Dislocated His Neck.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 27.—Judge George W. McClain, for twenty years judge of the circuit court, left his home Thursday morning to go to the court house. That was the last seen of him until yesterday, when his mangled body was discovered lying on the ground in an open court in the middle of the court house.
The head was crushed in, the legs and arms broken, and the neck dislocated. It is supposed that the unfortunate man entered a small walk at the top of the high walls surrounding the court, and lost his balance, fell over, dropping a distance of sixty feet. He was a warm personal friend of Gen. John C. Fremont.

SYNOPSIS—The scene of this amusing play is laid in a cooper's shop. Pantaloon, the master of the shop, has a pretty daughter called Columbine who has attracted the regard of Harlequin, one of Pantaloon's workmen, and also the attention of Dandy, a fine young gentleman. The Clown, another of Pantaloon's workmen, and a very active character, does little else but play ricks upon all the rest. Niggles is a very amusing character, and his mistakes are quite ludicrous and cause much fun. After a series of side splitting scenes and complicated situations, the good Fairy appears and takes Harlequin under protection; with the assistance of the Fairy, Harlequin is enabled to overcome all objections to his marriage with Columbine, and gains her hand over the head of his rival, Dandy.

THAT WE ARE "IN IT" TO STAY

until time disposes, and wish to gain our custom by
