LARGEST CITY CIRCULATION

RALEIGH JULY 10, 1893

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

Mr Cleveland is improving.

The total visible supply of cotton for the world is 2,826,936 bales.

At a watering place on the coast of England, Saturday, a sail boat upset and 20 people were drowned.

Mrs Wm E Herit, sister of President Cleveland, has gone to Buzzard's Bay in response to a telegram.

Sixty three deaths in all are the number now reported killed in Iowa from last Thursday night's storm. At Pomeroy there are 44 dead and from 13 to 20 are dying.

Owen Faison, negro, near Goldsboro, in a drunken row with his wife shot at her, but the bullet killed a two year old child of a neighbor which the woman was holding. The murderer escaped.

ECHOES FROM IOWA'S CYCLONE

POMEROY, Ia., July 9.—The seven churches of this place were demolished and no services were held today. The damage to property here is estimated at $250,000.

Ten dead and a half dozen dying mark the path of the tornado across the southern half of Cherokee county.

The first and most dreadful casualty occurred at the home of Samuel Bugh. Bugh, his wife and three children were killed. Another child, the last of the family, was fatally injured. The bodies were carried from sixty rods to half a mile from the house and pounded into the mud.

On an adjacent farm John Peters was fatally injured. He had his family in the cellar, and just before the house was swept away, went upstairs to close a door which had been blown open.

Half a mile east the eldest daughter of a farmer named Slater was blown eighty rods from the house. Her right leg was twisted off at the thigh and found two miles away.

Marion Johnson was killed on his farm, being blown out of the cellar in which, with his son and two daughters, he had taken refuge. The children saved themselves by throwing their arms about each other.

At Holsten, a little to the south in Ida county, hallstones weighing from two to three pounds cracked through the windows, shingles and tin roofs. The country was covered six miles wide and thirty miles long.

Those on the relief train from Sioux City yesterday saw the first evidence of the terrible work of the storm.

The northwest shore of Storm lake was heavily wooded, but a quarter of a mile of it had been shaven as clear as if by a woodman's axe. On the opposite shore, three miles further on, were the ruins of the Buena Vista farm, where sixty head of valuable stock were destroyed.

The total amount of damage done by the tornado in the state is conservatively estimated at $300,000.

When John Stetson is not at his $350,000 home in Boston, according to a press agent, he is enjoying himself on his $30,000 steam yacht or his $1,800 catboat. When in the city he rides in his $500 carriage behind a pair of $3,800 horses. He likes to walk with his $10 cane, and if it is raining he shields his $5 hat with a $13 umbrella.

MR A D JONES IN SAN FRANCISCO.

The San Francisco Evening Post of a few days ago contained the following:

A D Jones the newly appointed consul general to Shanghai, is in town awaiting the sailing day of the steamship China, which will convey him to his future home across the Pacific.

During his stay here he has been the honored guest of Judge John A Stanley and H W Bradley, the well known members of the bar, both of whom come from North Carolina, Mr Jones' native state.

There is a little left worth seeing that Mr Jones has not seen under the able guidance of these gentlemen, and he is now as well posted on San Francisco and its vicinity for a radius of fifty miles, both as regards the topography of the country and the manners and customs of the people as though he had been raised in the old time Pelgravia on Rincon Hill.

Mr Jones is a lawyer by profession, and a talented one at that so the World says. He is also an extensive cultivator of land near Raleigh, N. C., where his offices are located. His selection for the important office which he now fills was a pleasant compliment to his ability and the esteem in which he is held by his fellow citizens.

BATTLE BETWEEN CROW AND SNAKE.

Near Altoona, on the main road going to Spottsylvania, Penn., about four or five o'clock in the afternoon of one day last week, Mr White saw a crow acting very curiously. Getting closer he saw it was attacking something. Coming closer still he saw that a battle was going on between a snake and a crow. The snake was about a foot and a half long, and while vigorously trying to defend himself was as vigorously trying to get away. The crow would catch the reptile in its claws and try to raise with it.

When the snake would squirm around to bite, the crow would drop it and strike at it with its beak, while the snake would improve the opportunity to glide a short distance across the road towards some projecting grass that was a little further off. Nearly at the grass the crow seized the snake in his claws.

Rapidly turning his head the snake seized the crow by its leg, while the crow as quickly retaliated by seizing his snakeship's tail and bodily swallowing some four inches or so of it. In this position—the crow swallowing the snake's tail and the snake endeavoring to absorb the crow—the bird rose in the air and disappeared over the pines.—New York Telegram.

LUNCH COUNTERS TWO MILES LONG.

One system of restaurants and lunch counters at the world's fair alone accommodated 100,000 people July 4. The Wellington Catering Company's lunch counters, situated in all the main buildings, now exceed two miles in length, and the system is probably the largest and most extensive in the world. The visitors can secure good food at reasonable prices was evidenced by the fact that not a single complaint of either the service or the changes was made by this vast throng.

ALL QUIET AT HOMESTEAD.

Homestead slept very little Thursday night. The fact that the morning sun would usher in the anniversary of the battle with the Pinkertons, coupled with rumors that an attempt was to be made to burn the mill, drove sleep away from many couches, and all night the streets were thronged. But these were idle stories, and where turmoil and bloodshed reigned a year ago, all was quiet. The mill was in full operation, the workers being largely made up from Homestead strikers, and this busy town is going ahead much as though the past was something carefully to avoid mentioning.

Last Saturday the section of Wake county around Apex was visited by a tremendous hailstorm. The cotton, corn and fruit was much damaged.
