THAT IMMIGRATION BILL AGAIN.

The bill which passed the Senate yesterday, appropriating $10,000 to establish a Geological Survey of the State of North Carolina was a most important measure. States should be managed on business principles. If a live man, or a wide awake "Land and Improvement Company" owned the State of North Carolina, and desired to dispose of any considerable portion of it, he, or they, first of all would take steps to find out as near as possible what he, or they had, whether there were any valuable minerals hid away in the soil and all that, and if he, or they, were not experts in all these things, a first class expert (a geologist) would be procured. And while his or their million and a half of tenants were busy here and there in their various work, he or they would inform tenants here that the land would, with certain economic treatment produce such and such crops most profitable, and tenants there that by planting thus and thus and fertilizing with this or that, the same amount of labor and money would produce the largest profits; and tenants yonder that the largest yield to labor would be in digging coal, or mica, or gold, or corundum, or granite, or marble, or brown stone. He or they would have gotten all this information from the expert, (geologist) and he or they would not stop there, not by any means. While the million and a half of tenants are busy in their various sections and kinds of work following the directions furnished by the expert to great advantage; this Land and Improvement Company would constitute their Secretary a Real Estate Agent (Immigration Commissioner) and they would place all the information obtained by the expert, arranged as attractively as possible, in the hands of this Secretary, (Immigration Commissioner) that he might be the better enabled thereby to induce men from other states to come and buy these lands; and by having this information which had been arranged by the expert, this Secretary would be able to attract and direct persons who desire good tobacco lands, or corn lands, or the man who was on the hunt for mica, or the man who wanted to go into the emery business. In other words the Geological Survey is just what is needed, but you must have the Immigration Agent, or "Immigration Commissioner" if you please, to use it when published, or its vast information so tersely and chastely stated, will, like the "flower born to blush unseen," mould and decay on dusty shelves unused. No, no, gentlemen, North Carolina must have an Immigration department. We can't afford not to establish it; it will cost too much. Alas, it may be too late now; as we stated yesterday; we thought we had about secured the location of the Southern Intra-state Immigration Bureau for Raleigh, which means the placing of North Carolina in the very front in the Immigration work of the Southern States, but the refusal of that committee to report favorably on the bill to render more efficient the Immigration Department of North Carolina has rendered it doubtful. It is not believed that when the time for the decision comes, that those who have the matter in charge will place the headquarters of this great move in the midst of a people that manifest such glaring indifference to it. This means great loss in actual cash that would be scattered up and down the State each year, but it means a much more serious immediate loss in having the great Southern Inter states Exposition carried to some other State, for it will be held wherever the Bureau is located. And as this Exposition is to be held 60 days, with each of the 16 Southern States directly interested as exhibitors and advertisers, and then with millions of circulars and advertising publications sent all over the north and west, it is safe to put the visitors and exhibitors at 3,000 daily, and it is safe to estimate that as they will radiate through the State in various directions that they will average to spend $10 each, this will reach near two million dollars. Can we afford to continue the course that was started last Wednesday, afternoon by that committee? No, very, we must have an Immigration Commissioner.

The Immigration Convention.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 18.—The Maryland Immigration Convention meets today, and it is expected that a large number of representative men will be present to advocate measures for the advancement and welfare of the commonwealth. Through Governor Jackson's proclamation and the favorable mention of the newspapers the meeting has been given due publicity. Besides sufficient time has elapsed since the call was issued to give committees and individuals an opportunity to outline and think through some practical plans of action. So far as we know this is the first meeting held in any state to carry out the suggestions made at the Asheville Convention last December. This action, therefore, is important, not only as regards Maryland's interests, but as an object lesson to other states which have similar needs and must employ similar tactics to invite immigration and capital. Two things at least will be discussed before the convention today—the propriety of co-operating with the other Southern states, and the extent to which Maryland shall work alone for its own interests. In the latter category, doubtless, much will be said along the line of bringing settlers to the Terrapin State to occupy its lands and engage in truck farming. This is only one direction in which the State can be developed, but this is the fundamental industry, and it is manifestly better to do one thing well than to scatter effort over a dozen enterprises none of which can be carried through.

A scheme well digested and arranged to attract unemployed labor to Maryland farms must result in untold benefit to the state as an industrial community. Therefore, while it is not essential that attention should be directed solely in one direction, this, perhaps, is the first question for serious consideration. KANSAS CITY, Feb. 18, 1891. Hon. F. W. McElroy, of Oberlin Kansas says that the reports regarding the destitution among the farmers have not been exaggerated. There is a crying need for relief. A severe snow storm has been raging in that section for the past forty-eight hours and eighteen inches of snow covers the ground. The people are in more pressing need of assistance than ever in consequence of the change in the weather, which has added to starvation that of freezing to death.

James A. Trece, the colored Missionary to Africa, who went from Durham, has been heard from at Sierra Leone, West Africa. He is reported well and at work among the dark heathens.
