Destructive Fire.

The Wilmington Messenger gives the following particulars of a destructive fire which took place in Clinton Simpson county, yesterday morning:

The fire originated in a store occupied by the Farmer's Alliance, though there were but few goods on hand. This Alliance store having failed last spring, the stock of goods were being closed out. From this the fire crossed the street to the store occupied by Mr. Hanstein, and it swept the whole solid block, known as Wall street, up to and including the store of Maj. W. A. Johnson, and a dwelling back of his store. The dwelling of Mr. C. P. Johnson just across the street was also damaged.

The office of the Caucasian, run by Marion Butler, was burned, the press and all materials being ruined. His subscription books were the only things saved.

The county jail was burned, but no prisoners escaped. The prisoners in jail were the first to discover the fire, the Alliance store being near them.

The origin of the fire is not positively known. Some claim it to be the work of an incendiary and of a political one too. It is all wrapped in mystery.

The origin, be what it may, the result is a serious blow to the town, but plucky Clinton will not be downed. Before the fire had ceased its work a contract was being made for a new building.

The total loss will be between $75,000 and $100,000. The principal losers are: Maj. W. A. Johnson, M. Hanstein, J. H. Royal, T. M. Ferrell, Dr. H. Holliday, R. H. Hubbard, W. R. King & Co., Alex. Ferrell, Dr. J. A. Stevens, H. B. Giddens, W. H. Duncan, Warren Johnson, Dr. G. W. Moseley, Marion Butler and J. R. Howard.

None of the parties had insurance except Mr. Hanstein.

The American Homeopathist says: A French physician contends that groaning and crying are two grand operations by which nature allays anguish, that those patients who give way to their natural feelings more speedily recover from accidents and operations than those who suppose it unworthy in a man to betray such symptoms of cowardice as either to groan or cry. He tells of a man who reduced his pulse from 126 to 60 in the course of a few hours by giving full vent to his emotion. If people are at all unhappy about anything, let them go into their rooms and comfort themselves with a loud boo-hoo, and they will feel one hundred percent better afterward. In accordance with this the crying of children should not be too greatly discouraged. What is natural is nearly always useful.

The Maury Democrat, of Columbia, Tenn., in urging the importance of sanitary precautions, says: "There are some back yards in this town that a cholera germ would travel a thousand miles out of the way to find a lodging place in." There is a rather forcible way of calling attention to an evil that needs correction, not only in Columbia, but in all the other towns and cities of this blessed country. The fact that "a man's house is his castle" does not justify him in bombarding his neighbors from his back yard in peace times,

HOW TO ROLL AN UMBRELLA.

N. Y. Sun.

"No, not that way! I never knew one man in a hundred to do it right," said the clerk in the umbrella store.

His remarks were directed at a customer, who had proceeded to roll up a recently purchased umbrella to return it to its case. He had done what 99 per cent. of persons who handle umbrellas do when they attempt to gather the folds of cloth in a neat roll around the stick. He had grasped the handle with his right hand and was twisting the silk through with his left hand.

"That will spoil that umbrella when you have repeated the operation half a dozen times," the clerk continued, "and then you will be coming here and complaining that that $6 umbrella wasn't worth 50 cents. Now, see what you were doing! You were making a pretty roll, but did you notice that you were twisting the ribs and braces in a spiral around the stick as well as the cloth? You may have noticed that your umbrella sticks and catches when you try to raise it. That's because you don't know how to roll it. You twist the joints of the ribs and braces all out of shape. There, you see, you have twisted the ends of those ribs all around in a bunch on one side of the handle. Now let me show you how an umbrella should be rolled."

The clerk took the maltreated article, shook out the folds of silk, and worked the spiral out of the ribs, and proceeded to demonstrate the proper methods of umbrella rolling. Grasping the handle in his right hand, he encircled the silk at the tip with his left, which he slipped down about half way of the cloth, pressing the ribs and braces firmly against the stick. The right hand was then shifted to the tips of the ribs, which were held firmly against the stick, while the left hand adjusted the roll of cloth around them. By this method the ribs were kept straight along the stick and not partly twisted around it, as the customer's roll.

"One thing is very noticeable in the pictures of public men, generals and statesmen during the civil war," says the Boston Transcript, "and that is that they wore their hair in a fashion that seems to have passed away as completely as perukes. The present close clipped way of wearing the hair is one of the results of the war. It came from civilian imitation of military manners."

WOODWORTH CITY lies about 30 miles north of Chattanooga, within a few miles of Altamont, the county seat of Grundy county, and between Tracey City and the celebrated Brersheba Springs, the Saratoga of the South. It is in the centre of the rapidly developing coal and iron district of Tennessee, and within its borders are found coal, iron, zinc, marble and asbestos, with various hard woods, such as oak, chestnut, maple, peach, locust, hickory, ash, pine, cherry and black walnut in abundance. The village of Gruettli, with several hundred inhabitants, contains Churches, Schools, Stores, Post-office and telegraph station, and a number of manufacturing industries, all of which are located on the property and form part of Woodworth City.

The proceeds of the sale of these lots will be used to develop the mineral resources of the property and build up a large and thriving city. Quick application for these lots should be made, as the right is reserved to advance the price without notice.
