In and Around the City.

Thermometer still up in the eighties.

The Henderson Tomahawk has suspended.

There's very little abatement in the heat.

The nights will soon be too cool to swing on the gates.

Cool wave in sight—so the knowing ones say.

The merry laugh of the pretty school girl is again heard in the land.

St. Marys and Peace Institute fast filling up.

It is rumored that a fast daily train will soon be put on between Raleigh and Wilkesboro.

On yesterday Albert Mial was bound over to the next term of Wake Superior Court by Justice Whitaker, for beating his wife with a hoe helve.

The Chamber of Commerce will meet on the evening of the 16th inst. and not tonight. The postponement is for the purpose of allowing more time for the committees to report.

Let the Railroad Company build a substantial and neat bridge over the road on Hillsboro street. It will be cheaper in the end, and certainly more creditable than the present one.

New Advertisements.

See advertisement of M. J. Pool, administrator.

See notice of sale of land in House Creek Township by Messrs Latta & Myatt.

Attention Odd Fellows!

Manteo Lodge No. 8, meets tonight at 7 o'clock, sharp. Every member is urged to attend. Work in the second degree. Visiting brethren will have a cordial welcome.

Stand Privileges at the State Fair.

Applications for privileges on the Fair grounds are rapidly coming in to the managers. Residents of Raleigh who wish for the privilege of selling refreshments of any kind should make early application to the Superintendent J. T. Patrick.

Personal Mention.

Miss Genevieve Jordan is in Cary visiting relatives and friends there.

Col. John D. Whitford, former President of the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad, is in the city.

Miss Sallie Richardson of Marks Creek Township was in the city today on her way to Chowan Baptist Female Institute located at Murfreesboro, N. C. Miss Richardson we learn intends taking a complete course there.

Mr. S. W. Terrell, of Rolesville, was in the city to lay.

Our young friend Willie Tarkinton left today for Asheville, which place he will make his future home. Willie is a good boy and we wish him abundant success wherever he goes. Can't something be done to keep such worthy young men with us?

Died.

Little Don, son of Mr. M. C. S. Noble, Superintendent of Wilmington Graded Schools, died on last Saturday morning. He was only about three years old and was on a visit to relatives in Selma. He was taken sick last Wednesday, and was thought to be better and taken to Wilmington, the home of his parents on Friday evening. Saturday morning he was taken worse and only lived a few hours. We extend our sympathies to the bereaved parents in the loss of their only child—a sweet boy.

A Creditable Establishment.

Messrs Yancey & Stronach, with their characteristic energy and business tact have added to their business a harness department where they will keep at all times a most complete stock in that line, from medium to the finest grades. These gentlemen are fully abreast with the times in their business operations, and we are informed by them, that they propose to make one of the finest displays in the industrial parade, and will occupy space at the fair for a splendid exhibit of carriages, buggies, carts, wagons and everything else pertaining to their business. It is a source of much gratification to note the interest being taken in the fair by our people generally, and we must think that our business men will, like Messrs Yancey & Stronach make arrangements for a full participation.

Reading Notice.

The September Drake's Magazine opens with a frolicsome frontispiece called "Young Lochinvar." Wilf. P. Pond writes entertainingly of ostrich farming in South Africa, his article being attractively illustrated. "Old Israel's Burglar" by Geo. A. Harris, illustrated, is a capital New England dialect sketch. Prof. Theo. F. Wolfe contributes a most appreciative article on, "The Scene of Gray's 'Elegy,'" which is accompanied by a fine full page drawing by F. C. Drake of the "Country Churchyard," in which the poem was written. The drawing is from a sketch made on the spot. Other articles and stories are "Tears, Idle Tears," by T. Johnson Evans; "Adulteration and a State Excise Commission;" "Eccentric Chins," by Cora Stuart Wheeler, and "Mother Crane," by Zenas Dane. The poetry of this number is by Ella Ainsinon and E. N. Lamont. "Jottings" and "Quacks" fulfill their respective missions with their usual ability. All this is for 10 cents.

The Hillsboro Road.

Correspondence of the VISITOR.

It is a self evident fact that unless some further work is done on the Hillsboro road between now and the State fair, that portion of it from Maj Tucker's corner to the Agricultural grounds will be utterly impassible to travel if we should have a rainy spell. It would be far worse than if the road had never been worked at all, for the reason that the red clay soil which has been loosened has not had time to become packed. If the writer understands the matter, the main object of widening and grading the road was to have it in readiness by the fair. Now much good work has been done, for which Supervisor McMackin and his force are greatly entitled to credit, but it has just progressed far enough to make it a bad job without additional labor is put upon it. The grading is all right, but this will avail nothing unless the red clay soil is packed with gravel. The least rain renders the road, not only impassible for vehicles, but pedestrians cannot pick their way along, without being almost stuck fast in the mud. If there is to be any gravel put on the road, now is the time for it to be done. Instead of the work house force being employed at the extreme end of the township line, let them be put to work on the road that has been already graded and widened, by placing on it a coating of gravel or sandy soil. Even if a roadway is made wide enough for the passage of ordinary vehicles, it will be a great help.

