TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

Cholera is raging in Alexandria, Egypt.

A revolution has broken out in Brazil.

A fire has destroyed nearly all the business houses of Princeton, Ind.

All the directors of the Blakington bank at Milwaukee have been indicted.

Barwell, Ky, is well armed and a mob will get a hot reception if any violence is attempted.

The third party people will put up a full state ticket in Virginia in August.

One hundred and ten persons have been poisoned at Mansfield, O, from eating new cheese.

The Lake Superior Mineral Point Company's factory and lime kiln at West Superior, Wis, was burned last night. Loss $100,000.

Mrs Heenan Howard was thrown from a buggy yesterday at Warsaw, N Y, and she struck an iron rod which penetrated her head, just above the eye, four inches. She will die.

Dr H C Neal, minister of the Methodist church at Kirkpatrick, Ind, is a man of muscle. At a temperance meeting Monday O P C Evans, a prohibitionist, denounced all those not third partyites as knaves and rascals. Neal got mad and threw Evans bodily out of doors.

It is the first duty of a newspaper to be loyal to its town, but the Washington newspapers are rather overdoing the thing in their extraordinary efforts to boom the summer attractions of the National capital.

Some of the sympathy and cash which are always bestowed upon people of prominence who are visited by misfortune would be welcomed by the thousands of poor devils with whom misfortune has taken up a permanent residence.

The State barroom law of South Carolina has been declared unconstitutional by one court. We always had a doubt about the constitutionality of using the "gag" as a tax collector.

Hellertown, Pennsylvania, has one saloon to every thirty three voters and this year the revenue from liquor licenses is so large that no other tax is imposed. Still there are people who think that "or" out of place in the name.

The marriage of Prince "collars and cuffs" was given almost as much American newspaper space as some of his father's earlier escapes enjoyed.

The visitor to the World's Fair who was robbed of $3,000 worth of diamonds paid a high price for knowledge that every person should have naturally. Diamond or other valuable jewelry should never be worn where there is a promiscuous crowd.

Has a physician who is a member of a municipal or State board of health the right to sell his name to be used for advertising purposes? The practice is becoming so general that the question is pertinent.

A STRANGE SPELL.

In the state of New York, and I believe in all our states—or, if there is not, there should be—there is a law forbidding any man to practice medicine or manage a drug store unless a graduate of some acknowledged school or licensed by somebody of competent jurisdiction.

Either ignorant of or in defiance of this law a man crossed over the Niagara river from Canada a few years since and established himself in one of the suburbs of Buffalo as a "surgeon and apothecary."

The man's name was Briggs, and he was not long in his new home before the most ignorant of his neighbors came to the conclusion that he was an illiterate adventurer.

He was brought up before the court for practicing without a license and was permitted, after the rest of the evidence was in, to testify in his own behalf, which he did as follows:

District Attorney—Mr Briggs, have you been a surgeon?

Witness to Judge—Is that a fair question?

Judge—Yes. You must answer it.

"I have been a surjent."

"A what?"

"A svurgunt."

"Have the goodness to spell that word."

"S:u:r:g:e:n:d."

"And how do you pronounce it?"

"S:u:r:g:e:n:d."

"Have you always been what you say—that word—I mean which you have just spelled?" (A long pause.)

Judge—Go on, sir; answer.

"S:u:r:g:e:n:d."

"What were you before you were a 'surgunt'?" A gardener?

"A s:u:r:g:e:n:d."

Attorney (to judge)—I am afraid, your honor, that I have cast a bad spell over the witness, which he cannot get rid of.

Witness—But you told me to spell, and I'm giving it to you in all shapes so's you can have your pick.

There was much laughter in court and as it was the opinion of all who heard Mr Briggs that he mixed his medicine as he did his spelling he was promptly subjected to the full penalty of the law.

GOVERNOR HOLT'S SOUVENIR.

Greensboro Record.

Among the other interesting souvenirs of the glorious celebration of the Fourth of July, 1893, at the Guilford Battle Ground and the erection of the Holt monument was a handsome hickory walking cane varnished with the bark on. In the top of the cane was imbedded a plated button, which was found upon the battle ground. On the under side were the words: "London plated." It was evidently a fine button from an English officer's uniform and plated with gold. It was very highly polished and looked like burnished gold. The company had engraved upon it the words: "Thomas M Holt," and above his name "1771" and below it "1893."

About three inches from the top a perforation was made through the cane with a silver eye on either side. On the 3d day of July a musket ball was found near the site of the Holt monument. Through this bullet was placed a gold wire, which was formed into a loop, above, making a handsome revolving charm. This was suspended from a white satin ribbon inserted through the hole in the stick and hung as a pendant from the ribbon. The whole was a unique and ingenious combination—the work of W B Farrar & Son, jewelers, Greensboro, N C.

BOWIE KNIFE DUEL OVER A WOMAN.

Hank Manley and Jerry Woods, backwoodsmen, fought a duel with bowie knives and played seven up to win Anna Thomas, who is holding down a Government claim near Rattlesnake Hill. She is the only woman in the wildest portion of Skamania county, Wash. Both men were wounded and Manley won the prize at cards, but Miss Thomas changed her mind when the person was brought in to marry them. After a short conversation with the clergyman, whom she had never seen before, she decided to marry him. Manley tried to prevent the wedding but the parson came out victorious.
