THE BRAVEST OF THE BRAVE.

Mid the flower-wreathed tombs I stand,
Bearing lilies in my hand.
Comrades! in what soldier grave
Sleeps the bravest of the brave?

Is it he who sank to rest
With his colors round his breast?
Friendship makes his tomb a shrine,
Garlands veil it; ask not mine.

One low grave you tree beneath
Leaves no roses, wreath no wreath;
Yet no heart more high and warm
Ever dared the battle storm.

Never gleamed a prouder eye
In the front of victory;
Never foot had surer tread
On the field where heroes lie dead.

Than are hid within this tomb
Where the untended grasses bloom;
And no stone, with feigned distress,
Mocks the sacred holiness.

Youth and beauty, dauntless will,
Dreams that life could ne'er fulfill,
Here lie buried; here in peace
Wrongs and woes have found release.

Turning from my comrades' eyes,
Kneeling where a woman lies,
I strew lilies on the grave
Of the bravest of the brave.

—Thomas Wentworth Higginson.

A STRANGE DISEASE

NEW YORK June 11.—Annie Hanson, a young woman, is lying at the Montefiore House for Chronic Invalids suffering from a peculiar disease with which the doctors have never before met. They call it acromegaly. Owing to a disease of the woman's blood, which indirectly acts on her bones, she is growing in the most abnormal shape and should she live long she will lose all semblance to a human being. Her hands are about three times the size of an average man's in many of the measurements, particularly the finger ends. Measuring around the hand as for a glove the size given by the tape line is 102 inches.

Around the forehead she measures 44 inches; from the forehead to the chin the measurement is 94 inches. The jawbone seems to have outgrown other local bones, and has the appearance of a great weight dragging down the face. The nose measures about three inches, and has widened in proportion. The ears are also greatly increased in size and measure in length about four inches. They protrude in like manner.

The doctors are baffled. They are treating her for blood disease, but the malady progresses. She has been at the home three years and has every prospect of remaining there.

VENEZUELA'S REVOLUTION.

PANAMA, June 3.—Advices from Venezuela by late steamers state that the revolution continues to make steady progress. It is said that Crespo does not desire to carry the war into the capital, but rather to cut it off and to exhaust Dictator Palacio, so that eventually he will be compelled to surrender.

It is a significant fact that the priests are in sympathy with the revolution, and some have actually joined it. Fathers Lopez and Zuleta having military commands. The latter recently fought and won a battle. Palacio threatens to imprison the archbishop if he does not restrain the priests from interfering in politics. This threat, by a Catholic Dictator in a country almost wholly Catholic, has had the effect of exasperating the people, and those who had hitherto remained neutral have now openly announced that their sympathies are with the revolution.

Latest advices as to the actual movements of the maneuvering hostile forces state that a couple of weeks ago the Crespos effected the capture of another of Palacio's chief commanders General Salome, who, together with his whole force, was carried in triumph into Puerto Tucuyo. On the other hand, at about the same time, the government forces captured General Gill, one of Mora's lieutenants.

Another and more serious blow to the Crespos was the capture of a German vessel loaded with arms and munitions of war intended for their use.

Then she was a child, she cried for Castoria.
