THE WEEKLY POST, Washington Post. THE FLYING YEAR .

BY CHRISTIAN BURKE.

As a dream when night is done, As a shadow flees the sun, As a ship whose white sails skim Over the horizon dim, As a life complete of days Vanisheth from mortal ways, As a hope that pales to fear-Is the dying of the year.

As the first gold shaft of light Shivers through the wreck of night, As the thrill and stir that bring Promise of the budding spring. As new thoughts of life that rise Mirrored in a sick man's eyes. As strange joy to hearts forlorn— Se another year is born.

Glad or sad, a dwindling span Is the little life of man. Love and hope and work and tears Fly before the flying years. Yet shall tremulous hearts grow told, All the story is not told-For around us as a sea Spreads God's great eternity.

Life is Misery