It is conceded that as the road is at present, it would have been much better if it had not been touched at all than left in its present condition.

OBSERVER.

Trouble puts up a great many packs and you must carry some one of them. There is no sandal so thick and well adjusted but some thorn will strike through it.

Equal to the Occasion.

Harper's Magazine.

There lived some years ago in western Pennsylvania an old circuit preacher, Father West by name, whose genial humor and general kindness of heart had greatly endeared him to all the people of his district. He was a particular favorite with the young folks matrimonially inclined, and his opportunities to 'tie the knot' were numerous. On one occasion he found upon his arrival at a certain town several couples awaiting his blessing. The old man was tired and wished to make short work of the job. "Stand up," he began, "and jine hands." Which, being done, he rattled through a marriage service, that, like himself, was original. "There," he said, when it was finished, "ye can go; ye're man and wife, ev'ry one o' ye."

Two of the couple hesitated, and finally made it apparent that in the sudden "jining" they had become confused, and had taken the hands of the wrong persons. The old preacher's eyes twinkled as he took in the situation, but he instantly straightened up, and with a wave of his hand dispersed them. "I married ye all," he said. "Sort yourselves."

Quiet Smiles.

Washington Critic: It is the cooper who does a 'staving business.'

Yonkers Statesman: The dog days seem to be all over. So do the dogs.

Washington Post: The big monopolist is like the pugilist, takes his corner.

St. Joseph News: Because a girl has no figure is no sign she is not a good mathematician.

Atchison Globe: No man is as good at home as his picture looks in his neighbor's album.

Binghamton Republican: The miller is a fit subject for universal sympathy; life is a regular grind to him.

Binghamton Leader: When a man is walking on his uppers the presumption is that he isn't well heeled.

Martha's Vineyard Herald: What's the matter with a man when he thinks the moon is as large as the club house?

Dallas News: It is often impossible to distinguish silence from wisdom, because they are frequently the same thing.

Troy Press: Deaf mutes are quite handy in discussion, and seem to have a great deal of information at their finger's end.

Elmira Gazette: When it becomes possible to tell a friend he has done well without telling him how he might have done better, then watch for the millenium.

He Told the Truth.

At the conclusion of a festival an excellent teacher, desirous of administering a trifling moral lesson, inquired of the boys if they had enjoyed the repast. With the ingenuous modesty of youth they all responded, "Yes, sir." "Then," asked the excellent teacher, "if you had slipped into the garden and picked those strawberries without my leave would they have tasted as good as now?" Every small boy in that stained and sticky company shrieked, "No, sir!" "Why not?" "Cause," said little Thomas, with the cheerfulness of conscious virtue, "then we shouldn't have had sugar and cream with 'em." —New York World.

Everybody Weighed.

Charlotte Democrat.

It would astonish many of us sometimes, if we could know what our neighbors think of us. Every man has some kind of a standing in the community where he lives, and he is sized up a great deal closer than he has any idea of. You may set it down as a fact that there isn't a twelve year old boy in your neighborhood who hasn't got his opinion of you, and he wouldn't be slow about expressing it either, if a stranger should ask him for it. Every man is always making character, whether he is doing anything else or not.

A Missouri Genius.

"I tell ye that boy's a geenyou," said a proud Missouri father, speaking of a long, lank youth of about eighteen years, whose legs seemed to start out right under his arms. "Yes, sir; he's a born geenyou, he is."

"Indeed? In what direction does his genius manifest itself?"

"Why, sir, mebbe you wont wanter b'leeve me, but that there boy kin bark like any kind of dog he ever saw; yes he kin. Here, Bob, bark some for the gentleman an' let 'im see I ain't lyin'."

Dress Trimmings

The new dress trimmings for this fall are perfect gems of loveliness. In our twelve years of experience in dress goods and trimmings we have never seen dress trimmings so lovely. The new vandike silk passementarie in all the colors tinsaled with gold and silver threads are the most perfect; velvets and plushes are also used to a great extent, and these are lovely on the large plaids and stripes which are so popular this season. There are lots of ladies who have not bought dress goods from us, but would if they would take the trouble to find out what kind of stock we are keeping, and at what price we are selling dress goods and trimmings, and they would readily see that we keep nothing but the latest productions, and that we are selling dress goods for a smaller price than any other store, and we are carrying as large a stock of dress goods as any store in Raleigh. When we make customers in dress goods we never lose them. We please
