THE POSTMASTER AT ROLESVILLE.

ROLESVILLE, Wake county, N. C., June 8th, 1893.

Correspondence of the VISITOR.

The latest news in our quiet little town is in the shape of an official announcement from the Postoffice department that one Dr. L. B. Young a practicing physician had been appointed postmaster.

The present incumbent takes occasion to say that he would gladly have recommended any aspirant to the "Postmaster General" for the position, and saved representative Bunn the trouble of appearing before his "Majesty" in his behalf, had he known he wanted the position. However, it is a lucrative office and the present "postmaster" has held it under every administration from "Gen. Grant" to the present time, and no administration before has found it necessary for the safety of the government to remove FOURTH class "postmasters." Still I have grown fat and rich from the emoluments of the office, and I am a firm believer in rotation of good offices, and this one especially. It is to be remembered it is a fourth class office, it has a semi-weekly mail, carried by a man and a pony. Office hours are from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m., and seven days to the week, and in consideration of the services rendered, it pays the just and full sum of from thirty to thirty six dollars per annum, hence I retire and bow in humble submission to him who runs this government according to his own notion. Still I must confess I am loth to give up the office, feeling somewhat like it belongs to me as I have been on the "government staff" so long, and such an important figure, and am familiar with all the different administrations, I say it is with reluctance that I retire, I know the decree has gone forth and it is irrevocable. Unfortunately I held the office under this administration before. However should "Uncle Sam" hear of my running a "post office" here in my own interest reducing postage to one cent, and postal cards to fifty cents per hundred, and free delivery he need not be surprised for we do not allow any "one man" to run any one branch of business, in his own interest in Rolesville without opposition. However, faithful servants for services rendered should be rewarded. I would also call Representative Bunn's attention to the fact that we have another worthy brother fellow citizen, in our town who ought to have a place for services rendered, in the person of "an old soldier" who rendered service all through the late war, in the 63th N. C. State Troops. He is nearly 47 years old, has been married nearly 24 years, weighs nearly 117 pounds has 14 children 10 of which are girls, has had 8 in the last ten years and still this old comrade complains, says he has never had a half a chance, if he had there would have been some children at his house. Now for his valiant service through the war and civil service at home he should have a place or a pension. I suggest him for chief clerk under the new postmaster, now his appointment has been confirmed by the Senate.

Truly S. W. TERRELL, Retiring "Postmaster."

AN OLD WOMAN'S FIDELITY.

Richmond State. There are many touching incidents of the recent reinterment exercises unwritten. The one which follows was related to the Topic writer and vouched for by some ladies of the highest respectability. Last Wednesday just as the doors of the capitol were about to be closed to all comers preparatory to the removal of the remains of President Davis an old colored woman came up and asked permission to enter. She was told that it was too late. She replied, if you will hear my tale I am sure you will let me in. She then related that she had been a nurse in the hospitals during the war, and that many a poor Confederate had died in her arms. She had traveled far to view the body of the man she loved. She was colored, but a true old rebel, and loved all the soldiers. As she spoke the tears streamed from her aged eyes. Her story touched the sentinel, and a number of white people of both sexes added their requests to hers and she was admitted. In the rotunda she met a son of her former master, who came out with her at the eastern door. He substantiated all she had said about herself, and said she was one of the truest and most devoted of nurses and southern to the core. The last seen of the old woman she was making her way to Grace street, and said she was going to Hollywood if she had to walk every step of the way. Mr. Davis had some detractors in the south as well as the north, and this truthful tale of a colored woman's tribute is something for all such, whether at home or abroad, to put in their little pipes and smoke on.

The railroads are more effectually boycotting the World's Fair than the preachers can ever hope to do.

Judge Lynch has given no indication of his intention to take a summer vacation.

Brother Nordhoff, the Herald's Ambassador, is persona non grata to the present government of Hawaii. Will James Gordon Bennett II declare war, or will he recall his ambassador?

When a man says "the days of miracles have passed," he simply means that the world is no longer as credulous as it once was.

The majority of the Presbyterian Assembly which convicted Dr. Briggs of heresy may find itself convicted of intolerance by the intelligent and unprejudiced public.

Eulalia might be forgiven for betting on a horse race, as long as she won; but if she continues to smoke cigarettes in public, good bye to her popularity.

Whatever else may be dragged into partisan politics, there are two things which should never be pensions, and the financial system of the country.

THE JERSEY "MUSKEETER."

The residents of Jersey City are much puzzled over the strange performances of the mosquitoes, whose sway extends from Staten Island to Cape May. Two weeks ago these pests swooped down on Jersey City in swarms and made life a torment Saturday night and Sunday. They disturbed worshippers in churches and made such a fierce onslaught on housekeepers that they went to work, even on Sunday, and put mosquito netting in the windows and doors. A couple of days afterwards not a mosquito was to be seen and none has been seen since. The people are wondering where this swarm came from.

A FOLLOWER OF DR. BRIGGS.

The Rev. Dr. James H. Ecob, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, Albany, N. Y., has announced from the pulpit his intention of withdrawing from the Presbyterian church. Dr. Ecob has always entertained liberal views, and has strongly advocated the introduction of the short creed for acceptance of persons desiring to join the Presbyterian church and not wishing to accept the Confession of Faith. The trial of Dr. Briggs has interested Dr. Ecob greatly. His withdrawal from the church was precipitated by the decision of the general assembly in suspending Dr. Briggs.

To Legislative Aspirants: The boom that booms in the spring, tra-la, Has a long, hot summer to face, And between the great heat And the political beat, 'Twill have not a sign or a trace, tra-la, It is best not to hurry or be in a worry To be the first that gets in the race, And that's why I say and I sing, You had better let up on a boom in the spring, tra-la.
