NEWS NOTES ABOUT THE CITY.

What Our Reporters See and Hear Worth Giving to Our Readers—News in Brief.

Cold wave looked for.
Masonic day next Wednesday.
Rev. Sam Jones says Raleigh is a hustling city—and he is right.
Damon and Pychiss at Metropolitan Hall tonight.
No tidings yet of Thanksgiving Day.
The Fifth Maryland troops arrived safely in Baltimore this morning.
Rev. Dr. Watkins, of this city, preached in the Presbyterian church at Durham last night.

Turkeys are already roosting high, notwithstanding Thanksgiving day has not been decided upon.

The Henderson Tomahawk will soon publish an eight page edition of 6,000 copies for the purpose of booming up the town of Henderson.

Remember that next Wednesday is Masonic day at the Exposition and the proceeds will be devoted to the Oxford Orphan Asylum.

About noon today there was a complete blockade of wagons loaded with cotton on Martin and Wilmington streets.

A case of disorderly conduct on the part of several colored men was dealt with by the mayor in the usual manner this morning.

It is estimated by our business men generally that the recent reception of the Maryland troops has added immensely to our commercial and social interests.

When the early freight train reached Durham yesterday morning it was found that one of the box cars had a hole burnt in the bottom over one of the trucks. It is supposed that tramps were in the car and started the fire.

One of the prettiest exhibits of candies to be found in the city, is at Messrs. Barbee & Pope's. Look at the beautiful glass case in front of their store. It is really tempting.

The cotton receipts in this city for the week ending yesterday were 149 bales against 1,546 for the corresponding time last year. Total receipts to date 11,656 bales against 106,000 for same time last year.

Several Baltimore gentlemen interested in the electric street car system, made a tour of inspection over the lines yesterday. They expressed themselves as highly pleased with the works in all respects.

The Colonel of the Fifth Maryland regiment told Mr. Frank Stronach at the depot when about to leave, that he had a most delightful time. He says he will pay us another visit at no distant day in company with business gentlemen.

Amid the general hilarity two of the Baltimore soldiers were left in Raleigh. They have been well cared for by Chief of Police Beartt, Mr. Frank Stronach and others. Passes were secured and a nice little sum of money given them. This morning they left for home in great glee, and full of praise for Raleigh.

When you work too much,

The Christian Sun Changes Hands.

Rev. W. G. Clements and Mr. D. J. Mood have purchased the Christian Sun and will continue its publication in Raleigh. The Sun is the organ of the Christian denomination for Virginia and North Carolina, and not only occupies a wide field for usefulness but is valuable property. Rev. Dr. J. Presley Barrett, the former editor and proprietor, goes to Virginia.

Located.
Prof. E. Mc. K. Goodwin has returned from Greensboro, where in conjunction with President Melver, the location of the Womans Normal and Industrial College was located.

Not a Sufficient Excuse.
A certain Raleigh man, who is given to a picturesque style of extravagance in speech, was expressing his disapproval of the fact that our city schools often give a holiday on a very slight pretext, and was heard to remark that our school teachers would immediately declare a holiday if the Czar of Russia should happen to stub his toe.

Fire.
An alarm of fire was sent out this morning about 3 o'clock caused from the burning of a frame building at the cotton factory, north of the city, which was used as a waste house. The firemen responded as soon as possible and the flames were extinguished without any serious loss.

Mr. J. S. Wynne, secretary and treasurer of the Raleigh Cotton Mills, desires to extend thanks to Capt. Englehard and Ferrell, and also to Messrs Woolcott, Henry Miller and others of the Raleigh Fire Department, for their timely efforts in extinguishing the fire which occurred in the waste room of said mills this morning.

Personal Mention.
Dr. J. C. Goodwin, of Durham, is in the city.

Mr. W. G. Thomas, of Louisburg, formerly of Raleigh is in the city.

Miss Sallie D. Herndon of Manchester, Va., is in the city, stopping with the family of Capt. H. M. Faucett.

Mrs. O. J. Carver was in the city today stopping and visiting her many friends, who are always glad to see her.

