Cruelty to Animals.

The attention of the reporter was called today to a warrant of arrest of a party who had been guilty of violating the statute in relation to cruelty to animals. There is hardly a day that passes in which some of our people do not witness scenes of brutality to animals, which, if properly looked into should subject the offenders to penalties. We frequently see horses on our streets that show the most cruel neglect, and oftentimes the poor creatures are made to bear excruciating misery.

The following is the statute on the subject, and we hope that those violating it may receive just punishment in every instance:

Section 2482, of the code reads: If any person shall wilfully overdrive, overload, wound, injure, torture, torment, deprive of necessary sustenance or cruelly beat, or needlessly mutilate, or kill, or cause or procure to be overdriven, overloaded, wounded, injured, tortured, tormented, or deprived of necessary sustenance, or to be cruelly beaten, needlessly mutilated, or killed as aforesaid, any useful beast, fowl or animal, every such offender shall for every such offence be guilty of a misdemeanor.

"The Raleigh."

The launching of this vessel is now the whole topic of talk, and everything connected with her is of interest. The Washington Post says: "The Raleigh is probably the last of her class which the Government is likely to build. She has a displacement of 3,183 tons and her speed will be nineteen knots an hour. In point of fleetness she will prove a useful addition to the Navy, and in this respect she is immeasurably superior to the Boston and Atlanta, who have the same tonnage, and whose building in 1883 marked the renaissance of the new Navy.

The Raleigh's sister ship, the Cincinnati, which is building at the navy yard at Brooklyn, will probably be the next vessel launched. Both cruisers will be in commission before the close of the year. Naval experts believe they will be superior to the other vessels now afloat which were built at private yards."
