The Charlotte Daily News says:—Mr. Creighton, who "affirmed" that he would walk to Washington if Cleveland was elected, is getting ready for the trip. Mr. Creighton's partner in the bargain has magnanimously extended the time so that the trip may be made when blackberries are ripe.

THE LAST MAN.

A Strange Story—The Twelve Apostles.

NEW YORK Nov. 12.—A man was found dead recently in the gutter, in Birmingham, Ala. Even in death there was a mute look of terror in the bloodshot eyes, and the bloated face had grown pale and haggard at the coming of the grim destroyer. "Drink!" said the coroner's jury, but the old man who came and looked for a long time on the pale, dead face said, with a shudder, as he turned away. "It was the hand of God." This man who died in the gutter, was the last of a fated thirteen, and in the death of each and all of them the Christian will read the vengeance of an insulted Deity. At the leading hotel in a southern city, in the summer of 1865, thirteen men, wearing the uniform of confederate officers, sat down to a dinner. Every man in the party belonged to a grand old southern family, and many of the names are illustrious in the history of the country.

More drinks were ordered; every man filled his glass, the lights were turned low, and the thirteen men declared themselves Christ and his twelve apostles. A young man who had commanded a regiment acted the role of Christ and, for the occasion, each man assumed the name of one of the apostles. There was a wrangle as to who should impersonate Judas, but more drinks were ordered, and then a young lieutenant agreed to act the character of the betrayer of the Savior. It was midnight, but peals of drunken laughter awoke the echoes in every nook and corner of the old house. Again and again the decanters were passed around and the blasphemous mockery of the last supper went on. A Bible was called for, and the young officer who was impersonating the Savior turned to the New Testament and read aloud the solemn words of Christ.

The reading was interrupted now and then by some coarse jest or ribald laughter while expressions like "Judas, pass the bottle," would excite the mirth of the drunken crowd to a point that completely drowned the voice of the reader. At the proper point in the reading bread was passed around and the wine was represented by glasses filled to the brim with brandy. "He that drinketh from the bottle with me shall betray me!" exclaimed the mock Christ in a tragic manner, and placing a decanter to the lips he swallowed a quantity of brandy, then passed it to Judas across the table. This was greeted with peals of laughter, and again the other mock apostles yelled, "Judas, pass the bottle!" All night long this mockery went on, and when morning came the thirteen men were in a drunken stupor. It was several days before they all recovered from the effects of that night's debauchery. Then they separated. That supper had indeed been their last; they never met again. From that night the vengeance of God followed those thirteen men.

Everything they undertook failed. Apples of gold turned to Dead Sea fruit in the hands. One by one they went to the dogs, and every man of them met a horrible death. Repeated failure in business drove one of them to desperation and crime. One of them was lynched in Texas for murder. The young man who had impersonated Christ was drowned in the Brazos river while fleeing from a vigilance committee on the stolen horse, and his body was never recovered. Another while in a drunken stupor, was caught in a burning building and perished in the flames. One was stabbed in the heart by a woman he had betrayed, and still another was murdered in a low brothel in a western city. So far as can be learned not one of them ever received Christian burial, and their graves are unmarked and unknown. The man who died in the gutter and was buried in the potter's field was the last of that mocking company of thirteen.

WOODWORTH CITY lies about 30 miles north of Chattanooga, within a few miles of Alabama, the county seat of Grundy county, and between Tracey City and the celebrated Beersheba Springs, the Seatons of the South. It is in the center of the rapidly developing coal and iron district of Tennessee, and within its borders are found coal, iron, zinc, marble and asbestos. With various hard woods, such as oak, chestnut, maple, peach, locust, hickory, ash, pine, cherry and black walnut in abundance. The village of growth, with several hundred inhabitants, contains Churches, Schools, Stores, Post-office and telegraph station, and a number of manufacturing industries, all of which are located on the property and form part of Woodworth City.

The proceeds of the sale of these lots will be used to develop the mineral resources of the property and build up a large and thriving city. Quick application for these lots should be made, as the right is reserved to advance the price without notice. For further particulars apply to
