Local notices in this paper will be Five Cents per line each insertion.

LARGEST CITY CIRCULATION.

In and Around the City.

Politicians gone.

Now for the State Fair.

Raleigh quiet again.

The cotton market today was steady. Receipts about 400 bales.

Deputy Sheriff Elder, of New Hanover county, brought ten convicts to the penitentiary today.

Two young white men were bound over to court this morning for an affray yesterday in Bledsoe's Grove.

We regret to hear that Judge Boykin is quite indisposed, and, in consequence court adjourned today until Monday morning next.

We were shown by Mr. C. O. Ball, our clever Hargett street grocer this morning something new on this market. It was the old reliable Egerton Snuff put up by W. G. Parsons in one pound paper bags—it makes a very neat package and must form a very saleable one.

In passing W. B. Mann & Co's., to day we could not help admiring their fine display of hams, at their front windows. It is indeed the finest display we ever saw and we can truthfully say their English hams are superior to anything we have ever tasted. They keep a full stock on hand.

L. C. Bagwell Esq., has bought out J. D. Carroll, formerly Rogers & Carroll grocers and commission merchants, East Hargett street, where Mr. Bagwell will keep a first class stock of groceries on hand and will be glad to have his friends call on him—he will continue his undertaking business at same old stand where he keeps a full stock of goods in that line, which can be procured at all hours, day or night.

Respited.

The Governor today respited Steve Jacobs, who was to have been hung in Lumberton today. The Governor respited him until Oct. 10th, 1890, so that the matter could be brought up before the Supreme Court again. The prisoner was sentenced by the courts when he was not in custody of the law. This respite is given him by the Governor for the purpose of having the legal technical defect remedied by the Supreme Court.

Died.

At St. John's Hospital this morning at 10 o'clock, Mr. Will. T. Rogers in the 58th year of his age. He was formerly of Kentucky but has been a resident of this city for the past eighteen years. He was well known in this city where he had made many friends. His health has been very bad for several months; he was kindly cared for at that noble institution, St. John's Hospital. His body was sent to his old home in Kentucky this morning, leaving on the 4.45 train.

Wake Superior Court.

The following cases were disposed of yesterday:

State vs. M. F. King and Alvis Wood; indictment affray; defendants plead guilty; judgment suspended on payment of costs.

State vs. John H. and John C. Lee; indictment embezzlement; nolo contendere; judgment suspended upon payment of costs.

The remainder of the morning and afternoon session of the court was taken up in the trial of the case of the State vs. James Blackley, and had not been finished when court adjourned until this morning at 9:30 o'clock.

We will be glad to show every lady in the city as well as every one in the State our fine, sweet, English Hams. We have sold them for four years and two months and know what we are offering—every one guaranteed at W. B. Mann & Co's., corner of Fayetteville and Hargett streets.

The Rally Yesterday.

The Democratic rally and barbecue yesterday, was well attended and the greatest enthusiasm prevailed. The barbecue came fully up to expectation, and was relished in a manner that done credit to all concerned. The great event of the day were the speeches of Senator Vance, Congressman Eunn, State Auditor Sanderlin, Hon. W. H. Kitchen and others, which were listened to and elicited the warmest praise. Everything passed off in the most harmonious manner, nothing happening to mar the occasion in the least. It was a day long to be remembered in the annals of the "City of Oaks."

Personal Mention.

Col. Jno. B. Hussey, formerly of the Greensboro Patriot, but now a resident of Washington City, is here.

Mr. Wallace N. Scales of the Greensboro Patriot, is here shaking hands with friends.

"Joe" Caldwell of the Statesville Landmark, is here.

The Hon. G. W. Sanderlin, has a little daughter suffering from diphtheria, at his residence on North Blount street.

We are glad to state that the Rev. Dr. J. J. Hall has so far recovered from his recent illness as to be able to be out this evening.

Dead Letters.

It is stated that there are over six millions pieces of mail matter sent to the dead letter office annually. In commenting on this, the Lynchburg Virginian says:

"Attention to a few plain and simple rules, which naturally suggest themselves to any thinking person, would obviate the great bulk of these miscarriages. Mail matter should be plainly and correctly addressed, the name of the post office to which it is to be sent should be clearly and distinctly stated, and to avoid confusion from the similarity of abbreviations, as frequently used, the name of the State should also be given in full. In the case of mail addressed to small offices, or where there are offices of like names in different States, the name of the county should be added. Where mail matter is addressed to cities or free delivery offices the street and house number, or post office box number of the person addressed are important, and should always be given when it is possible to do so.

The Confederate Dead.

