Difference Between Interest and Discount.

Mr. Weed was once pestered quite strongly by Hamberger to buy a gold watch worth $150 and while he was in company with a bank president of that day named Jacob Bellinger. Mr Weed's answer was that he had no money. Hamberg persisted that Bellinger would lend it, Finally Mr. Weed said that he did not expect to be able to pay for a watch like that for at least twenty years, and he figured that the interest on $150 for twenty years would make a principal and interest total of $400. Hamberger agreed, and then Mr. Weed said: "Now, Hamberger, I will tell you what I will do. I will give you my note for $400 for the watch, payable in twenty years, and Ballenger here will discount it for you at simple interest." He had meantime winked at Bellenger, who nodded his head in acquiescence, and the offer was promptly accepted. The note was drawn and the watch transferred, when Bellenger was asked to discount the paper. He figured awhile and then said: "Well, the discount at simple interest amounts to $100 more than the face of the note. You can pay me the $100 any time you like, Hamberger, and meanwhile I will keep the note." The scene that followed was both exciting and convicted that he had been sold, and knowledge of the difference between discount and interest. Mr. Weed kept the watch for about a week, while the joke lasted, and then returned it to the peddler who was overjoyed to get it back.

Mrs. Surratt's Execution.

Special to Baltimore Sun. Washington, May 24.—Rev. J. A Walter, pastor of St. Patrick's church, this city, has prepared and presented to the Catholic Historical Society of New York a paper on Mrs. Surratt, which he thinks will throw new light on the character, trial and execution of that unfortunate woman. It will be read before the society tomorrow night. Father Walter was pastor of St. Patrick's church when President Lincoln was assassinated, and Mrs. Surratt was a member of his congregation. On the very night that Booth fired the fatal shot she was at Father Walter's church, and that circum. stance alone, in the mind of the clergyman, was partial proof that she knew nothing of the plans prepared by the assassins at her house. He became interested in her case, was her confessor and adviser after her arrest as well as before, and did everything in his power, both by appeals to President Johnson and by bitter denunciations of the unjust measures adopted by the Government in its prosecution, to save her from the gal-

Although the occurrence which Father Walter describes in his paper occurred so long ago, he still feels fresh ly and keenly the injustice which led to Mrs. Surratt's execution. In speak ing of the matter to a Sun representative he said: "If President Johnson had been a man of courage the execution would not have taken place. He simply acted in accord. ance with public clamor, and signed the death warrant without even read. ing the testimony on which the woman had been convicted. 1 went to him and told him that I had read every line of the testimony, and that there was not enough evidence to hang a cat on; that I did not ask a pardon for Mrs. Suratt, nor a commutation of sentence, but merely a reprieve for ten days, in order that I might prove her innocence, but President Johnson did not have courage enough to comply with my request. He feared if he did so he would be accused of commending the deed that had put him in the presidential chair. So he consigned an innocent woman to a shameful death in order to escape the adverse criticism of a frenzied populace. The whole trial was an outrage, and there is no doubt that the Government resorted to fraudulent measures in order to obtain a conviction.

"Mr. Bradley, who defended John Surratt, had among his papers a telegraph book showing that John Surratt was in Elmira on the night of April 13, yet when a search was made for the botel register, that would have shown his presence there on that date, it had disappeared, and not until a year ago was I able to ascertain that the Government had taken possession of it, and had withheld it in order to deprive the prisoners of the benefit of this bit of evidence.

"John Surratt was allowed to escape a trial because the Government knew it had no case against him, and if he were innocent, his mother was also. It has been charged that I forbade Mrs. Surratt speaking, but this is not true. She declared her innocence up to the time of her death, and beyond this deciaration she had nothing to say."

Public Schools in the South.

Baltimore Sun.

The Philadelphia Times thinks the popular delusion fostered and kept aflame by northern partisan organs, that the public school system receives but scant support and encouragement in southern States, has received its quietus from the census in 1890. The idea, says the Times, turns out to be not only a myth but "a positive wrong to a great and progressive section of the union." From the figures quoted by the Times it appears that Mississippi has made a gain of 47:90 per cent.; Texas, 133:15 per cent; ludicrous, but Hamberger was finally North Carolina, 27:08; South Carolina, 50:89; Virginia, 65:06; West Virginia, had for his experience simply a clear | 34:42. Not a single northern state, adds the Times shows anything like that rate of increase. On the contrary, New Hampshire sustains a loss of 7:51 per cent. Maine 7:38 and Vermont one of 10:42 per cent. In the line of growth in the public school enrollment Connecticut has a 6:58 per cent, gain, Massachusetts 16:33. New York 1:38. Ohio 5:98, Pennsylvania 1:59, Iowa, 15:98. It was not to be expected, of course, that the Northern states would show heavy gains, as their school system has fully dea veloped for years, but the large gains in the south are none the less gratifying as showing remarkable progress in growth of the public schools and in popular appreciation of their value.

> Mr. Julian S. Carr was in Richmond Va., last Saturday. He was called upon by influential gentlemen and asked about the reported deal between the Durham Co-operative Co., and the American Tobacco Co., Mr. Carr said that no sale had taken place. An offer had been made to the American Tobacco Co. but had not been accepted. This seems to be the real status of the case.
