SECRETARY BLAINE.

It is mooted that the severe spell of sickness through which Secretary Blaine has been passing is not altogether of a physical character. There are intimations that his mind has become involved though Secretary Tracy scouts the idea.

THE SOUTHERN PRESBYTERIAN GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

This body now in session at Birmingham, Ala., is receiving numerous overtures, suggesting for changes in constitution, usage of the church.

The East Texas Presbytery ask that it be distinctly affirmed by the church law that women cannot speak in public assemblies.

Florida Presbytery asks if other denominations can use Presbyterian churches for worship.

North Ala. Presbytery asks the appointment of a general superintendent of Sunday schools.

Potato Bugs.

Growers of the Irish potato in North Carolina and Virginia are more or less troubled by two species of insects which attack the vines. DORYPHORA DECEMLINEATA, the Colorado beetle, is an old and well known pest. LYTA MURINA, the black Blister beetle is less known, but is becoming more plentiful each year. The best remedy for both these pests is Parish green or London purple. The purple costs less than the green, and is easier to handle, and therefore preferable. The poison is best applied wet, using one ounce to each six gallons of water. A common water pot will do for a few rows of vines, but where there is as much as one acre in a garden it will pay to get the knapsack sprayer, shown at figure 1 in Bulletin 76 of the N. C. Experiment Station. This bulletin will be sent free to any citizen of North Carolina, and to citizens of other States on receipt of six cents in stamps.

Instead of plain water it will be more satisfactory to use the Bordeaux Mixture, prepared according to Formula No. 3, given in the above mentioned bulletin, using the Bordeaux Mixture as if it were water. This compound mixture will protect the vines from blight as well as bugs. From four to six applications will be needed according as the weather is wet or dry. Rains wash the poison off the vines.—Gerald McCarthy, N. C. Experiment Station.

North Carolina Gems.

Argonaut. A North Carolinian says, in a letter to the editor of the Scotland Neck Democrat:

A few mornings since as I was making my way hurriedly through one of the most prominent streets in a northern city I noticed a large show window where there was almost everything nice in the way of jewelry, silver-ware, diamonds, and precious stones of all kinds, and paintings of celebrated men. In the midst of all this was a bronze table covered with velvet. In the centre of the table was the chief attraction to me. There was something in a chamois skin about 1 1/2 inches thick and probably 4 1/2 inches long. By the side of this lay some stones of the size of a pea, or a little larger. They were in a setting in the shape of a scarf pin, and the others lay loose. I noticed a card saying they were taken from amine in Alexander county, North Carolina.

They were very clear, brilliant little beauties, and I thought they would be very nice for a scarf pin.

I went in intending to buy one to put in my new spring scarf, I asked the salesman to let me see those little gems from the mines of North Carolina. He placed them on the showcase, and after examining the large piece, commenting on its sparkling brilliancy, (it weighed 8 ounces) I took up one of the little gems set in gold for a scarf pin, inquired the price. "Two hundred and twenty five dollars," said he.

"What!" said I in surprise. "More costly than diamonds"

"Well," said he, "that is taken from this large one here, and is the largest and finest in the world, save one. The largest in the world is owned by the Duke of Devonshire, and is a South American stone."

"Thank you," said I, "for your trouble and information, but I will not decide to purchase this morning."

And I walked out impressed that there are valuable things in the mines of North Carolina, if this was a sample.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Bush Lima Beans.

The old small Lima or Butter bean is well known in the South, and it is also well known that it is more productive in the South than the large Lima so popular at the North. But all pole beans are troublesome, and many farmers neglect to have a supply of Butter beans simply because of the bother of poles. The new Bush Lima does away with all this trouble. The plant grows no taller than ordinary snap beans, and is enormously productive, bearing continuously from July 1st until frost. By reason of closer planting a much larger crop can be grown per acre than on the climbing variety. This Bush Lima was raised in Campbell county, Virginia, and was distributed by Peter Henderson & Co., of New York, as Henderson's Bush Lima. This variety has been tested at the N. C. Experiment Station and found to be fully as valuable as claimed. There are several other Bush Lima beans now being offered, which belong to the large Lima class. These will be tested the coming season and reported on.—W. F. Massey, Horticulturist, N. C. Experiment Station.
