LARGEST CITY CIRCULATION

RALEIGH, N. C., DECEMBER 29, 1891

The Navy Department has announced the willingness of the United States Government to furnish a vessel to carry breadstuffs donated in this country for the relief of the starving peasantry of Russia. The Constellation, now at Annapolis, has been designated for the service. She will carry 6000 barrels of flour; and was formerly used on a like occasion to carry food to the famine stricken people of Ireland.

The situation on the Mexican border might easily assume a trouble some aspect. The Garza movement in itself is not entitled to be dignified by the name of revolution; the recruits are picked up readily in Mexico for any reckless cause in which there is a possibility of plunder. The business of our forces, State and National, is of course simply to keep out trespassers; and Texas alone will be quite competent to attend to that.

Mr. Geo. N. Ives' Christmas shipment of oysters was probably the largest one that ever left New Berne, says the Journal. It was upwards of 400 gallons and was distributed all over the State and as far as Atlanta. Some of the oysters were exceedingly fine—so much so that they commanded $1.50 gallon.

THE outlaw Bob Sims, who with two followers was lynched by an Alabama mob on Saturday night, had long cited the Bible in defense of every form of outlawry, and urged that it was the duty of Christians to defy the law. The people of Alabama seem to have taken him at his word with a literalness which if not justifiable was certainly not very surprising.

Dr. Watkins, of New York, asserts that he has, by the aid of a micro-flash light, obtained negatives of the grip germ after it had been assimilated with the flesh through the mucous membrane of the nasal organs. The germ, he says, is white and covered with fine hairs, and he adds that it attacks the blood rather than the membranes. This statement from a physician of repute and credibility sounds exceedingly specific; yet the profession will be coy about accepting negatives of a germ already assimilated with the blood. A germ in the free raw state would command greater confidence.

Family Life in Paris.

Whole families in Paris pack into flats of two and three rooms, out of which they always reserve a salon, which once a week is set out to receive visitors, but invariably closed to visitors on any other day, says Murray's Magazine. "Madame est sortie," says the concierge, and no one is allowed to go up to the fifth, or even sixth floor where they nestle. They work incessantly, the mother sewing and mending, the daughters, perhaps, doing embroidery for the shops. At night they sleep anywhere; perhaps, in a corner of a dark passage, screened off; the father or brother on a "shake down" in the salon; the mother and another crammed into a tiny cell, too small for one sleeper and intolerable for two. It is all dreadfully unwholesome, no doubt, especially as the whole is warmed by a pestilential "Choubersky" stove, poisonous, but cheap, and consequently adopted in such homes notwithstanding its dangerous effects. "We must live somehow, and rents are so dear that we cannot stop to think of such things." All are shabbily dressed, usually the mother is even frightfully untidy, but, they argue, no one can get into their den, "so what does that matter?"

If their means allow such a luxury, a femme de menage comes for a few hours a day and cooks their dinner, which is always very frugal and limited in quantity. If "help" can not be afforded, the mother does the cooking herself, turning everything to account, such as bits of dry bread soaked in the water which has boiled vegetables, and thus made into soup, with pea pags, etc. If they live near the Halles Centrales, or principal markets, the mother goes there late in the afternoon and looks for articles of food which could not bear a day's delay, and pounces upon these, because they are sold at any price.

Pretty Tight on the Light Fantastic.

At Henderson on Sunday morning a minister of one of the churches of that city preached a very unique and remarkably pointed sermon on world ly amusements, in which he took dancing generally through, but more particularly the german.

"Dem Same Aces."

Cincinnati Enquirer.
"Say, look heah, Jumbo, 't looks mighty funny how you hold dem same two aces putty neah ev'r han'."
"Does, huh?"
"Yest, it do; 't looks funniah ev'y time."

"Huh! s'pose next thing you all be sayin' I'm a cheatin'."

"Nup; I ain't makin' no 'situations, but say, look heah, Jumbo, what's dem mahks on de back o' dem dere cahds?"

"What mahks? I don't see no mahks."

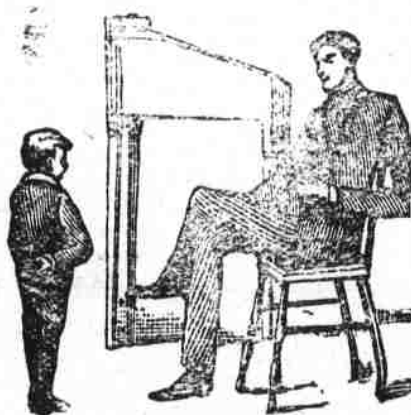

"Mebbe you all losin' yoh eyesight, Jumbo. I say mebbe you are. I guess I'll jis' teah dem two aces up."

The speaker proceeded to do so. A moment later he and Jumbo Venable, proprietor of a poison cafe at 21 Giffin street, were rolling over on the floor in desperate conflict.

The quiet but deeply earnest tone of their conversation had warned the crowd in the place of what was coming, and some one ran out and yelled "Police!" as soon as the fight began. When Sergeant King and Patrolmen Ryan and Love reached the place they found Johnson engaged in hammering Jumbo's head, and at the same time yelling, "Don't you draw no revolver on me." Johnson was locked up for assault and battery and Jumbo was "sloughed" on the charge of running a game of chance.

Fire! FIRE! Fire!

Are you insured? Is the evidence of your insurance insured? A good Fire Proof Safe for their protection is the only insurance for them. Have you a good Safe? When placing your insurance did you obtain bids from several companies and select the lowest priced company? Or did you consider and decide that the best company would prove the cheapest should a loss occur? Why not follow out the same line of reasoning in the selection of a good safe in which to insure your insurance policies, books and valuable papers from destruction by fire or from theft by burglars? When about to employ a lawyer for a case of importance, do you get bids from several and accept the lowest? Or do you employ a capable man who has had experience and a good record?