Gov. Fowle recently made an appeal in behalf of the scheme for placing head stones to mark the graves of such North Carolina Confederate Soldiers as are buried in the cemetery at Fredericksburg, Va. We notice that subscriptions are coming in pretty freely and no doubt soon the sum necessary for the purpose will be realized. The amount needed will be very small. We warmly advocate the proposition, but surely it does not go far enough. We think that there are enough patriotic survivors of the great struggle in our State to warrant a more extended appreciation of our lamented dead than the mere placing of slabs to mark their resting place. Why not subscribe enough to erect a suitable monument over them so that our people may point with pride to such a mark of love and admiration. Our crops are good and our people are now seemingly on the road to prosperity. Let them not forget those who sacrificed their lives that the principles of liberty might survive. Would it not be well for our patriotic Governor (and there is none in this land more so) to amend his proposition, and suggest that at the coming fair, a day be designated upon which all may hand in their contributions for the purpose. If thought better, a meeting might be called some evening during the exhibition, and a collection taken up. That the required amount would be raised at once, can hardly be doubted. Suppose it be tried.

Funeral.

The funeral of Miss Carrie Perkinson took place at the Tabernacle Church this evening at 2 o'clock, the pastor Rev. Dr. J. J. Hall assisted by Rev. Dr. J. W. Carter officiating. The following gentlemen acted as pall bearers:

Messrs M. A. Parker, C. O. Ball, Thomas Williams, Derwood Blake, Joseph Watts, and Julian Bevers. The floral offerings were profuse and beautiful; quite a large number in attendance. After the services the remains were taken to Mr Perkinson's old home in this county for interment.

IN MEMORIAM.

In memory of our lamented young friend, Miss Carrie Perkinson, who died of typhoid fever Thursday, September 25th, 1890, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Perkinson, on East Hargett street, Raleigh, N. C.

"Whom the Gods love die young." At the tender age of eighteen, just as she was budding into promising womanhood, just as life with all its glad hopes lay inviting before her, Death the merciless Reaper laid her low, and Angels closed her eyes on earth, to open, we humbly trust on the "Land that is fairer than day." The Master had need of her bright, young soul, need of one so well beloved by all who knew her. She gave her heart to Jesus at the tender age of thirteen, joined New Bethel Baptist Church, Wake county, and has since clung to His abiding love, with the faith of a little child. Sympathy sheds her un-checked tears for the bereaved parents, who for six long weeks have watched sorrowfully by her bed-side, administering to her wants and soothing her pains by careful nursing. Carrie grew into womanhood with all the beautiful traits of a dutiful daughter, a cheerful, devoted and affectionate sister, ever more thoughtful of parents, brothers and sisters than of herself, and how keenly will the loss be felt in the home circle, but how sweet the assurance that heaven is now her home, and that her sorrowing friends may meet her there. Within earth's bosom let her rest With white hands folded upon her breast; Oh, dear young sister sweetly sleep, While angel bands their vigils keep. We mourn thy loss with tears and sighs, But thou dost walk in Paradise, For sweetly sleep, they 'neath the sod, Whose souls are resting with our God. V. K. C.

A Busy Place.

Chicago Herald.

"Why are the depot platforms crowded down in this country?" asked a passenger of a Memphis conductor on a south bound train that was speeding along through the Ozark region of lower Missouri.

"Oh, I don't know," responded the official, "but the people always turn out here in good shape every time the train goes by."

At a little place a few miles north of the Arkansas line, the curious passenger got off and addressed several of the natives.

"What brings all these people down to the station?" he asked.

"'Tain't nothin'," was the response. "Jest same as this every day. People ain't got nothin' ter do down hyar 'cept haul in a little cotton an' watch the keers go by."

"But why do they all put on their best clothes and come down to the depot?"

"Nothin' to do. I told you."

"But how do they find time to get away?"

"From what?"

"Why, their business."

"Lawd, man, how many more times 'll I tell yer that thar ain't nothin' to do down hyar."

The train moved on through this modern Utopia, leaving the people standing on the platform with "nothin' ter do" but watch the disappearing cars and wait for the unbound passenger.

We Underbuy Because we Can.

We undersell, not alone because we can, but because we will. We think the target of success can be attained quicker by a close margin, and to do all this it requires cash and pluck; but along with pluck and hard cash must be mixed a fair share of horse sense. Now we are making a tremendous effort for the dress goods trade. Shall we get it? Some will say no, and some will say yes. Time alone can tell, but in the meantime we shall continue to remember that perseverance accomplishes all things. We are getting it, we are selling more dress goods this fall than we ever sold before. Why? because we have as nice a stock as can be found in Raleigh, and we are selling it for less money than any house in Raleigh. We have all the new things in trimmings. In these new silyer brade sets which are so popular we can save you just about one half the price asked elsewhere. Examine the dress goods at Swindell's before you buy, it may pay you handsomely.

In order to test the comparative merits of the various newspaper advertising mediums, and at the same time benefit the readers thereof, we shall consider this advertisement for one dollar in payment toward purchase of $20 or more worth of goods, if cut out and presented at time of purchase either in person or by mail.

The Suicide Lovers Cremated

New York, Sept. 24.—The funerals of the young German actress, Emilie Rossi and her artist love, Gustave Koch, each of whom committed suicide by mutual arrangement last Thursday, took place here today. The wishes of the young people that they should be cremated were carried out, and there was no attempt at a ceremony before the bodies were removed to the crematory. The friends of Koch filled three coaches, and those who paid the last tribute of respect to the actress occupied six coaches. The two corteges were followed to the crematory by a large crowd of curious people.
