A Raleighite Abroad.

Correspondence of the VISITOR:

RATON, N. M., Sept. 29

We have been so busy acquainting Mrs. Wood with her new home, making ready our celebration of centennial missions &c., that we have been compelled to neglect the folks at home somewhat.

Yes, Mrs. Wood arrived at Raton Sunday, Sept. 11, and a more tired, fagged out, disappointed woman would be hard to find.

Arriving in the night at an hour when most people were in bed, when darkness mantled these old mountains in gloom and as they looked grimly down upon her and the little wee village below, she exclaimed:

"Ok, isn't it awful!"

She is not one who easily and readily adapts herself to surroundings; the change is so vast, the experience so great and (to her) so unaccustomed that I am afraid it will require more than the ordinary time for her to feel at home, if she ever do so.

One who is compelled because of ill health, a sense of duty, or any other requirement to leave Raleigh, the dear people there, and make a home in New Mexico, needs sympathy.

A young man in Raleigh wrote me sometime ago asking for information as to people, country and the chances for a livelihood out here; stating also that his health was bad. I wrote him that if he had any reasons to seek a climate like New Mexico to come, and come at once; that there would be no trouble about living; lots of work in this great west, but never leave North Carolina to come here for the money there is in it. Now and then a person may have to leave N. C. because of ill health, but no well man needs to leave in order to seek his fortune elsewhere. Indeed, there are few opportunities not to be found in the Old North State.

And, then, there is the giving up of so much—so much that is beautiful; so much that is lovely and lovable, the giving up of the best, the noblest, the biggest hearted, the most God loving and God-fearing people on the face of this earth. All over this broad land you will find dear good people, but they are not "Tar Heels."

A few days ago I chanced to meet a negro from Goldsboro, he is the ugliest, blackest, greasiest "digger" I think I ever saw, I felt like throwing my arms around him and hugging the black rascal. He said: "Dava a nudder digger ober hiar in String Town, an ef you'll jes let dat nigger no you 's frum Norf Carolina, you'll see sum ob de mightiest hustlin eber ben dun in dis Mexico. She'll jes cook tur ye, an' wash fu' ye, an' not chargin you na cent."

I have not yet seen the old lady, but will look her up soon. What kind of being would that be, who had lived in North Carolina associated in any station with her people, whose heart did not burn with pride and affection for the dear Old State. I speak what I feel and advise what I accepted for myself, when I say stay in North Carolina until necessity says go.

I said sometime ago that the almost perpetual sunshine was the glory of New Mexico. Had we the beautiful trees, the green lawns, the shrubbery, the flowers, the waving fields of wheat, corn and cotton, we could not have the sunshine. Possibly, the hardest thing for a law abiding, God fearing individual to endure in New Mexico and most of the West, is its lawlessness and aversion to religion and piety. In Raleigh the Christian (on Sunday) seeks not his own pleasure, only as he finds it in the service of his master instead of the horse race, baseball, shooting matches, &c. Groups are seen all over the city carrying the Gospel from door to door, in New Mexico. Those who do not profess Christianity use the Sabbath in the satisfaction of their baser natures, while Christians use it as a day of fasting. Most of the men hang around bars, drink beer and smoke cigars, indeed, Main street in Raton on Sundays, as far as the saloons reach, is fumigated with tobacco smoke, and the odor of beer and whiskey. You may talk about political and social reforms, this party may offer one thing and the other party something else, sun up the evils of the ram traffic and the only relief that is relief indeed is offered through the Prohibition party.

A TIMELY LEGEND.

Cincinnati Commercial.

That fear of cholera kills more people than the cholera itself was illustrated by a story told by an old German citizen yesterday. Many years ago, while the cholera was raging in parts of Germany and extending daily its baneful influence, an old doctor taking an evening stroll outside the gates of the town, saw coming towards him a horrible object. Its form and shape was human, but its aspect was a mass of corruption.

"Who are you?" asked the doctor.

"I am the cholera."

"Where are you going?"

"I am going to that town."

The doctor, terrified, plead and begged for the monster to change its route, but to no purpose. Its road led through the town and into the town it must go. But to compromise with the good old doctor the cholera promised not to kill more than five people in the town. Next morning the physician was called to a patient whom he found to have the cholera. The cases multiplied hourly and consternation spread among the people of the city, and all those who could get away did so. There were not five, but there were 5,000 deaths in the town. After the cholera had subsided the doctor, in his walks, again met the cholera spectre, and upbraided it, for not having kept its word with him. Said the cholera:

"I swear I have kept my promise, not killed more than five of your fellow citizens. The others died of fear."

One hundred and nine thousand locomotives are at present running on the earth. Europe has 63,000, America 40,000, Asia 3,330, Australia 2,000 and Africa 700. In Europe, Great Britain and Ireland take premier position with 17,030 engines, Germany has 15,000, France 11,000, Austria Hungary, the second largest Continental country, has 5,000, Italy 4,000, Russia 3,500, Belgium 2,000, Holland and Spain 1,000 each, Switzerland 1,300 and the remaining European States 2,600.

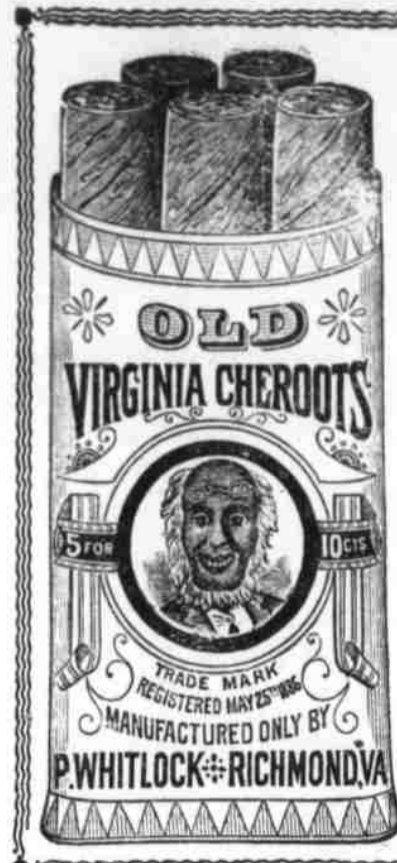

Mr. Robert W. Dewar, an Exempt Fireman of Jackson Engine Co., Long Island City, N. Y., says that at Christmas, 1890, he could only take a small dinner, as he was in a fearful condition from Dyspepsia. The next summer he went to Europe for his health, but came home unimproved. In the fall he decided upon a thorough trial of

Hood's Sarsaparilla

And by Christmas had a hearty appetite, healthy digestion, and was perfectly well. His cure was due wholly to Hood's Sarsaparilla.

WOODWORTH CITY lies about 30 miles north of Chattanooga, within a few miles of Atlanta, the county seat of Grundy county, and between Tracey City and the celebrated Beersheba Springs, the Saratoga of the South. It is in the centre of the rapidly developing coal and iron district of Tennessee, and within its borders are found coal, iron, zinc, marble and asbestos, with various hard woods, such as oak, chestnut, maple, beech, locust, hickory, ash, pine, cherry and black walnut in abundance. The village of Grundy, with several hundred inhabitants, contains Churches, schools, Stores, Post-office and telegraph station, and a number of manufacturing industries, all of which are located on the property and form part of Woodworth City.

The proceeds of the sale of these lots will be used to develop the mineral resources of the property and build up a large and thriving city. Quick application for these lots should be made, as the right is reserved to advance the price without notice.
