OUR CITY WATER AGAIN.

We understand that some of the city and water works officials are displeased at something we had to say about the city water a few days since. We were not after the officials as individuals; we were after the water. We said it was bad, and we stick to it. We did not then know what was the matter with it, or who was to blame for it, but we knew the people are paying for good water and were not getting it and said so, in substance. We have looked into it since, however, and find that it all comes from a probably unexpected source, for which the officials, whoever else may be, are doubtless not to blame. A gentleman who understands the trouble, informs us that the large terra cotta piping that brings the water from the main stream passes directly under where the phosphate mills stood, and that the mills had in them when they were burned down recently, about one hundred tons of acid. This, of course, was left on the earth in the debris of the fire, and when the rain came a few days ago, some of this acid was dissolved and found its way into these pipes and coming in contact with the iron in the city piping, it formed sulphate of iron, or copras, which, though not dangerous, does not taste very good. The rain we had since the fire, was light or doubtless we should have had much more complaint of the water. When the rains of the approaching winter set in we shall have a full supply of copperas water unless our water works people just take the pipes up and move them away from the bed of acid. Indeed this will have to be done, as it will no doubt effect the water for years; for 100 tons of acid will last a long time. And in moving the pipes it would be well to remember that it will gradually spread to considerable distance.

We make the suggestion that they move the pipes, if possible before any more rain falls, as they will no doubt be compelled to do so sooner or later.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

If money could be as easily borrowed as trouble, this world would be full of round shouldered men.

They who are over anxious to know how the world values them, will seldom be set down at their own price.

To get angry is to become unhappy. Somebody has said that an incorrigible office seeker out West, died not long since, and his friends applied to a journalist for an epitaph for his tomb, he suggested this, "Here lies John Smith in the only place which he never sought."

A Western exchange says, a rattle snake was killed in a saloon in his town. The snake was bitten, in a fight with another snake, and went to the saloon for some antidote and was killed.

Gov. Flower, of New York, has shown by his conduct during the fight against the cholera, that he is the right man in the right place, for such an emergency.

An enterprising individual has bid $120,000 for the exclusive privilege of selling peanuts at the World's Fair. He is no shell back.

The King of Siam has been asked to send an exhibit to the Chicago Fair, and will probably forward a few of his sacred white elephants if there is an assurance given that the circus men will not try to paint their own animals in the same whitewashed colors and advertise them as being wool dyed.

If this country ever has a king or emperor it will probably be a successful prize fighter. See the willingness of all classes of our people to bow down to the new champion.

The "Monroe doctrine" once more confronts our British cousins; this time in Venezuela.

Now that Lieut. Peary has been rescued, why would it not be a good idea to put a stop to this Arctic expedition foolishness?

The statistician is yet unborn who can turn out statistics to please all political parties. The republicans quote commissioner Peck as "an eminent statistician," while the democrats accuse him of being an ordinary, everyday liar, and they have appointed a committee the duty of which is to prove the accusation.

A New York daily disinfected the paper upon which a recent issue was printed. It is a great pity that some of the matter printed in the New York papers could not be disinfected before it gets before the public.

A clever swindler was frustrated trying to pass a forged draft for $8000 from the State Bank of Wisconsin, on the Park National Bank of New York.

THE KILLING OF BROWN.

Winston Sentinel.
Mr. W. H. Allison, of Statesville, a brother of Thos Allison, was in the city today on his way to Dobson to carry home the remains of his brother for interment. Relieved by a representative of the Sentinel, Mr Allison gave the following account of the killing of Brown, which he heard from a preliminary examination of witnesses, both for the State and the defense, while he was attending the recent session of Dobson court:

The difficulty began over a foot race. They were to meet and run this race but Mr. Brown did not come to the appointment. Allison met him later that evening and asked him for the forfeit of money. They had up a forfeit. Thereupon Brown made some insulting remark and then they went from one word to another until Brown struck Allison with his fist, grazing his head, and knocking Allison from the sidewalk where they were standing. He then followed Allison into the gutter. Allison had a stick in his hand which Brown jerked away from him. It was then that Allison drew his pistol. Brown advanced upon him and struck at him with the stick, knocking Allison's hat off.

"It was then that Allison fired the first shot. He was backing at the time down the street and warned Brown not to come any further towards him, or he would shoot again. Brown defied the pistol and still advanced with his stick raised, when Allison fired the second shot which proved fatal.

Allison's friends never entertained the idea of removing the trial from Surry county, and neither he nor his friends for a moment had any fears of lynching."

A BAD BREAK.

A doctor, who was treating one of his patients for a simple but tedious disorder, found the man in such an irritable condition that he began to cheer him up. But his words fell on deaf ears, for the man had been housed up so long that he was firmly convinced that his time had come.

"Tut, tut," said the doctor. "I'll have you round again in a few days if you'll keep quiet and take the medicine. Why, man, I suffer from the same complaint as you myself."

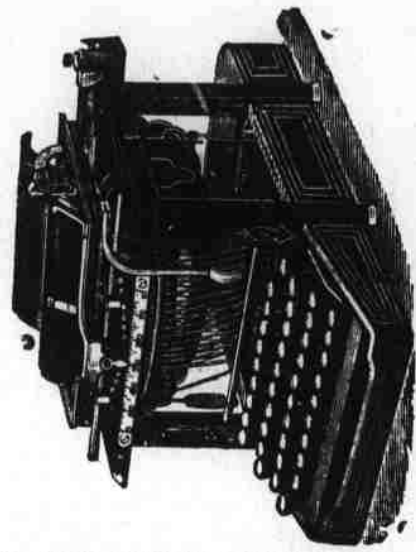

There was a look of compassion in the patient's eyes as he reached out the bottle and said:

"In that case, doctor, do take some of this medicine you prescribed for me."

The man had grown almost hopeful under the influence of the doctor's reassuring words, but his hopes were cruelly dashed the next moment as the medical man drew back from the bottle with a shudder and replied, "No thanks"—New York Evening Sun.

A new steel process which is being tested at works in Chattanooga is expected to solve the steel problem for the South. By this method the molten iron is passed through basic slag, which removes the silicon and prepares the metal for subsequent treatment in the basic converter.

WOODWORTH CITY lies about 30 miles north of Chattanooga, within a few miles of Hamont, the county seat of Wauhatchie county, and between Tracey City and the celebrated Beersheba Springs, the Saratoga of the South. It is in the centre of the rapidly developing coal and iron district of Tennessee, and within its borders are found coal, iron, zinc, marble and asbestos, with various hard woods, such as oak, chestnut, maple, hickory, locust, hickory, ash, pine, cherry and black walnut in abundance. The village of Woodworth, with several hundred inhabitants, contains Churches, schools, stores, Post-office and telegraph station, and a number of manufacturing industries, all of which are located on the property and form part of Woodworth City.

The proceeds of the sale of these lots will be used to develop the mineral resources of the property and build up a large and thriving city. Quick application for these lots should be made, as the right is reserved to advance the price without notice.
