NEW YEAR.

MYRTA L. AVARY.

New Year cometh fresh and sweet,
Crowned with roses yet to be;
Stepped she with unshod feet
Forth from Time's eternity.

New Year bringeth in her hands
Gifts of undiscovered grace,
And the look upon her face
No man living understandeth.

Unto one she bringeth gold,
Unto one—a snow white dove—
Filleth pure and perfect love
From the New Year's tender hold.

Unto one she giveth faith,
Talisman of hope and power;
And for one—each living flower
Doubt must doom to fruitless death!

Words of hope and words of dread—
Many guess but none may know
She must utter ere she go
Words that cannot be unsaid.

She who comes our hearts to win
With the roses that shall be,
Treadeth—as, alas we see—
On the roses that have been.

Child of ages unexpressed,
Welcome to the brave of heart
We are strong to do our part,
With or without hope, our best.
—New Orleans Times-Democrat

Here is an English law of the time of Richard III: "He who draws blonde from another by wilful blow struck, be that blow be struck with a weapon or with bee's hand only, lose the hand with which the wound was inflicted; a hand blow that causes no blonde to flow must be punished by ducking the offender thrice."

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.
