening ear,
And my heart, once lone and heavy
Shall be filled with cheer.

He Married the Youngest Sister

KINGSTON, May 18.—Invitations were issued for the marriage of Jacob Liefier to Miss Marian Post, both of this city.

Each is about twenty two years of age. When the guests assembled at the bride's home last evening to witness the ceremony there was no bridegroom. Miss Post was attired in bridal array, but the groom came not.

It was soon noticed that Miss Henrietta Post, a younger sister of the expected bride, was missing. While those present were discussing the situation young Liefier and Miss Henrietta Post alighted from a carriage and entered the house, where they informed the parents and guests that they had just been married.

During the excitement preliminary to the intended marriage young Liefier drove up in a carriage, which Miss Post entered, and they then drove to Kingston Point on the outskirts of the city.

It is believed that the elder daughter was cognizant of her sister's intended elopement. The young wife is only 14 years old.

Sweet Seventeen's Tootsey-Wootsies.

KEOKUK, IA, May 17.—There is on exhibition in this city the pattern of the insole of a pair of shoes made at Kakoka for a girl living at Rainbow, Mo.

The girl for whom these shoes were made is only seventeen years old, and is seven feet seven inches in height and weighs 235 pounds. She has had many offers to pose in a museum, all of which she has rejected. The insole referred to measures 15 1/2 inches in length and 1 1/2 inches in width.

An ancient Miss La very ill; "I can no more be Ga," she cried; "I'll go to Mass, if I get well, and to the Lord my sins confide. * * Go and Col Pa," she whispered low to Del, a sister by her bed; "and brother Cal, tell him to come—I'd see them all before I'm dead. For O, I Wis, I'm growing worse, and soon Ore, Jordan's brink I'll glide. The Ind, I know, is near at hand; soon, soon I'll be a heavenly bride." They gathered round the sick maid's bed, and sobbed aloud with heartfelt grief.

"Why, why dost cry for Me? You know I soon will find relief. Soon sister Ala I will see, and brother Kas who've gone before; and uncle Wash—" Here death stepped in and took the maid to the other shore. Alas! but death Tex us all in; we can't escape; his scythe do Mo the rich, the poor, the lame the halt; even kings must be by death laid low.
