KEEPING OPEN AT NIGHT

THE VISITOR has had right much to say on the subject of early closing in the past and we propose to keep it up so long as we see the unnecessary hardship and privation being inflicted upon the entire mercantile community that is being born by the merchants and their employees. We say unnecessary, because it is unnessary and unprofitable. The only people who reap the profits of the night mercantile business are the gas and electric light people, and we might add, the Standard Oil Co.

There may be a few of the smaller stores which use cheap oil that do not burn all their night profits, but if the custom was to close at a reasonable hour, the same amount of business would be done, so that by early closing even they would lose nothing by it. This latter class may do their own business without much help and may claim that the only confinement they inflict is upon themselves, but this is not correct, for by their keeping open, those who do employ help feel that they must keep open in self defence. They are there by the obstructors of early closing. They do it doubtless without this intention, but the result is the same. A merchant said to us recently we would like to continue to close early, but such and such houses keep open and we shall be compelled to keep oeen too, to prevent our trade from being diverted. So that those who decline to close early are responsible for keep ing confined in the stores in various capacities two or three hundred persons from 12 to 15 hours each day.

Recently a lady in the city, in conversation with a merchant on the subject, remarked upon the hardships upon so many and that in other cities they closed all business at an early hour, &c. The merchant replied, oh, that might do for small towns but not for a city like Raleigh. Well, she replied that may be so, but in Washington City they close at five and six o'clock, in Baltimore about the same hour in Minneapolis, Minnesota, and about the same also in Richmond, Va., Louisville, Ky., and other towns of as many as half a million of inhabitants. As a matter of mercy, to the employees in the stores who are confined so long, with no time for recreation and self improvement, the people who patronize our merchants, ought to aid in this greatly needed reform by declining to purchase late.

Dudley Thought Aloud.

The habit of talking aloud was a neculiarity of one of the Earls of Dudley, and of this habit an amusing anecdote is told in the Sheffleld Telegraph. Lord Dudley, being invited to the house of a friend, had ordered his carriage at an early hour, having some miles to travel before he could obtain his accustomed repose To his mortification, after repeated inquries for Lord Dudley's carriage, it had not anything like a full cotton crop canarrived.

One of the guests, seeing how much his lordship was disconcerted by the event, very politely offered him a average of the corn crop. seat in his.

The gentleman in question had to pass his lordship's house on his return home, and, though he was al- settle with the friendly Indians for most a stranger to Lord Dudley, his the damage done them by the hosrank and position in the country tiles during the recent uprising at low but distinctly audible tone of it is worth.

"I'm very sorry I accepted his offer. I don't know the man. It was civil, certainly; but the worst is, I suppose, I must ask him to dinner."

He then relapsed into his former state of taciturnity, when, after a few minutes, the gentleman, pretending to be afflicted with the same failing and imitating his lordship's tone ob-

"Perhaps he'll think I did it to make his acquaintance. Why, I would have done the same to any farmer on estate. I hope he won't think it necessary so ask me to dinner, for I shant accept his invita-

Lord Dudley listened to him with earnest interest, immediately comprehending the joke which he himself had provoked, offered his hand with much hearty good will to his companion, making every proper apology for his involuntary rudeness, and from that night the travelers became inseparable friends.

She Swallowed Her False Teeth

BETHLEHEM, N. H., Aug. 9 - Miss Mary Gorman, of New Haven, Conn., who is at the Highland, fainted yesterday morning and while in the faint swallowed a silver plate with seven teeth attached to it.

The plate lodged about half way from the mouth to the stomach. Dr. Marsh, after much difficulty, located the obstruction with a silver "sound," but was unable to reach it with any forceps at his command.

Taking a silver sound twelve inches long the doctor curved its point and inserted it in the asophagus. He managed to hook it into the plate and after much exertion he extracted the

The laceration of the throat was comparatively slight and the resulting hemorrhage was easily stopped. The operation was preformed by the doctor unaided and no anæsathetic was used.

The case is unparalleled in the records of surgery.

A Novel Explosion.

At Moulton, Ala., John Siverly purchased a pound of powder, a pair of shoes and a new tin pan. He put the powder and shoes in the pan, set the pan in the back of his wagon where the sun shone directly on it, and started for home. He was not 20th smoking, and no fire was about the Fro wagon, but a mile out of town the powder exploded, knocking him out of the wagon, almost tearing his clothes off and burning him terribly about the face and body. The bright tin pan had acted as a sun glass to concentrate the rays of the sun to a focus on the powder, hence the novel explosion.-Ex.

It Saves Steam and Wood.

The Concord Standard says: "A steam condenser was put in the Cannon factory last week while the mills were closed down for the boiler inspection. By this new arrangement there is no noise made by the steam, and the steam is condensed and turned back into the pond with the other water. It also saves about a ton of coal per day, and one man fires the engine whereas it took two before.

The Book Trust Knocked Out.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

The price of the great Encyclopedia Britannica, *8 per volume for the English edition, and $5 per volume for the Scribner and the Stoddardt editions in the cheapest binding-has been a bar to its popular use.

Our new reprint of this work is furnished at $1.50 per volume, the greatest bargain ever known in the book trade. We have sold over half a million volumes in six months; proof that the public appreciate so great a bargain.

This reprint is not an abridgment, but a reproduction of the entire twenty-five volumes of the great Edinburg ninth edition, page for page, with new and later articles on important American topics, and new maps, later and better than in any other edition. In all repects it compares favorably with the nigh priced editions, and in point of maps and un rability of binding it is superior to them.

Heretofore we have sold only for cash. We now announce that we will deliver the set complete on small easy payments,

SPECIAL OFFER .- In order that you may see the bargain we offer, and examine as merits, we will furnish Voiume 1 by express for 60 cts, a fraction of actual cost; and at cts postage if wanted by ma".
