Virginia has turned out the best summer advertisement of the season in the alleged discovery of a bed of natural ice. Who wouldn't be anxious to spend a few weeks in the vicinity of such a cooling curiosity?

PRICE OF FIREWORKS RAISED.

Assistant Secretary Curtis, of the treasury department, has practically raised the price of 4th of July firecrackers. He has decided that in assessing imported firecrackers at the rate of 8 cents per pound, account must be taken of the outside coverings as well as the inside coverings, as to do otherwise would be making an allowance for tare, which is expressly prohibited.

MOURNERS FALL IN A GRAVE.

At Calvary cemetery, St. Joseph, Mo., the casket containing the body of Thomas Tyman was deposited temporarily at the grave, with the mourners grouped around it. Suddenly the side of the grave caved in and three of the mourners were precipitated into it, with the coffin on top of them. They were quickly rescued from their embarrassing position, suffering only from fright and a few slight bruises.

SEARED BY HOT RINGS.

Mrs. Josephine M. Cox, of New York, a summer cottager at Asbury Park, accidentally upset a kettle of boiling fat, and burned her arms to the elbows. The gold rings on her fingers became so heated that they burned deep into the flesh. A physician will endeavor to graft new skin upon the burnt portions. The rings had to be filed from Mrs. Cox's fingers.

LOST BY SUNDAY OPENING.

Attorney General Olney, in response to a request from Secretary Carlisle for an opinion as to whether the appropriations made by congress in aid of the world's fair, including the appropriations in aid of the government exhibit, have been rendered unavailable by the opening on Sundays, has decided as follows: "In my judgment, the appropriations referred to are as available now as before the decision of the Court of Appeals on Sundays, with the single exception that no more money ought to be paid to the Illinois corporation known as the World's Columbian Exposition."

STRANGE CAUSES OF FIRE.

Moistened tin turnings and chips have been known to take fire.

A rat gnawing at a box of grease dipped friction matches ignited the lot.

A running belt which sagged into a mass of greasy waste set fire to the heap by friction.

A cockroach crawled from an oil receptacle to a gas jet, where the creature's oily body took fire, and, falling, spread the flames.

A stream from a fireman's hose started a second fire while putting out the first, the water having penetrated an adjoining building containing quicklime.

DR. ELLISON.

A NOTORIOUS SWINDLER WHO OPERATED IN WILMINGTON SOME TIME AGO.

The Savannah News gives an account of the doings of a notorious swindler who operated in Wilmington a little over a year ago as "Dr. Ellison" and swindled Rev. Dr. Nash and others out of small amount of money. The News says of him: "Gen. Moxley," the notorious swindler of Catholic priests and convent schools, who tried about fourteen months ago to pass worthless checks on St. Vincent's Academy and Father William Mayer and afterward worked the same game with success in Jacksonville only to be captured a day later by the sisters of the St. Augustine Convent; is out of the Florida penitentiary and back at his old tricks.

Gen. Moxley was sentenced to a years imprisonment and he was liberated June 10. He lost no time in shaking the orange land from his shoes, and was soon marching through Georgia on his way to fields new and pastures green.

A few days ago he landed in Macon under the name of McSherry, and on Friday appeared at the St. Stanislaus College and introduced himself as Mr. McSherry, of Jacksonville, Fla. He claimed to be a representative of the Richmond & Danville system, that he was returning from Chicago and desired to put his son at school there. He was informed that no students was taken there, but was referred to Spring Hill College at Mobile, Ala., as a proper place for the boy.

The would be Mr. McSherry continued the conversation. He was thoroughly conversant with many topics that he conceived would interest his hearers, and finally presented a check which he desired to have cash advanced on, as he said he was temporarily embarrassed and needed some money. This, however, was suspected. He then made an exit and was seen no more.

MOXLEY'S OLD STYLE.

The man's manner of procedure is precisely that adopted by the notorious Moxley, and from the description, McSherry and Moxley are undoubtedly one and the same. He seems during his known rascality career to have confined his operations to institutions of learning, priests and ministers. Last winter he worked his way to Florida through Virginia, Tennessee, the Carolinas and Georgia, nearly everywhere meeting with success until caught by the Sisters of St. Joseph at the convent in St. Augustine.

As yet the embarrassed Mr. McSherry has not been apprehended, but it is very probable that ere long he will again be in the toils.

STOOD BY HIS SHIP.

Further reports of the sinking of the Victoria show that Admiral Tryon stood on the bridge of the last and gave orders from his post as he was going down. His last order to his men was that they should try to save themselves.

The other feature of the disaster is the fact that nearly all of the marines were lost. Under the regulations in the English navy it is the duty of the marines when a ship is struck to go below and close the water tight compartments. The Victoria's marines marched solidly to that duty and to death. The disaster, awful as it has been, will at least do this good to England. It will strengthen that sentiment of duty which has made the English navy especially so strong in battle. Tryon doubtless had this thought as he stood at his post. He stood there in obedience purely to the sentiment. He could have had no hope of accomplishing any practical benefit to the ship, but he did give new life to the navy as he sank with his foot on the bridge. Just as truly did each mariner who went to his death, instead of leaping from the English navy of the future stronger.