Misses Hattie Clegg, Irene Mitchell and Elenor Ballard of Franklinton, are visiting Misses Gertrude and Emma Johnson on Hillsboro street.

Mrs. P. A. Carter of Birmingham, Ala., arrived on the train from the west this afternoon, on a visit to Mrs. F. O. Moring and other relatives and friends.

Rev. B. B. Culbreth, of Warrenton, who has been in the city taking in the exposition, left for home yesterday. He paid us a very pleasant visit and we enjoyed, as we always do, his genial presence. He is pastor of Warren circuit and enjoys the highest esteem of a very large circle of friends.

Mrs. Col. James S. McClellan and daughters, Misses Mabel and Jessie, of Crawfordsville, Indiana, are spending the winter in Raleigh. They have rented and occupy the Boylan place 44 Hillsboro Street. These ladies are strangers among us and are worthy of kindly recognition which we hope and believe the ladies of our city will extend them.

Died.
An old and very highly esteemed citizen, Capt. James Simmons, of Weldon, died night before last, in the 92d year of his age. He was widely known in North Carolina as a prominent Methodist and a good and true man. He was blind for several years before his death, notwithstanding which he was remarkably cheerful and patient.

Get There.
This is the title of the lecture delivered last night by Rev. Sam P. Jones at Metropolitan Hall to one of the largest audiences that ever assembled in the building. It is useless to add that Mr. Jones "got there," and, it is evident that the people "went there." The lecture was in all respects, characteristic of the speaker, and fully sustained his high reputation as an impersonator of the ludicrous and pathetic. It is somewhat of a marvellous production, and seems to be in the main an admixture of Mr. Jones' many sayings and witticisms, interspersed with pointed application to the subject of the lecture. It does not abound with what might be termed solid argument, for it is a theme that does not really require it. It seems to have been the object of the speaker to amuse his audience and, in this respect, he succeeded in a most masterly style. His applications are well drawn, his pathos, at times overwhelming, and his wit runs entirely through the whole vein of the discourse. We cannot better sum up our ideas than to say, that Mr. Jones is a genius of the first class, and that he is as well, or perhaps, better qualified to sway the minds of people than many of the leading men of our day. His style is not that of overflowing eloquence. It is more of the conversational order, but of the most persuasive kind. His chief forte is evidently his masterly qualification in measuring his audience. He can do this, as no other man can, whom it has been our fortune to hear. In sarcasm and pickwickian allusions, he has but few equals, and the lashing of his tongue is as much to be dreaded by those who differ with him, as the proverbial index finger, of John Randolph, of Roanoke. [Mr. Jones is moulded in a pattern from which few of our noted men have issued. He can apparently abuse without malice, and some of his most scathing rebukes are declared by him to be for the best interest of those against whom they are directed. He can tell a joke superbly, and he can in the next moment carry his hearers with him high in the realms of emotion. He is gifted, in fact, with such versatility as few men possess, and, to this extent he has almost unbounded influence over his hearers. To see and hear him, is to have the occasion indelibly impressed upon the mind. His air is that of frankness, and, it is evident that in all matters he has the courage of his convictions.]

He says that it may be, he will abide with us for about ten days in the course of the coming year. If so, it will be an occasion of great interest, and it can be safely estimated that thousands will avail themselves of the opportunity to hear him.

Remember.
Remember that today you can see a line of tapestry, body brussels, velvet and moquette carpets, many of which we offer at less than cost, and tomorrow, Saturday 14th, we will have an auction sale of glassware, China, etc., at 11 o'clock, next door to our Wilmington street entrance.

Shoe DEPARTMENT!

In our Shoe Department, while catering to the wants of all or nearly all, and those who we do not cater for are the persons who want a shoe so low in price as not to be good, and shoes that are not good we do not care to sell. Of all articles which enter into our daily personal wear the shoe is probably the last to practice poor economy upon. While of course we keep shoes at a great many different prices, we do not lose sight of the fact that we must sell a good shoe or lose much of our shoe custom. We do not lose money in this way, but we do gain customers, for our new shoe department is larger than ever before, and we warmly recommend it to those who want reliable footwear at moderate prices.
