LARGEST CITY CIRCULATION.

RALEIGH, JULY 14, 1892.

British politicians appear to be quite as uncertain as the American brand.

In selecting his new private secretary Mr. Cleveland had his eye on the Irish vote. He is one of the O's.

There is an epidemic of the red fever among southern railroads brought on probably by lightness and giddiness in their heads.

An exchange says the "gold cure" is doing great harm to the saloons; but it fails to say whether the harm is done by killing the desire for drink or by killing the drinkers.

If one of the great metropolitan newspapers was right when it said "tinkering in Congress paralyzes speculation" it might be a good thing for Congress to keep on "tinkering."

Belford's Monthly for July is fully up to the standard of these publications on literature and politics. Its politics are not so ultra partisan as to render its articles uninteresting to opposing minds.

A writer says—"It is evident that the men who write newspaper recipes for controlling women have never tried them." It is equally evident that this writer and those to whom he refers, are in the same boat and that they are alike unworthy and unfit for female company.

Senator Brice has evidently forgotten the fate of the man who told Noah the flood was only a little shower, or he would not talk so glibly of Third parties amounting to nothing. Every lover knows that third parties are proverbially troublesome.

Democratic Congressmen representing free silver districts have had a hard time between their desire to please their constituents and their wish to stand well with their party's Presidential candidate. Some of them temporarily escaped the drama by absconding themselves. They may have been cowardly but they were not politicians.

Mr. Cleveland is assuredly right about one thing. When he said: Let us keep the names of our wives and mothers sacred to our homes, and out of political clubs," he was answered by an "Amen," from the hearts of millions. But those Chicago women don't see it that way and they go on organizing their Frances-Cleveland clubs just the same.

The Governor of Pennsylvania has a rebellion on his hands at Homestead which he is managing very nicely, but the Governor of Idaho was not able to cope with the little war in his State and was compelled to appeal to the President for help.

There is a volcanic lake on the road from Irkutsk to Kiahkta, the frontier town of the Chinese Empire, where the cold is so terrible in winter that when a hurricane stirs the waters, the waves often freeze as waves, remaining in hammocks above the surface. It has an average depth of over a mile, and when frozen in a placid state the ice formed is so clear and colorless and yet so thick that when crossing it one gets the impression of passing over space.

"WARS AND RUMORS OF WARS."

The Pennsylvania state troops are in possession of Homestead, Pa., and the Carnegie mills will be manned by nonunion workmen as soon as they can be put there. How long they will stay after the troops are withdrawn is another question. The situation is not assuring.

At Wallace, Idaho, about 8,000 miners are idle on account of a disagreement between the union men and the owners on prices. The men have resorted to rifles and riot to enforce their views. The United States have sent troops to preserve order. The miners, prior to the arrival of the troops, had taken possession of all the mines for miles and driven out all non union workmen.

The negroes in Kentucky, at Paducah are rioting and are armed with rifles and revolvers. Troops have been sent to the scene of disturbance and a collision has taken place in which a soldier was killed.

At Gervais les Baens, in Savoy, a summer resort which is located on the side of mount Zole, a landslide occurred two days ago resulting in the death of near 200 people. Houses with their inhabitants were buried without a moment's warning.

At Peoria, Ill., night before last a cyclone swept over the city leaving destruction and death in its track. The steamer, Frank C. Folsom, lying at the wharf was capsized and about 30 people drowned.

In Chicago, 43 persons all of a sudden without any warning, drop through a rotten pavement into a basement and many are seriously hurt.

PENNSYLVANIA MILITIA MUSTY.

The troops while on their way to Homestead, were jeered and hooted at as scabs, which they could not stand, they belonging to some of the labor unions, and they openly declared they would not stand guard over non-union or scab workmen, but would rather keep them out of the mills. Carnegie has a hard time before him.

Some of the members of the recent Christian Endeavor Convention are willing to make affidavit that Dr. Parkhurst's exposures of the wickedness of New York City were entirely too mild.
