

Geological Survey.

Our State Geologist and his force are now at work in several of the mountain counties. One party is encamped near Jrauberry and is examining the iron beds of Watauga and Mitchell counties and another is camped near Meaville for the purpose of studying the mica industry. Mr. W. W. Ash is studying the forest resources and timber interests of Watauga, Mitchell and Yancey counties. Mr. J. V. Lewis is examining the granite deposits of the Salisbury and Mt. Airy belts, and Mr. W. L. Spoon is studying the marble beds of McDowell county.

We hope the middle section of the State may soon be visited, as so far, it seems to have been almost entirely overlooked.

Died.

We are pained to announce the death of Mrs. Maud L. Norwood, the wife of Mr. J. W. Norwood, which took place about 9:50 o'clock last night. The funeral service, conducted by Rev. J. N. Cole, took place at the residence, 216 E. Lenoir street, at 12:30 p. m. The remains were taken to the country for interment.

A Nice Ruse.

A friend, not a thousand miles away, whose wife has been spending a few weeks in the country, became tired of a grass widower's life and wrote to his better half that he was lonesome and sick. The good lady did not take the hint, and so the lonesome husband gave a party and invited a few lady friends. He wrote his wife about the fine time he had. The next train brought the wife home, baggage and all. This is a trick worth trying, and we commend it to the "grass widowers' club."

To Grape Growers

Correspondence of VISITOR
As the "June bugs" have been very destructive to some of the grape growers in this vicinity, I wish to inform them how they can get rid of the pests to a large extent, if taken advantage of in time. They will fly very little about sunset or early in the morning, and if you will take an open, inverted umbrella, hold it under the vine when the bugs are congregated and gently shake the vine they will fall into it, when you can pour them into a pail of water with a small amount of kerosene on top of the water and the work is accomplished. A sheet spread on the ground will answer the same purpose. If all of the grape growers in this vicinity will take hold of this suggestion, we can reduce them in a few seasons very materially, if not exterminate them.

A NEGRO SHOT BY THE HOWITZER.

Says the Charlotte Observer of yesterday:

"All the happenings in camp do not find their way into the papers except by chance. Mr. L. N. Schiff arrived home Monday night from camp and tells a few 'tales out of school.' The first time the Naval Reserve fired the 'powitzer,' as a Raleigh paper calls it, a 'digger' who got in the way just at that time, got his share of the shot. He fell on the field and was thought to be killed, but it turned out that he was not seriously wounded. One of the reserves rushed out to pick him up and was severely reprimanded (only it is spelled with a C-) by Lieut. Smith for being so humane. 'Let the dead bury their dead,' was the lieutenant's advice.

"The Hornets had to do the killing act also: their first act was to kill a large snake."

Why didn't our Charlotte contemporary spare the Reserves? They didn't go to shoot that darkey. The fact is, it was the darkey's fault. Seaman Billy Orf pulls the lanyard and it's none of his business to look out after perambulating "niggers." When the 'powitzer' pow wowed the darkey was walking down one of the drives in the camp ground about forty feet in front of the muzzle of the gun. Seaman Orr saw him shoot up in the air about fifteen feet and then lurch forward and hit the grit ten feet from the spot where he went up, falling on a bed of cactus. He went immediately to see if the darkey was hurt but found him only stunned and "skered." The Reserves had rammed the load in the gun with mullen leaves and these and the concussion was what did the work for 'ambo. He was aduled only a few minutes, and greatly relieved the cannoners by saying: "Boss, what is I done? I thought I wuz 'lowed to walk er round. Don't shoot no mo' but hear me talk fuss."

Now is the time to buy shoes while the prices are reduced, at Norris' Dry Goods Store.

HE WAS RIGHT.

It is stated that in Column 1 S. C. a policeman collared United States Senator Irby and compelled him to surrender a pistol which he was carrying around. Well, why shouldn't he? A United States Senator has no more right to violate the law than anybody else. If the pistol is good for the Senator, it is good for other people; if it is dangerous in other people's hand, it is dangerous in his. The policeman was right.
