A Cure for Consumption Found at Last.

The medical fraternity of New York are very much excited it seems over the wonderful Lymph treatment of tuberculosis and kindred diseases.

Dr. J. H. Linsley in an address at the Post Graduate Medical School and hospital said it was possible that Dr. Koch had made a most wonderful discovery. There was no doubt that the Lymph was most efficacious in many cases. He believed it would cure tuberculosis in its incipency and regarded it as a marvelous cure for Lupus.

Dr. Lomis injects the remedy into nine patients at Bellevue Hospital in the presence of a large number of physicians. All the patients are reported as doing well.

Several of the prominent Drs. of New York and other parts of the country have visited Dr. Koch in Berlin and have returned to experiment with the Lymph remedy in this country.

THE OLD NORTH STATE.

The profit of the First Building and Loan Association of Hickory during its first six months' existence reached 33 per cent.

Railroad and steamboat connections have been so arranged as to give Baltimore direct connection with Newberne, N. C.

The prize of a gold headed cane, suitably inscribed, offered by Mr. Thos. McBryde to the confederate soldier who participated in the greatest number of battles was awarded to Mr. J. L. Cooley, of Richmond county.—Robesonian.

On last Tuesday night a young colored man, named Wm. Hanks, was frozen to death near this place. He had left here drunk about dark on Tuesday, and started to his father's about two miles west of this place, and was not seen again until about mid-day yesterday when his body was found frozen stiff.—Chatham Record.

The Grady Hospital.

Twin City Daily.

The building of a Henry W. Grady hospital is an assured fact, and the corner stone will be laid at Atlanta, Ga., on December 23rd, the first anniversary of the death of Mr. Grady. It will cost $90,000, and will consist of a group of eight buildings, with accommodations for white and colored people, and all the modern improvements. The work will be pushed so that the hospital can soon enter upon its career of usefulness.

The State of North Carolina is constructing a canal nine miles long near Weldon, to develop the water power of the Roanoke River, and the superintendent of the work, Mr. C. J. Rhem, is reported by the New Berne Journal as saying that when completed the canal will furnish power second only in rank to the best work in the United States. He is also reported as saying that lands in the vicinity have increased eight fold during the last few months. Thus it is that testimony accumulates to prove that progress and improvement are confined to no particular section of the South—they appear to pervade every neighborhood.—Norfolk Ledger.

SLEEPS IN HIS COFFIN.

An Eccentric Character Who Retires to Rest in a Casket.

ALLIANCE, Ohio, Dec. 13.—Barney Frickle is a well known character in the vicinity of this city, one of whose eccentricities is to sleep every night in a coffin of his own manufacture, and which he made nearly twenty years ago, on a recovery from a severe illness, in order that it might be ready for his death. It is probable that his mind was unhinged by his illness, for it is said by those who know him best that he prepares himself solemnly for his death, and robes himself in a shroud every night on retiring. He is, however, very sensitive on the subject of this mania, and has been known to fly into a dangerous passion when teased about it, although usually very quiet and good natured.

The coffin is made of oak, and put together with considerable skill, Frickle having been a carpenter by trade though living a life of perfect idleness now on a small income inherited from his father, who was an inventor of some note during the early part of the century. The coffin is ornamented with much carving, representing Bible scenes and allegorical subjects, which are said by the very few who have been permitted to see it to show considerable artistic talent. Frickle is in his seventy fifth year, and has a very pleasant, dignified manner, and when he can be persuaded to talk does so very sensibly on any topic except when that of death is broached. When he becomes excited, and even violent when contradicted or argued with. He is a widower without children, having lost his wife when he was twenty-two years old and after only a week of married life.

Wasn't Missed.

A citizen who stands pretty well in his own estimation, and, for that matter, in the estimation of the public also, went abroad for a period of two years. When he returned to Detroit the first man he met was an old friend, who was about to pass him with a cool bow.

"What's the matter?" asked the returned traveler "Ain't you going to speak to a fellow after such an absence?"

"Absence? Been out of town?"

"Out of town! Why, man alive, I've been two years in Europe."

"No? Can't be possible. Why I never missed you," said his friend.

The other turned away in anger and button-holed an old chum, to whom he said:

"Well, I've got back."

"Been over to New York?" asked his chum.

"Thunder, man! I've been to the Old World!" exclaimed the disgruntled voyager.

"You don't say so?" was the amazed retort of the solemn looking chum.

The next acquaintance remarked as he stopped a moment: "I haven't seen you for a week or two. Had hay fever?"

That broke the combination. The returned traveler got on his dignity and declined to notice any more of his townmen till they sent a brass band around to serenade him, and he learned that it was a put up job to take him down a little. It is so hard to persuade the average mortal that he never will be missed.—Detroit Free Press.
