LARGEST CITY CIRCULATION.

RALEIGH, SEPT. 14, 1892.

Purity is power The rose, among the sweet and most beautiful of God's creation, is armed with thorns—nature's sharp bayonet for warding off attack. Purity is the defense of beauty: modesty is the safeguard of innocence. "Keep thyself pure"—Exchange.

In Northern New Hampshire there are two churches, about ten miles apart, in one of which the gospel is preached by the wife of the clergyman who has charge of the other. The two pastors frequently exchange with each other.

IT LOOKS AWFUL SELFISH.

At this distance from the scene, the conduct of the people on Fire Island in refusing to allow the hundreds of passengers who were imprisoned on that pest ship in New York harbor from landing, looks extremely selfish. But that they should persist in the face of state and federal orders, only indicates how little intelligence there was behind their action.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

There is a great deal of common sense in getting scared in time.

Every one who owns a dog should own at least one fifth interest in a mad stone.

People who do wrong are always people who love wrong.

The man who sits down on the road to success and waits for a free ride is sure to get left.

Can you think of any question that concerns you more than where you are going to spend eternity?

No man who wears a long look on his face has a right to wear a short coat.

Minnie Merrick, a circus girl, was rescued from a lion's jaws at Winston, N. C., Friday.

J. P. Johnson, a San Francisco gripman, became infatuated with his boarding house mistress and shot her and himself.

There never was yet a lasting happiness built upon the wretchedness of another. Make a sacrifice for somebody else's happiness if you would be happy.

An exchange gives a report of a French duel with the following fictitious conclusion. "M. Letache having fired his shot, it was now the turn of M. Boboche to discharge his weapon. He waited calmly for a moment, brought up his pistol, awaited the word—and fired in the air." His seeming magnanimity was found in the fact that his antagonist had climbed a tree.

STARVED HERSELF TO DEATH.

Seven year old Mary Lechman, who lives with her uncle at McKeesport, Pa., was found almost dead Monday night, among the rafters in the warehouse of a brewery, where she had crawled over a week ago to escape a whipping at the hands of her uncle. Near the child were found the bones of what is supposed to be a rat, which, in her starved condition, she must have caught and ate. She is nothing but skin and bone, and cannot live. The uncle and his wife are under arrest.

LEAD AND ENCOURAGE THE BOY, BUT DO NOT COERCE.

Let your boy feel that you are always ready for him, always interested in his plans however wild they may be. You can no longer command him if that has been your only hold, then may God have mercy on you and on him. His judgment is beginning to grow perhaps. Encourage it. Take him into your councils. It will not hurt you to ask his advice about family matters. See how kindly he will take to being looked up to. Do you not like to have your friends put confidence in you? He is only another you. If his self respect be small, you are cherishing it growth.

How do you treat the tender plants in your garden? Do you keep sunshine away from them, and step on each tender little shoot as it lifts itself up to the unknown light of a great and stranger world? And as the plants gain strength and courage to stand alone, do you nip off their leaves savagely, and water them with a flood that they have hard work to stand against? Do you leave them to droop for a bit of encouragement, to grow away for want of a little support to guide them till strong enough to stand alone? Or do you furnish props on every side, and leave the fullgrown stem a derision to beholders?

Never let your boy feel that the household is complete with him. He may prefer anything to his home, but when his "reason grows," he can not help coming back to it, if you are faithful to your trust. Never indulge in despair, however hopeless the case may seem, but keep a beautiful trust in him that will shine in your welcome. He may not be worthy, but he will grow to it.

A NEW EXPERIMENT.

Two enterprising women in Chicago have set in motion an experiment that will be watched with interest by every home maker. They plan to bring together women in need of partial household help and young women who are willing to give such help. It is believed that there are many bright, intelligent young women who can perform several household tasks perfectly who would be glad to earn money by doing them under fair conditions that did not demand their whole time. It is known that there are many women continually in need of services. A dinner, maybe, is to be unexpectedly prepared, or help needed in arranging for an evening party; sweeping day has come and there is no one with strength to do the work, or costly bric a brac calls for a careful and experienced hand to dust and rearrange it. These and various other duties are the work for which "The Emergency Bureau" was organized.

A Roman consul once said to his son: "If ever you marry, let it be a woman who has enough education to superintend the setting of a meal of victuals, taste enough to dress herself, pride enough to wash before breakfast, and sense enough to hold her tongue when she has nothing to say."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

A grocer says if a lamp chimney is washed in coal oil and never even wiped with a damp cloth, it will be practically indestructive, and will smoke jet black before it will crack. He has recommended this remedy to customers for years, and never heard of its failing.

A weak solution of oxalic acid will remove bad mildew stains and iron rust from white goods; ordinarily, mildew will come out of wet with sour milk and laid in the sun. Use oxalic acid with care, as it is poisonous. Diluted hartshorn takes mildew from woolen goods.

To prevent rust, melt together three parts lard and one part of rosin in the powder. A very thin coating applied with a brush will preserve stoves and grates from rusting during summer, even in damp situations. For this purpose a portion of black lead may be added.

A very delicate perfume may be made by taking an ounce of the best Florentine orris and putting it in a bottle with two ounces of alcohol. Cork it tight and shake it well. After four or five days a few drops of this on a handkerchief will give just the faint violet odor that is so desirable.

It is said that if lamp chimneys, tumblers or other glass dishes are placed in cold water, with a half cup of table salt to each quart of water, which is brought slowly to a boil and boiled a half hour, then allowed to cool in the water, they will resist any sudden changes of temperature without cracking.

If we ever have a daughter we shall advise her to marry a man, and not an animal, one who has sense enough to know that a good wife is as far above him as the stars, and who is not ashamed to acknowledge it.—Exchange.
