THE OLD NORTH STATE.

Yesterday evening at 8 o'clock, at the Chapel of the Oxford Orphan Asylum, Mr. Eugene Crews and Miss Lois Swett, were united in marriage by Rev. Dr. B. F. Dixon.

Mr. Thomas Cale went to Goldsboro, on Friday last to purchase provisions for his family. His mule started to run, throwing him off of his cart on his head, causing concussion of the brain which caused his death on Saturday last.

Two weeks ago, Lige Wallace, a white man escaped from Capt. Hamlet's quarters on the Egypt and Osgood railroad and has not been heard of since.

Greensboro Patriot: Mr. P. R. Hines, who resides about one mile east of the city, has a pumpkin vine which bears thirty-nine pumpkins weighing on an average 20 pounds each. The longest runner of the vine is 42 feet long. Beat it, who can?

Murfreesboro Index: The peanut crop will turn loose a large amount of money in Hertford and Northampton counties this year. From strictly cotton growing counties they are getting to be counties for diversified crops, and we are glad to note the change.

Southern Farmer: There is to be a widespread movement for the establishment by the state of an industrial training school for women in North Carolina. This began two years ago, but it is learned now that the King's Daughters all over the state will soon prepare a memorial on the subject, which will be laid before the legislature. Various other influences will also be brought to bear.

Asheville Democrat: Mr. James Davis, of New Found, this county, lost a fine fat hog some time ago. The last seen of him was near a certain spot engaged in a fight with a brother hog of the same class and inclinations. Enquiry failed to bring him to light, till finally a dog scented something in a hollow fallen log near the scene of the combat. Upon examination the owners of the dog discovered something live in the log, and as they could not twist him or it out, proceeded to cut the log up until the varmint was liberated, when lo! out rolled Mr. Davis' hog. When his hogship disappeared it weighed something over 200 pounds, but 31 days' stay in the log reduced him to less than 100 pounds, and he was too weak to walk. It is supposed he ran from his adversary into the log, and becoming fastened could not retreat.

A Scolding Husband Cured.

N. Y. Ledger.

A woman, whom her husband used frequently to scold, went to a cunning man to inquire how she might cure him of his barbarity. The sagacious soothsayer heard her complaint; and after pronouncing some hard words, and using various gesticulations, while he filled a phial with colored liquid, desired her, whenever her husband was in a passion, to take a mouthful of the liquor and keep it in her mouth for five minutes. The woman, quite overjoyed at so simple a remedy, strictly followed the counsel which was given her, and by her silence escaped the usual annoyance. The contents of the bottle being at last expended, she returned to the cunning man; and anxiously begged to have another possessed of the same virtue.

"Daughter," said the man, "there was nothing in the bottle but brown sugar and water. When your husband is in a passion, hold your tongue and, my life on it, he will not scold you in future."

A Railroad Hero.

Richmond Times.

In the evidence taken in case of John W. Winn, freight conductor on the Richmond division of the Atlantic Coast Line, who was killed at Belfield station, on the Petersburg railroad, one Thursday morning, in attempting to get on the caboose while the train was in motion, it is shown that Winn fell and the wheels of the caboose passed over him, cutting his right leg off between the ankle and knee, his left leg off between the knee and hip, his left arm off between the elbow and shoulder. When he was missed the train was backed and he was found conscious and injured as described. Before he would allow anything to be done for him he directed the brakeman, who came to his assistance, to take charge of his train and put it on the siding, so as to prevent collision with a passenger train. He then made this brakeman examine the switches used so as to make sure that all was safe. He then remarked that he had performed his last duty, as he would never be able to work again.

An Editor's Dream.

The editor sat on a hard bottom chair trying to think of a thought, and he plunged all his fingers about through his hair, but not one topic they brought. He had written on temperance, tariff and trade, and the prospects of making a crop, and joked about ice cream and weak lemonade, till his readers had told him to stop. And weary of thinking sleep came to his eyes, and he pillowed his head on his desk, when the thoughts which, awake, had refused to arise, came in troops that were strong and grotesque. And as the ideas airily float, he selects the bright one of the tribe; and this is the gem which while dreaming he wrote: "Now is the time to subscribe."
